Farmers Hurl Milk

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry, chanting crowd of thousands of Quebec dairy farmers smashed windows and hurled containers of milk and milk powder on the steps of Parliament today as federal cabinet ministers told them there was no easy solution to their production and price problems.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, his face splattered with milk, was hissed and booed as he started speaking in English to the French-speaking farmers.

"I am your agriculture minister," he said as chunks of butter landed at the feet of helmeted RCMP riot policemen and a phalanx of Liberal MPs and reporters surrounding him.

He then retreated into the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings.

Earlier, Regional Expansion Minister Marcel Lessard told the angry farmers from across Quebec that there is no easy solution.

Strike Averted?

A threatened strike by B.C. Ferry workers has apparently been averted as Labor Minister Allan Williams said Wednesday he will announce some good news in the legislature today.

The minister said after a meeting with representatives of the B.C. Government Employees Union that his announcement will contain details of a proposal put to the union by him to settle the dispute.

There is speculation that intervention may take the form of an industrial inquiry commissioner appointed by the labor minister.

The dispute centres around overtime worked by licensed and unlicensed members of the BCGEU's marine services component and the layoff of a number of workers.

The union served 72-hour strike notice and was in a position to strike Tuesday but didn't pending further talks.

59% Increase Awarded To BCR Men

VANCOUVER (CP) — The biggest "catchup" pay increase since federal anti-inflation income controls — up to 59 per cent over two years — has gone to workers on the British Columbia Railway.

The arbitration by Owen Shime of Toronto provides for increases of $2.20 to $2.82 an hour over two years from July 31 for about 40 members of the International Union of Operating Engineers who work exclusively on B.C. Rail's Dease Lake extension.

These workers were getting a range of $3.72 to $6.30 an hour, making the increase 44 to 59 per cent.

The Shime arbitration also gave $2.16 an hour for maintenance-of-way employees and truck drivers, warehousemen, mechanics and clerical workers of the Teamsters Union Local 31.

The maintenance of way employees had an average rate of $4.88 with a cost-of-living "fold-in", making their increase 44 per cent.

The teamsters had an average rate of $5.25 with a cost-of-living adjustment, making their increase 41 per cent.

There was no indication whether or when the arbitration might be submitted to the federal anti-inflation board. The B.C. government has yet to pass its legislation bringing public institutional and crown corporations under the federal law.

For operating engineers the Shime decision also reduces the work day to 7½ hours from 8 as of June 15 for the operating engineers.

Spokesman for the unions were satisfied with the Shime award saying it recognized the fact that the railway

Juan Torres Slain

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Police found the blindfolded, bullet-punctured body of Bolivian ex-president Juan Jose Torres Wednesday, a day after his family reported him missing and feared kidnapped, security sources said today.

Striking Time

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Newspaper Guild struck Time Inc. Wednesday night when last-minute negotiations failed to produce agreement on a new contract.

KAMLOOPS (CP) — "When the queen calls, you listen," County Court Judge Donald MacDonald told Donald Duncan, 57, Wednesday, before fining him $150 for failing to appear for jury duty.

Hospital Strike

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Local 180 of the Hospital Employees Union has served 72-hour strike notice on Prince George Regional Hospital but cannot legally strike until June 10 due to a provincial cooling-off order which expires at that time, hospital administrator Bert Boyd said Wednesday. He said a strike would involve 350 to 400 of the hospital's 800 employees and that the administration has worked out a strike contingency plan.

SOLUTION MIGHT BE KISSING 'ER . . .

LONDON (AFP) — The problems of a warring husband and wife were perhaps resolved Wednesday when a magistrate divided their home into a series of forbidden zones.

He awarded the living room and one bedroom for the exclusive use of the husband, Sydney Watson, 64, and the dining room and another bedroom to his wife, Ivy Watson, 66.

Other parts of the house are subject to a rigorous timetable. Watson is allowed in the kitchen for only one hour for each of his meals and for half an hour at night for a last cup of tea before going to bed.

His wife reigns supreme in the bathroom except for two hours in the evening when her husband, according to law, is allowed to take a bath.

To avoid further trouble, the magistrate also ruled that Mrs. Watson should keep out of the way when her husband was either coming up, or going down, the stairs.

Ministers Squabble

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Secluded sniping turned to open conflict between cabinet colleagues Wednesday as Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer openly accused Defence Minister James Richardson of bungling the purchase of 18 long-range patrol aircraft from Lockheed Corp.

In a stunning Commons question period the rift between the two ministers spilled into the open.

Some of Goyer's comments prompted former prime minister John Diefenbaker to charge that the government is trying to make a scapegoat out of Richardson, as a result of Goyer's "stupidity."

The rift is expected to be raised in the weekly cabinet meeting today.

Almost unheeded was confirmation by Richardson that both Lockheed and Boeing submitted earlier this week new "unsolicited" proposals to supply patrol aircraft.

Officials later confirmed that Lockheed has proposed a contract for delivery of Orions with less-sophisticated equipment than those considered in the bungled $1 billion contract which will cost Canadian taxpayers $16 million for wasted preliminary work.

It was in the Commons chambers, however, that the action got off the ground.

The opposition revved up with an attack on Goyer for his "scurrilous attack" on the public service in blaming an official for the Lockheed mess.

Tory House leader Walter Baker said Goyer's blaming of a public servant, in a statement Tuesday, had been "a scandalous precedent" in light of the fact that the whole cabinet knew and approved the Orion purchase contract.

The two ministers on the firing line took different positions in affixing responsibility for the mess.

Goyer said that the entire blame lay with Richardson. Richardson felt that any blame should be equally shared between the two of them.

Goyer, however, was having no part of shared responsibility.

He stuck with his statement that financing of the contract was the "prime and exclusive responsibility" of the defence department.

Richardson said it was a shared responsibility in that the cabinet and treasury board had decided in November that the $1 billion dollar Orion purchase was to be financed through borrowed money.

Pound Rallies Slightly After Record Plunges

Times News Services

LONDON — The British pound rallied today after falling to a record low on foreign exchange markets.

It was believed foreign central bankers indirectly were coming to the rescue.

In early dealings the pound slid two cents to touch just over $1.70 in U.S. funds, $1.64 Canadian.

But in later trading it recovered most of this lost ground to stand at $1.67 Canadian, almost the point where it closed Wednesday.

The pound now has lost almost 41 per cent of its value from 1971.

Dealers suggested that central banks had started intervening in the money markets of Britain, West Germany and the United States as well as Switzerland.

Some bankers believed that Wednesday's plunge had been partly inspired by panic.

The market action today appeared to have vindicated a statement by Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, that the pound had fallen below its true value and that no emergency fiscal measures in Britain were necessary.

Healey said the important thing is "to keep our nerve and not panic."

In Zurich today, the Swiss national bank, worried by the inflow of foreign funds which pushed the Swiss franc to an uncomfortably high level, began taking counter action, buying West German marks in an effort to keep the franc from rising further.

The action apparently succeeded in pushing down the franc against the mark and even against the pound.

Intervention was also conducted by central banks in Britain and West Germany.

ROLLBACK .01%

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-inflation board has ordered a one-hundredth of one per cent reduction in a pay settlement awarded 4,332 Calgary school teachers in a ruling intended to avoid setting a precedent.

A board official said Wednesday the teachers had agreed to an increase that, including pay and benefits, would give them a 9.41-per-cent raise in one year. The board asked them to roll this back to 9.4 per cent.

National Strike Closes Alcan

MONTREAL (UPI) — Alcan Aluminum Ltd., the world's second-largest producer of aluminum, was hit by a surprise Canada-wide strike which closed all but one of its smelter operations.

Some 7,900 workers at Kitimat, B.C., and at Arvida, Isle Maligne and Beauharnois, all in Quebec, walked off the job and manned picket lines in a dispute apparently linked to the lay-off of 100 workers Wednesday.

A company spokesman said only the smelter at Shawinigan, Que., continued operating.

A union spokesman in Kitimat said the walkout was over "management arrogance."

The walkout began after some workers told management they wanted to discuss a grievance and were told to get back to their jobs or go home. They went home.

The union signed a two-year agreement with Alcan in January, but the federal anti-inflation board rolled back an 11 per cent wage increase to eight per cent.

SPY RING CRACKED

KARLSRUHE (Reuter) — West Germany's federal prosecutor announced today that a major spy ring that had operated for the last 10 years inside the defence ministry has been broken up.

Prosecutor Siegfried Buback said 15 men and women, including three civilian employees in the ministry, were arrested two days ago on charges of spying for East Germany.

No Ferry Subsidies

Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday his government has no intention of granting federal subsidies to B.C. Ferries' Vancouver Island-mainland runs.

Lang was quoted Tuesday as saying it is now the government's policy to support ferries serving two points in a province.

But, he said, the Hansard recorders in the House of Commons apparently erred and left out the word "not" in his statement which should have read that it is not government policy to support internal provincial ferries.

Lang said he is initiating talks with the provinces on the whole question of subsidies for ferries, but the result of those talks will probably be the withdrawal of some subsidies which already exist, and not the increase of subsidies.

Habitat Walkout Aimed at Israel

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Arab and some African states staged a major walkout today as Israel addressed a supposedly non-political United Nations conference on human settlements. (See other Habitat stories on Page 16.)

But Israeli Interior Minister Josef Burg coolly pressed ahead and challenged critics to adopt a "low tone" and visit Israel to see conditions for themselves.

Departing from a prepared speech, Burg zeroed in on fierce fighting between Moslems and Christians in neighboring Lebanon and said it was not far removed from genocide.

"It has brought more victims than all wars since the proclamation of the State of Israel," he said.

Burg said he was proud that Israel, despite different political attitudes between different people, had been able to hold free democratic elections within its old frontiers and in Israeli-administered areas.

HABITAT SCOTCH . . . $2.78 BOTTLE

Oak Bay Tory Scott Wallace almost cleared the legislature Wednesday afternoon.

Wallace asked Attorney-General Garde Gardom whether he had heard rumors of bottles of scotch whisky being sold to Habitat delegates at greatly reduced prices.

An $8 bottle, Wallace told the legislature, was selling for $2.38.

His announcement was greeted by cheers from fellow MLAs, several shouts of "Where? where?" and an immediate request for a taxi from Vancouver Centre MLA Gary Lauk.

Gardom promised he would look into the affair, but said it was a practice to sell liquor to consular services at a reduced price.

The booze bargain apparently is available at an unmarked downtown liquor store.

Wallace mentioned the price of $2.38 a bottle but Vancouver reports say it's $2.78 for a 26-ouncer of Johnny Walker Red Label — a whole case for $33.36.

Smirnoff Vodka costs only $2.59. Beefeater Gin is $2.29.

Those prices also include the seven per cent sales tax.

Habitat is buying the booze from the government at cost and reselling it at the same prices.

The store serves only delegates officially accredited to the United Nations Conference on Human Settlements which opened Monday.

These people all have an official security pass with a brown stripe across the top.

Wallace said that at a conference on human need it was ludicrous to have liquor made available more cheaply than meals.

"It should be the other way round — you can buy a bottle for the price of a hamburger almost," he said.

CUBAN TROOPS STAYING

Washington Post

STOCKHOLM — Despite his pledge to withdraw Cuban troops, Prime Minister Fidel Catro intends to keep several thousand soldiers in Angola for an indefinite period, according to authoritative Swedish sources.

The troops will remain to help rebuild and police the war-ravaged land as long as President Agostinho Neto requires them, authorities here said Wednesday.

This disclosure is at sharp odds with the conclusion reached by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He interpreted a Castro letter announcing the withdrawal of 200 a week to imply that all Cuban troops would be evacuated in "roughly" a year. Kissinger moreover has urged that the process be speeded up. He said he would not quarrel if Castro left several hundred technicians behind.

The Swedes are exceptionally good guides to Cuban intentions in Angola. Castro chose Premier Olaf Palme to receive a personal letter revealing Havana's withdrawal plans. Among western nations, Stockholm probably has the closest ties to both Havana and Luanda.

Castro's letter was read to Kissinger during his visit here last week. It promised that half the Cuban force would be withdrawn by the end of 1976. Swedish officials doubt that substantially more will be taken out until the Neto regime is confident it can run the country.

The Swedes calculate that at their peak the Cuban forces in Angola numbered about 18,000, or some 5,000 mroe than Washington's estimate.

Beirut Moslems Set Blockades

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies blockaded the streets of Beirut's Moslem quarters and closed shops today to protest the Syrian invasion.

Christian political leaders who welcomed the invaders were reported ready to ask France to send troops to "balance and complement" the Syrian military intervention.

The independent newspaper An Nahar said President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian, scheduled a meeting with ambassador Hubert Argod of France to make the request.

Beirut was without electric power for the second day. The last of 12 high-tension lines supplying the capital and its suburbs was knocked out Wednesday, a government spokesman said.

"Unless a ceasefire is arranged to allow repair teams to put the line in order, Beirut will remain without power indefinitely," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese Moslems and Christians kept up sporadic street battles and artillery exchanges in Beirut during the night and in the nearby hill resorts. Security officials and hospitals estimated about 50 persons were killed and 80 were wounded.

Ombudsman to Earn $52,000

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The long-promised legislation establishing an ombudsman as a "public watchdog" in B.C. was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

The ombudsman, who will be appointed by a special committee of the legislature "as soon as possible," will have wide powers to investigate complaints about the actions of government departments, agencies, commissions, councils, Crown corporations or any company in which the government owns more than 50 per cent of the shares.

The man or woman will be appointed for six years and will receive a salary of $52,000 per year.

The introduction of the Ombudsman Act fulfills a campaign promise made by Gardom. He said that while he was a Liberal member of the opposition, he introduced an ombudsman act as a private member's bill three times.

The ombudsman can investigate a complaint coming from an individual and can recommend that a change be made, but cannot order the change. He can, however, report to the legislature if recommended changes are delayed.

"The job is to provide protection for individual freedoms and civil rights, with wide powers to investigate, report and recommend improvements and that incorrect procedures be altered and rectified," Gardom said.

"The essential features are these: independence, non-partisanship, objectivity. He can ensure openness, fairness and impartiality."

The ombudsman will have the power to investigate complaints from individuals, the legislature, a legislative committe — or on his own initiative — and will have access to

Williams Meets Irate Up-Island Parents

Labor Minister Allan Williams is expected to make an announcement later today on proposals aimed at getting education in the Nanaimo-Ladysmith area back to normal.

He said this morning he was waiting to hear from the Mid-Island Public Employers Association on proposals made by him Wednesday after a meeting with about 50 parents and students from Ladysmith area.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver today was to rule on an application from Nanaimo school board for an injunction against increased picketing that caused 11 schools to close Wednesday and six Tuesday.

The unions say they will continue to mount more effective picket lines to force employers back to the bargaining table. Their technique has been to mass pickets at picked locations to prevent access to schools.

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney has been given a list of seven recommendations by a group of concerned parents anxious to get their children back to regular classes. The major point is that provincial mediator Clark Gilmour and the two sides would resume negotiations in one room with a public record of discussion to be kept.

Schools in Nanaimo and Ladysmith have operated on a restricted basis since early April when a dispute between Canadian Union of Public Employees and MIPEA began.

Williams and Education Minister Pat McGeer met for 1½ hours Wednesday with the angry delegation from up-Island.

Cowichan-Malhat NDP member Barbara Wallace said she felt the parents and students had achieved their purpose of letting the government know how frustrated they were with the dispute now in its ninth week.

After the meeting, Williams asked to meet Wallace in his office and she said she regarded it as a "turning point."

She said today she didn't think Williams had recognized before the meeting how serious the situation was.

The parents and students told Williams and McGeer that standards of education in Ladysmith schools had completely deteriorated and they had been told recently that without government intervention the dispute could go on another three or four months.

The parents said the employers' group had displayed a stubborn attitude towards negotiations with the unions and they called for the resignation of Joe Kilner, chairman of the Nanaimo school board, and Nick Mieras, president of one of the CUPE locals.

Isabel Williams, a spokesman for the parents, said she had been told the employers are trying to break the unions, but "the only thing I can see is they're trying to break the children."

One of the students said the group meeting with Williams and McGeer did not really care who was right or wrong, they just wanted it settled.

"Are we supposed to go out of this district to get a decent education?" she asked.

Among the demands insisted on by the employers association, which bargains for school and civic staffs, are elimination of seniority as a basis for promotion, upgrading and transfer; layoffs after 10 days' notice instead of 30, and after 24 hours in case of a labor dispute; elimination of job action, slowdown, work-to-rule and study sessions; deletion of double pay for Sunday work and four-hour minimum callout pay; reduction of statutory holidays from 11 t five in some cases; no sick leave for the first year rather than for the first three months; cancellation of sick leave credits after one day of layoff, rather than 13 months; removal of grandparents from compassionate leave; deletion of mileage compensation for travel between Nanaimo and Ladysmith; removal of job security clause and cost of living allowance; deletion of the right to use an industrial relations officer in disputes.

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday gave unanimous support to the striking and locked-out workers.

The vote came a few minutes after Victoria outside civic employees agreed to donate an hour's pay to assist members of the Nanaimo and Ladysmith locals. A total of $1,848 was represented in a cheque delivered to Nanaimo representatives.

workers "had a lot of catching up to do."

Jack Whittaker of the operating engineers said it was possible the settlement would be taken to the federal Anti-Inflation Board but said it is up to the provincial government to decide that.

"They might just decide to leave us alone" in view of the amount of "catchup" involved.

All but one of the railway contracts has now been settled. The remaining one involves United Transportation Union trainmen whose work-to-rule campaign resulted in the railway shutting down freight business a month ago.

Wanting overtime on a daily basis, the UTU refused to go to the Shime arbitration and so far their long dispute has defied resolution.

The next move in the current dispute that has haulted all freight traffic on the government-owned British Columbia Railway was expected to be revealed following a cabinet meeting today.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said he expected to announce on Wednesday his proposals to change a controversial bill which would ban all strikes and lockouts on the railway for four years.

On Wednesday, however, he said that he would not discuss possible changes in the bill "because my collegues might not agree with me."

Meanwhile, the Central Interior Loggers' Association joined the growing chorus from central and northern B.C. in demanding that Premier Bill Bennett do something to end the impasse and get the railway rolling.

The association sent a letter to the premier Wednesday saying that among the council, a simple majority should be required to settle contracts; that railway management and policies should be changed, and a declaration that the railway is an essential service.

Dave McIvor, spokesman for Prince George and Intercontinental Pulp Mills, said Wednesday that the mills "are slowly going down the drain."

The railway delivers chemicals and wood chips to the mills and McIvor said the supply of both is dwindling.

Dave Gunderson, executive director of the North Cariboo Forest Labor Relations Association, said that 1,500 employees have been laid off and more will follow because of the dispute.

"Everything is grinding to a halt and now it becomes a matter of whether the principle of collective bargaining has highe priority than the fact that the backbone of the interior's economy is being broken," he said.

Ombudsman Bill Starts Its Way in Legislature

all government premises and records for his investigation.

A complaint from an individual must be in writing.

B.C. will be the ninth province in Canada to have an ombudsman and only Prince Edward Island is without one.

The bill will be up for debate on second reading later today, but is expected to be supported by the opposition. Gardom said he did not know how long it would take the special committee to appoint the ombudsman but said he was sure that most MLAs have already been approached with suggestions.

The legislation closely follows the language set out in the Auditor-General's Act introduced by Gardom last week and also fulfilling a campaign promise.

The ombudsman retains the right and discretion not to move on complaints he considers frivolous or vexatious.

The act gives the ombudsman the power to investigate any complaint that has arisen before the act comes into forces.

The ombudsman cannot launch an investigation into a complaint until all rights of appeal or review have been followed through but except where a review or appeal is delayed unreasonably.

If the ombudsman expects to make an adverse report after an investigation, he must inform either the person or agency about whom the report is made and grant the opportunity for a hearing.

the weather

The rather persistent weather pattern which has plagued B.C. for several days continues to weaken ever so slowly. Mainly cloudy skies. Below average nighttime temperatures and showers dominated last night's weather. A slow drying and warming trend beginning along the coast today will slowly extend into the interior Friday and Saturday. Until then occasional showers and the odd thundershower will continue to occur. Record low afternoon temperatures at several localities on Wednesday will again be repeated today.

Phoney Foods Biting Into Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — By 1980, Canadian consumers will spend twice as much on food as they did in 1968, but five times as much on fabricated foods, says a food researcher.

Paul Melnychyn, director of research and development for FBI Foods of Montreal, told a food conference Wednesday fabricated foods will take up between $650 million and $700 million of a $6.2-billion food market.

He said by 1980 food additives will account for $160 million to $200 million of the nation's grocery bill, compared to $47.2 million in 1963.

"Consumers don't have to worry about additives because if they weren't safe and necessary they wouldn't be used," Melnychyn said.

"To have an additive or fabricated food tested and cleared by regulatory bodies costs between $25,000 and $1 million."

In response to an audience question, Melnychyn said many artificial colors are used for esthetic appeal and have no food or health value.

He said margarine, coffee whiteners, and artificial drinks will be fabricated foods showing most growth.

Melnychyn addressed the 19th annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Food Science and Technology which ended Wednesday.

Sister Watches Murder

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen murdered the founder of one of Northern Ireland's first Protestant para-military organizations today.

A lone gunman burst into the home of Jack Parsons, 51, and shot him as his sister looked on.

For about an hour afterward, members of Parsons' Woodvale Defence Association group patrolled streets in the Shankill Road area where the killing occurred, stopping cars and questioning drivers.

A second shooting came just before midnight in Comber, a Protestant stronghold 12 miles east of Belfast.

Gunmen hurled a garbage can lid through the living room window of a house, then shot and killed the 20-year-old Protestant occupant who jumped up to investigate the noise.

Mexican President Disarms Student

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Luis Echeverria disarmed a youth carrying a .22-calibre pistol during a meeting with students to discuss problems at a provincial university, the president's office reported.

"I prefer you to use weapons of intelligence rather than those of violence," Echeverria's office quoted him as telling the 19-year-old student at the University of San Luis Potosi.

The President's office said after the three-hour meeting, Echeverria returned the pistol to the student. There was no indication whether Echeverria had been threatened by the youth or whether the weapon had been loaded.

Guaranteed Pay Plan 'Falls Flat on Its Face'

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-year search for federal-provincial accord on a plan to guarantee workers a living income ended Wednesday in disarray.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde pledged after a two-day welfare ministers meeting — the eighth and final session called to review the social security system — to go ahead with some form of guaranteed income program for the so-called working poor with or without provincial consent.

Meanwhile, most provinces made it clear they are reluctant to proceed with a potentially-expensive program when their budgets are crimped by rising costs.

"It's obvious the whole thing has fallen flat on its face," commented Reuben Baetz, head of the Canadian Council on Social Development.

At issue is a scaled-down plan that would have guaranteed an estimated 500,000 working poor $36 a month for household heads, $24 a month for spouses and $10 a month for each child.

Total cost of such a plan, had it been in effect last year, would have been about $225 million. Another $75 million would have been spent guaranteeing a minimum income to Canadians who are unable to work.

The proposal, watered down from a once-envisaged $1 billion program, had been accepted in principle at a February welfare ministers' meeting by all provinces but Ontario.

Ottawa agreed to pay two-thirds of the cost of the program for the working poor, half the cost of plan to help unemployable people and said provinces could administer the system.

B.C. will probably be the model for the rest of Canada in any federal-provincial guaranteed income supplement program, Human Resources Minsiter Bill Van Der Zalm said.

Van Der Zalm, who returned Wednesday from a welfare minister conference, said the rest of the provinces were negative to the idea and B.C. was the only province which supported the program.

Van Der Zalm will meet again in two weeks with federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde to discuss the program.

He said the program in B.C. would likely be instituted first in an area where there are a lot of low-paying jobs.

PAIR ESCAPE INJURY

DUNCAN — Two Victoria pilots escaped injury Wednesday when their light plane overshot the runway of a small airport near Duncan.

Pilot-trainee Delbert Lennea, 37, of 927 Garthland, owner of the plane, was receiving instruction for his pilot's licence from instructor John W. Kaiser, 2032 Ardwell.

NAZI CLEARED

HAMBURG, (Reuter) — A former Nazi concentration camp commandant and five guards have been acquitted of murdering more than one million Jews during the Second World War.

After a trial lasting 3½ years, Judge Joachim Seefield said today no definite proof has been produced that Kerl Streibel, 72, and his five co-defendants had been involved directly in the mass murders in Poland.

The prosecution charged Streibel, commander of Trauniki camp, with personally killing at least nine persons.

The court travelled to the United States, Israel, the Netherlands, Austria and Britain to question some of the 200 witnesses, who included camp survivors.

Judge Seefield said it was impossible to prove that the accused had positive knowledge of the killings.

UIC Changes Attacked

Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday passed a resolution condemning planned changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Copies of the resolution, which says the government is "attacking the unemployed" through tightening the act will be sent to all three Lower Island MPs.

The restrictions will result in confusion and disqualifications, delegates said.

To continue drawing benefits will need "an exercise in dexterity," said council treasurer Larry Ryan.

Al Carley, an IWA representative asked bitingly: "Are people to hire lawyers to get unemployment insurance?"

The council also authorized Ryan to reply to a letter from Prime Minister Trudeau concerning Canada's position with regard to nuclear arms proliferation through such bases as the Trident missile submarine base at Bangor, Wash.

The prime minister had backed the base following criticism from Ryan.

BURRARD INLET FERRY SYSTEM
MANAGEMENT POSITIONS

THE SYSTEM

The Burrard Inlet Ferry System incorporates a new and exciting concept in the movement of passengers across Vancouver Harbour.
The ships are small and efficient with many ultra modern concepts incorporated in their construction. The terminals have been designed to handle the maximum number of people with great efficiency and with the minimum number of staff.
This ferry link will be an integral part of the Rapid Transit System now being developed to serve the Greater Vancouver Area.
Applications to fill the following positions are now being considered.

MANAGER (OPERATIONS)

THE MANAGER (OPERATIONS) is responsible to the Marine Superintendent for the operational management of the ferries and the terminals and the safety of all passengers; for administering a comprehensive training plan for all ferry and terminal personnel and for developing contingency plans for all levels of operation.

APPLICANTS must have at least a Home Trade Certificate as Master under 350 Tons or equivalent and be able to demonstrate successful supervisory and management experience in the maritime field. Familiarity with Vancouver Harbour would be an asset.

MANAGER (ENGINEERING)

The uninterrupted functioning of the ferries and terminals is vital to the whole operation. The maintenance and servicing organization therefore is of the utmost importance.
THE MANAGER (ENGINEERING) is responsible to the Marine Superintendent to ensure the efficient functioning of all ferries and all terminal equipment; to ensure that all safety equipment is in top operating condition; to administer a comprehensive planned maintenance system and to plan and implement docking of ferries and major overhauls when required.

APPLICANTS must have at least a Second Class Certificate as Marine Engineer (MOTOR) or equivalent and be able to demonstrate successful experience in a maintenance related job. Recent experience afloat would be an asset.

MANAGER (ADMINISTRATION)

THE MANAGER (ADMINISTRATION) is responsible to the Marine Superintendent for providing administrative and staff services to the whole Ferry System. These services will include pay, accounting and financial control; purchasing and control of stores; personnel administration and the provision of secretarial support.

APPLICANTS must have experience in the administration of a medium-sized company; be able to demonstrate an ability for imaginative management in a rapidly developing company, and have experience in some or all of the above fields.

WRITTEN APPLICATIONS stating experience will be received by:

Case Existological Laboratories Ltd.

Figures That Convince

Passage of the federal government's legislation to abolish capital punishment for all time in Canada is by no means assured. Since informal surveys of members of parliament were taken a month or two back, which showed the bill would pass by a small margin, there has been some movement.

John Diefenbaker, for example, a staunch abolitionist who has stated on many occasions that the death penalty is discriminatory since very few rich men end up on the gallows for murdering anyone, now is said to be muttering about the lack of provisions in the bill for assaults against the queen.

MPs are probably full up to the gills with statistical arguments, pro and con, on the matter of the death penalty and probably will either vote on their consciences or the way their constituents tell them to.

But B.C. appeals court justice Angelo Branca recently aired some that are different and compelling—on the abolition side. In a recent speech in Toronto to the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews he noted the English experience, where the death penalty was abolished 11 years ago.

The year following, the number of murders decreased from 2.68 murders per 100,000 population to 2.5. In 1967, there was a large jump to 3.2—"an unusual year," says Branca, with many suicides and murders. It subsided in 1968 and 1969 to 3 and then 2.5, the lowest since 1958.

The capital punishment debate has been studded with comparisons of jurisdictions with and without capital punishment which attempt to prove that it is no deterrent, or vice versa.

These comparisons tend towards distortions because frequently they compare an apple with an orange, and eliminate all other factors except the existence of the death penalty from the equation. If you look you can always find an exception where a state which abolished the death penalty has had an increase in the murder rate, and of course, abolitionists can find an example of the reverse.

The only comparison that makes sense is the one Branca outlined. On one side he included all the countries which have no such ultimate penalty, and on the other all the retentionist nations, with their murder rates compared.

The table covers six years, from 1965 to 1970. The first thing noticed is that everywhere, in abolitionist and retentionist countries alike, there has been a steady rise in the number of murders committed. But the important information is that in abolitionist countries, the rate per 100,000 population — though on the rise — has remained at almost half the rate in retentionist countries.

In 1965, it was 4.95 versus 2.8. Two years later, 6.35 versus 3.25. In 1970, it was 7.65 versus 4.65.

Figures like these, which cover all the jurisdictions which got rid of the noose, and all of those which retain the death penalty, tend to be convincing. No one can accuse Branca of selectively choosing his facts and figures.

The abolitionists are as diverse as Italy and Finland and Mexico. Retentionist nations include Russia and South Africa. The figures can't be attacked very easily on the grounds of cultural or political bias, nor can they be said to be skewed geographically. Politicians who are wavering on the question should look closely at them.

Elderly Joyriding

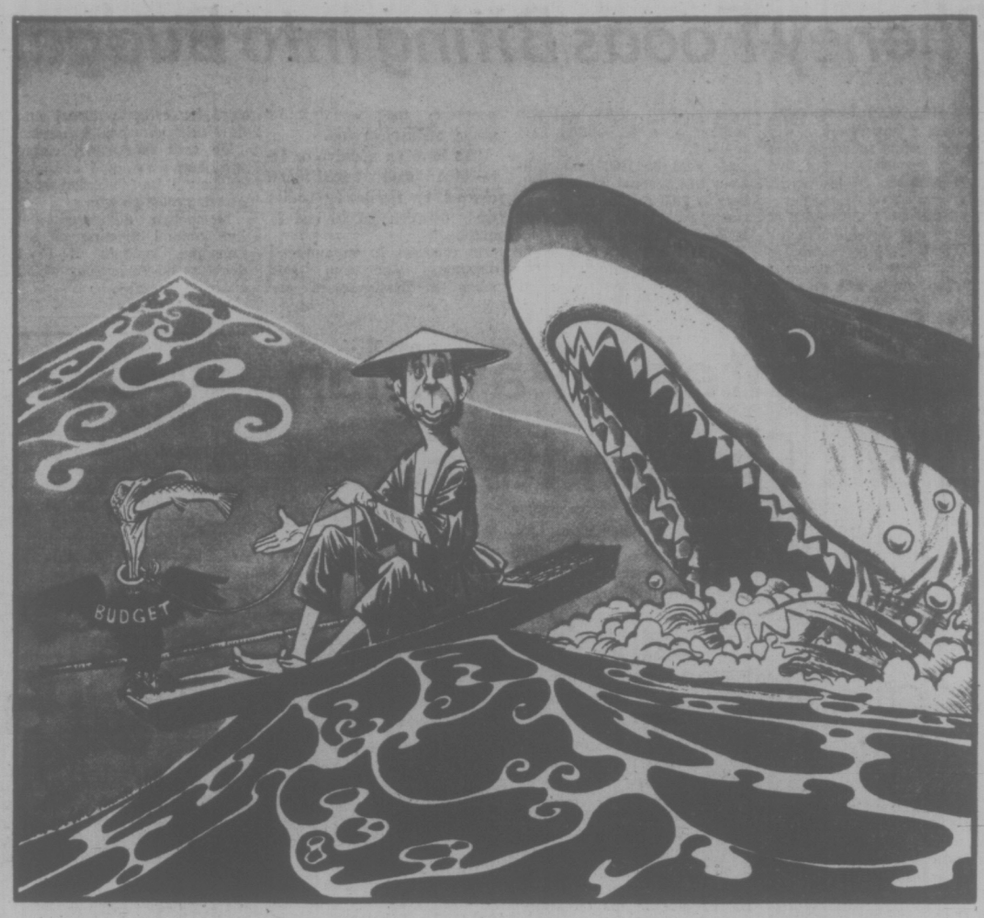
Following a protest from Salt Spring Islanders Premier Bennett has promised he would look into the commuter ticket system for Gulf Island ferries. Islanders complain that the tickets are valid for only 30 days and cannot be turned in for a refund. The premier's attention to such details is gratifying to see. But while he is at it, he might look into the ruling that senior citizens travelling free on B.C. ferries must disembark at each terminal to discourage "joyriding."

The nincompoop politician or bureaucrat who thought up this one should be keelhauled in Ganges harbor. What does this administration do? Sit around in paranoid little circles and think up ways it might be ripped off for a dollar? Transportation Minister Jack Davis said — with a serious visage, presumably — that if the disembarking rule were not instituted senior citizens might spend a whole day riding around the Gulf Islands. Gosh, wouldn't that be terrible. All those elderly people soaking up the sun on deck at the expense of the government of B.C. The same people who have worked in this province for many years, raised families and paid taxes.

The irony is, of course, that few if any elderly people ever contemplated ferry joyrides until the government announced it would stop the practice. Even now that the idea has been implanted by the Socreds few citizens would think of doing it. Yet if a few senior citizens notice a cloudless sky one day and decide to hop a ferry why shouldn't they be allowed to do so, unless the ship is packed to the gunwhales?

It is a rare day when any B.C. ferry is overburdened with foot passengers.

Layabouts and aged ripoff artists are apparently hiding around every corner just waiting to beat the government out of a few dollars. It is these elderly people who paid for, and in some cases built these ferries. To deny them a "joyride" at the golden age shows a meanness that knows few bounds.



JAMES RESTON

They're All Trying to Lose

PRINCETON, N.J. — The U.S. presidential campaign seems to be turning into a test of which party has the best furmula for losing the election, and on this negative proposition, the Republicans are ahead, but not by much.

Their problem of how to divide the GOP and minimize their chances of winning was not easy. They were weak in congress and the state governments, but they had the presidency, a rising economy, and peace — not a bad foundation.

Reagan's strategy has been to challenge the only strengths the Republicans have left. He has attacked the president, questioned the peace and the recovering economy, and raised issues about Ford's defence budget and Panama Canal policy. This has unified Rockefeller and Barry Goldwater, of all people, against him.

Democratic Suicide

The Democrats have not quite been able to match this suicidal strategy, but they're trying and may even be catching up. They are, they say, the innovators in American political life, the party of reform that has dominated our politics for most of the last fifty years, and the party of the young that welcomes new ideas and candidates.

It is a bewildering Democratic cast of characters, running from George Wallace and Lloyd Bentsen, through Walter Mondale, Birch Bayh, Frank Church, Jerry Brown, then Scoop Jackson, to Mo Udall, Hubert Humphrey and old-ime populists like Fred Harris and dreaming poets like Gene McCarthy on the left, with the accidents of life like Teddy Kennedy on the side. All this is confusing, but the Democrats are at least alive and diverse, and kicking for change.

So much so that they don't quite know what to do with it, and like the Republicans, they could blow their chances. Jimmy Carter has knocked the political and labor elders of the Democratic party off balance. He has swept most of the primaries. He gives promise of restorig the south to the party, and by his moralistic and even religious approach to politics cuts across the Republican hope of creating a "new silent majority" in the north, but something about him holds the Democratic leaders back.

They say they want something new, but complain that the "new" is not familiar. Carter has entered more primaries, fought more state battles, visited more newspaper and network offices, answered more questions, and been more specific than Ford, Reagan and most of his Democratic opponents, but still he lost in Maryland to Jerry Brown, who is the fuzziest newcomer.

In the Republican party, most of the uncommitteds will probably go to the president, with the support of both Goldwater and Rockefeller on the ground that the presidency, peace, and the rising economy are their best hope for victory in November.

In the Democratic party, the issue will be more complicated. For the Democratic power centres really favor a Humphrey-carter ticket, in the belief that Humphrey would be a better president and could hold the north, while Carter as the vice-presidential nominee could hold at least part of the South and cut across Republican strength in the bible belt of the middle west.

Ford and Carter, however, are still likely to take it all, even if they lose some of the primaries in the next few weeks. Both parties need them and their supporters, if they are not to throw away the election.

Fuzziest Newcomer

For the moment it is not clear how either party can unify itself and win, but it is fairly clear how both could split apart and lose. Reagan and Ford are cutting one another up and providing the Democrats with yards of television film that can be used against them in the autumn campaign.

Meanwhile the more Carter Wins, the more the old Democratic "regulars" try to stop him and replace him with the old guard. Maybe they'll all close ranks after the conventions, but by then, Ford Reagan, Carter, Brown and Hymphrey are all likely to look a little weak and tarnished. It's a funny way to "win" an election, but both sides almost seem determined to throw it all away.

Profit Controls

We hear a great deal about restraints especially in the sector of direct salaries and wages but little of controls on professional salaries, profits, real estate and developer earnings, etc. However I did note the following:

The director of the Victoria General Hospital was given an increase of $6,000 per annum which now brings his salary to $46,000. I should have thought that such an increase was above the anti-inflation board limits.

The Bank of Montreal increased its earnings per share from $1.23 to $1.57 for the six month period ended April 20 as compared to the similar period in 1975. Bell Canada also increased its earnings from $1.28 to $1.69 per share for the three month period ended March 3. Dominion Stores increased its earnings per share from $2.02 to $2.40 for the year ended March 20 as compared to earnings over a similar period in 1975.

These are only sample earnings of institutions which are used daily by the general public and yet little has been done to control these earnings. I realize that it is far more difficult to control prices and profits as there are so many perfectly legal loopholes open to corporations to hide such profits and prices.

It will be difficult to convince the general public and especially the wage earner that the Anti-Inflation Board is truly serious unless measures are taken to truly control prices and profits.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Something Cooking

Regarding a letter titled Just a Bum in your issue of June 1:

I think that either Mr. MacIntosh of 3992 Panther Street is a much better writer than he is a cook, or there's something cooking there that's more than meets the eye.

In any case, I've solved Mr. MacIntosh's problems — if he can show me that he can REALLY write like this, I'll get him at least double the money he's getting slaving around and frittering his life away on such poor wages and terrible working conditions.

I can hardly wait for our first editorial session, Mr. MacIntosh. I can hardy wait.—Ray Kerr, Victoria Newspaper Guild.

Market Square—inaccessible to the handicapped.

Handicapped Reply

I wish to reply to the article in the May 22 Victoria Times in which Sam Bawlf responded to my comments regarding Market Square. While we of the Handicapped Action Committee realize that it is now too late to make Market Square accessible for people with handicaps, baby carriages and many senor citizens of Victoria, I want to draw his attention to two points:

In Vancouver and also in Alberta, by law, no building may be constructed or restored without access being provided for people with handicaps or other physical disadvantages. In the article Mr. Bawlf stated that because of the difference in the construction of the buildings in Market Square, it would have been physically impossible to make this complex accessible. However, later in the article you imply that had public funds been available, Market Square could possibly have been made more accessible. Is this not a contradiction of statements? Is this not placing dollars before people? In the many areas where total accessibility is law, private developers are not given public funds to subsidize this accessibility.

It is hoped that city council will keep this inaccessible complex before them as an example of what should not be allowed to be built, and that a new bylaw, similar to Vancouver's building code, will be passed so that there will never be another Market Square in Victoria.—Ronald Olfrey, President, Physically Handicapped Action Committee, 2535 Government Street.

Logged Off

Your article on Malaspina College's logging course was read with grave concern. I feel the public, as well as the education department officials are not truly aware of the benefits of this course to both the student and our province.

My son, like so many other young men in Victoria, has had to face the impossible task of securing permanent employment in a province presently promoting one of the highest unemployment rates in Canada. Through the benefit of the Canada Manpower training program he was accepted for training in the basic logging course at Malaspina College.

On arrival at Malaspina College he was welcomed by a commissionaire, directed to a clean, well-equipped dorm followed by a conducted tour of the college. The instructors of the course are men who have had up to three decades of actual practical working knowledge in all phases of the logging industry. They offer a lifetime of experience to these young students, stressing the importance of safety in the woods, survival, first aid with particular emphasis on the use of their equipment and logging signals which ensure safety in the woods.

It is shocking to realize our education officials are prepared to cancel the benefit of highly qualified instructors ensuring the safety of lives and expert knowledge of working in the woods in exchange for a minimal cost of $70 per student. — Mrs. J. Murphy, Victoria.

Social Needs

On May 22 the Times carried a letter from a mother of three children, plainly showing the inadequacy of her welfare allowance.

On May 23 an authoritative statement on Cross-Country Check-Up (CBC radio program) informed us that the federal grant for medical and scientific research is now 60 per cent lower than it was a few years ago. And reasonably-priced housing remains a shrieking need.

They can't do more to help us, Mr. Trudeau and company say the money is needed for enlarging our help to NATO. But, "should there be a NATO?" Eric Kierans once asked, and later quit the cabinet.

Peace News by the Canadian Peace Congress brings recent news.

"Already Canada spends $3 billion a year on 'defence'. The plans of the present minister of defence will bring it to $5 billion within a few years . . . All the expenditures come out of taxes.

"Money spent for American aircraft creates no jobs for Canadians, Canadians are asked to do without hospital beds, forego needed wage increases, suffer unemployment . . . all in the interest of corporations, mostly U.S., many of which, like Lockheed, pile up billions through the sale of death-dealing machinery, dead-end production, no-use value . . . just death."

Why isn't this money spent on housing, health and scientific research, useful jobs, giving work to Canadians, bettering the conditions of our poor, of our native peoples, of starving millions abroad? — Frances Wilcox, 820 Cook Street.

Inane Editorial

I was amazed at your inane May 25 editorial (Is There Silliness After Life?) in which you equate silliness with the economic plight and eventual demise of Britain. At least Monty Python can be excused silliness in its quest to amuse, and the ferocious rabbit in the train can be assumed honest reporting of a strange incident. However your supposedly serious comment regarding these rabbit incidents must in itself be the height (or depth) of silliness. If as you propose, this characteristic can be used as an indicator of impending economic problems then the editorial, along with much of your paper's content, should foretell financial disaster for Canada, B.C. and most certainly the Times. — J. H. Morley, 1181 Old Esquimalt Road.

Classic Advice

You editorially compare the "solutions" for unemployment of Vander Zalm and Gaglardi of blessed memory. A reference to your files of 40 years ago will show that his ideas are as modern as the grunting of a dinosaur. Acres of crosses, some of them in Holland, mark the resting place of a generation who heard it all before. "Get a shovel you bum, cut your hair and shine your shoes and employers will grab you up. Lots of work in Medicine Hat, Prince Albert, and London, Ontario, grab a freight train and go." Deportation of aliens back to such foreign lands as Manitoba and Quebec, Nova Scotia and P.E.I. was also tried. Some hundreds enjoyed passenger service all across Canada. When we returned by freight and asked for seconds the program was ended. Too expensive. Billy boy has rediscovered this plan. What fun.

I can only offer the workers of B.C. the classic advice. "Since rape is inevitable, and no help available, lie back and try to enjoy it." — R. Steve Brodie, 2572 Blackwood St.

Onoway History

The Onoway and District Historical society has been formed for the purpose of compiling and publishing the history of the village and surrounding districts: Bilby, Brookdale, Fern Valley, Glenford, Goldthorpe, Grasmere, Gunn, Heatherdown, Hillcrest, Lac Ste. Anne, Nakamun, Rich Valley, Speldhurst, Stettin, and Sturgeon River. The society would like to hear from anyone who used to live in Onoway or any of the above-mentioned districts, or from anyone whose family used to live there. If anyone would like to have his or her history included in this book, please contact me as soon as possible. We would like to have the stories in by the end of 1976.—Mrs. Jared Turnbull, Box 70, Onoway, Alberta, T0E 1V0. Tel. 976-5222.

War Brides

There must be literally hundreds of stories, humorous, exciting and sad too, that took place when English war brides first came to this country during and after the Second World War.

I have started to compile these memoirs, including my own, into book form for eventual publication, and would be delighted to hear from all war brides who are interested in relating to me by letter of their experiences. In submitting these please use first names only or fictitious ones. All letters will be edited where necessary.

Perhaps you have vivid recollections of your sea journey and first impressions of Canada. So come on girls, think back and jot down all the incidents large and small that happened to you that can be shared with others and send them to me. Thank you. Your co-operation will be greatly appreciated.—Mrs. Peggy A. O'Hara, Box 517, Ridgetown, Ontario, N0P 2C0.

'Third World' Nations Scrap Among Selves

By PAUL HOFFMAN
New York Times

The loose caucus of 100 or so underdeveloped nations has been effective in international affairs because its members agree on one basic tenet: The nations want more.

This agreement has given them growing influence at the United Nations General Assembly and in meetings such as the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development recently held in Nairobi, Kenya. The developing countries contend they have long been exploited by the industrial nations and they have been able to air specific grievances, like the fluctuations of world prices for the raw materials on which their economies depend.

But this grouping of poor nations — about 70 per cent of the earth's population with only 30 per cent of global income — is not at all a monolithic bloc. This group of developing countries is often called (and sometimes calls itself) "the third world" to distinguish it from the Western world dominated by the United States and the Eastern world dominated by the Soviet Union. But "third world" is a misnomer; its unity is fragile and the economic and political differences among its members are enormous as, for instance, between the newly oil-rich developing countries such as Saudi Arabia and truly impoverished countries such as Bangladesh. Politics intrude even on who is considered for membership; some nations, such as Chile, are barred for political reasons.

The divisions have shown up in other areas. Algerians and Cubans, for example, have stopped co-ordinating their moves at the United Nations as they had done until recently. Algeria has served notice it won't support another drive by Prime Minister Fidel Castro to embroil the developing nations in a quarrel with the United States over demands for Puerto Rico's independence.

Diplomats at United Nations headquarters watched in fascination the other day as African representatives were crowding around Algeria's chief delegate, Abdellatif Rahal. The Africans were telling the Algerian they wouldn't back an initiative by him in the Economic and Social Council to reconfirm the equation of Zionism with racism. The African delegates reminded Mr. Rahal they had gone along with the Arab group last November when it pushed through the General Assembly the resolution that declared Zionism to be "a form of racism and racial discrimination." An African delegate was overheard to say: You made us break off relations with Israel, and what have we got in return?"

Another dispute is pitting Indonesia against Mozambique.

NYERERE

KAUNDA

Guinea-Bissau and Angola, all three former Portuguese possessions, over a remote remnant of Lisbon's colonial empire, Timor. India is distrusted by Pakistan; Ethiopia and Somalia are openly hostile neighbors.

But the bloc of developing countries is still influential. Much of the influence is the result of the 1973 oil embargo. Clearly in the service of Arab politics, the oil weapon brought advantages — a fourfold price increase — also to non-Arab producers. It furthermore increased the prestige and leverage of non-industrial countries generally. At the same time, the success of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries caused a deep cleavage between developing countries that had oil and those that didn't.

The second group found to its dismay it had to pay the same high price for oil as the industrial nations. Economists started to speak of yet another national grouping, destitute countries, such as Bangladesh, that had little or nothing to sell and were hard hit by the world energy crisis.

Despite internal differences, the emerging countries, most of which declare themselves to be "nonaligned" with any of the superpowers, have generally stuck together in international negotiations and especially in the United Nations. The world organization has in fact become the principal forum of the developing nations. Big powers, including the United States, often woo the group merely because of its voting strength in the General Assembly and other United Nations bodies.

The tensions will almost certainly be evident in a series of strategy meetings this summer. They will include a conference of the Organization of African Unity in Mauritius, and a heads-of-state conference of the so-called nonaligned group in Colombo, Sri Lanka.

If President Tito of Yugoslavia attends the Colombo parley he will be the only survivor of the "historic chiefs" of the nonaligned movement. Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, and President Sukarno of Indonesia, who were charter members of the group are all dead. With or without President Tito Yugoslavia is today on the fringe of the group. None of the other leaders has quite the international stature of the "historic chiefs."

The principals in the movement now are President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria, President Julius K. Nyerere of Tanzania, President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and a few lesser figures. All head authoritarian one-party regimes, and most derive their power from liberation movements that have become military machines.

Then there is of course Castro. The Cuban military expedition into Angola has startled some African and Latin American governments, and these qualms may come up at the meetings in Mauritius and Sri Lanka.

Castro's military effort in Africa has had the effect of alerting the United States to that continent and to the difficulties of developing nations in general. The recent African tour by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger with the proclamation of a new United States doctrine — support for black majority rule in southern Africa — and Lusaka, Zambia, was a first result. While diplomats concede that the Lusaka statement has won new friends for the United States in Africa, the fact that it was made at all is seen as a triumph for the developing nations.

China has for years been courting the developing countries, but has lately found that even members of that group that seemed staunch allies, like Tanzania or Mozambique, refuse to be sucked into the Moscow-Peking struggle.

European nations that were once the chief colonizers of the developing nations are groping for a new relationship. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France has organized his own north-south parley in Paris; Britain is using old Commonwealth ties to exercise influence in developing countries; and Portugal is now cultivating the liberation movements that only recently had been outlawed and fought by Lisbon.

WALTERS . . . celebrity game?

Spiro and Alpo Make the News

THE NATION
An Editorial

What could Barbara Walters and her handlers at NBC have been thinking about when they invited Spiro T. Agnew to appear on her Today show to plug his "novel"? It was certainly not journalism they had in mind, but it could have been entertainment of the peep-show variety or just the celebrity game.

Agnew is, after all, a celebrity of sorts. His peculiar distinction is that he was the only vice-president in U.S. history ever to quit his office in a deal with prosecutors (to avoid going to jail for exacting and accepting bribes). That may look good in the Guinness Book of Records, but nowhere else, and surely not on a broadcast that purports to be a form of journalism.

All this would not be worth noting except for two things. One is that Barbara Walters has just received the ultimate accolade of broadcast journalism — money, at a million-a-year clip, when she takes over ABC's nightly news later this year. There she will be practicing (in both senses) journalism instead of chatting with celebrities, big and little, between the Alpo dog-food commercials she delivers with such understated gusto.

The other thing to note is what the still-unruffled Agnew had to say, and not say. He set ground rules for this TV appearance which excluded any talk about his slightly criminal past, partly on the stated grounds that this seamy story is his "property" and that he means to exploit it in his memories. (To Miss Walters's credit, she tried to penetrate that no-sound barrier, but her guest repeatedly cut her off in mid-sentence, and the net effect was that she and NBC News rolled over and played dead for Agnew just like the hero of the Alpo commercial.)

What Agnew graciously agreed to talk about was his fictional fantasy of power and lust in Washington and his views on his old adversaries, the "media." This time there was an even nastier twist to it than usual. He attacked his enemies with the disgusting old weapon of anti-Semitism, in the newly chic guise perfected by the Arabs at the UN of "anti-Zionism." Agnew accused Israel of "aggression" in settling the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip, adding that "Zionist influences in the United States" made this country regard that as "permissible." He made the further ridiculous comment that these same mysterious forces caused us not to separate the Arabs into what you might call militant Communist-oriented Arabs and the Arabs that support free enterprise systems!"

It is thanks only to the aggressive prosecutors in Maryland that we do not now have the spectacle of President Spiro T. Agnew going around the country talking of war and peace and a better life for all mankind as he runs for election to the nation's highest office.

Shame, if he would recognize the word, on S. T. Agnew. And shame on Barbara Walters, the millionaire aspiring journalist of utterly commercial broadcasting.

THERE'S A LOOSE WIRE IN HYDRO'S CASE

THE SUN
An Editorial

It is entitled Revelstoke Project Environmental Impact Statement. It is in two volumes, each an inch thick. An impressive document.

What it is, basically, is B.C. Hydro's case for building a billion-dollar hydroelectric project on the Columbia River despite the fact that it would, by Hydro's own admission, inflict savage wounds on the surrounding environment and visit the people of the region with a social and economic earthquake.

The case Hydro makes is this: that the province must have the power; that the Revelstoke project is the only one in a sufficiently advanced stage of planning to provide the power when it will be needed; that it is the most attractive source from an economic point of view; that alternative developments would do even more damage; and that opportunities exist to mitigate its adverse effects. In any case, Hydro says it is so far down the road that no real alternatives exist.

The statement shows encouraging signs that Hydro is developing a conscience — that it has for sworn its old ways of "dam the river and hang the consequences" in favor of a more careful consideration of the ramifications involved. It is the first time that Hydro has done a full-scale impact study on a proposed power development and it has already had at least one desirable result; Hydro discovered along the way that a plan which incorporated measures to mitigate environmental damage actually had a higher benefit-cost ratio than the original plan which did not.

But there is a loose wire in Hydro's argument — one flaw that, if it does not undermine the whole case for a hydroelectric development near Revelstoke at some time, at least seriously weakens the case for proceeding immediately with the development Hydro wants.

That case is based on Hydro's estimate that the demand for electric power is going to grow by 9.2 per cent a year for the next several years. The figure is double the B.C. Energy Commission estimate of likely growth and one-third more than the rate of seven per cent recommended for planning purposes by the commission and the economic development department (whose minister, Don Phillips, sees undammed rivers as "energy wasting . . . beautiful BTUs flowing into the ocean").

One would have thought that Hydro officials would be at pains to explain how they arrived at their projection and attempt to prove that it is more accurate. Yet in that two-inch-thick report, they devoted only a single sheet to an explanation of their forecasting procedure, and then only in the most vague, superficial terms.

The statement does say that, if the seven per cent figure is used, the project could be deferred for two years, although it would mean costly use of the Burrard thermal plant, which runs on oil.

If Hydro cannot justify its forecasts beyond doubt at the public hearings in Revelstoke three weeks from now, we think the money to run the thermal plant would be well spent. It would give the province a two-year breathing space to conduct a thorough public inquiry into the whole question of energy development and arrive at a policy that ensures real power needs are met without unnecessary social and environmental damage.

This, in our view, would be preferable to rushing into large projects like this on a piecemeal basis and allowing Hydro, no matter how pure its motives, to make major decisions on them before the public is consulted.

'We Are All Poets Here'

By HUGH KENNER
New York Times Book Review

DUBLIN — Spring days, at 53 degrees north latitude, was eerily long, the wind intermitently drops its chilling edge, against a gunmetal sky magnolia blossoms struggle. Poet Patrick Kavanagh's friends have carried their St. Patrick's Day libations to his memorial bench by the Grand Canal ("O Commemorate me where there is water/Canal water preferably"). There were no official moves to commemorate Sam Beckett's 70th birthday, but some friends improvised something. Same wouldn't be enticed out of Paris.

Major indices give mixed readings. The rate of mental breakdowns holds steady, Ireland by custom excelling all of Europe. Fiscal breakdown proceeds apace, government-assisted to no one's surprise. Drinking is in recession. By pubkeepers' first computations the savage new spring taxes have reduced their business 40 per cent. No reports are yet in from the booksellers, though buyers grumble that not even in England, where policemen are known to grow tails, have they sunk so low as to tax books. Ireland's by and large tailless politicians tax them 10 per cent.

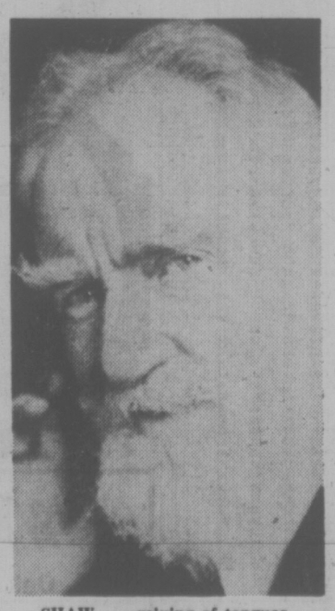
The unique depravity of home-grown politicians is a point of Irish pride. So is the excellence of Irish wordmen. A tourist can commence the litany in time with a native—Yeasts, Synge, Shaw, Wilde, AE, Colum, Joyce, O'Casey, O'Faolain, O'Connor, Beckett — and when his memory fails, the Dubliner will be just starting — Austin Clarke, Thomas Kinsella, Patrick Kavanagh (he of the bench), Flann O'Brien, Brian Moore, Myles na gCopaleen, and younger lights, John Montague, Brendan Kennelly, Macdara Woods, Eilean Ni Chuilleanain . . . If that's one penman fewer than the unwary may suppose (Flann and Myles were the same man), still 21 names make no more than memory's down payment on an endless list. All within a century, all from a country with half the population of New York City! (Dublin is about the size of Buffalo.)

"We are all poets here," said one of them. Partly she meant, that prose is the art less commonly mastered; into even a newspaper paragraph phrases are flung the way a teenager flings socks into a closet, and half of them inside out. She meant also that there are far more Irish poets than there are books of poems.

This is partly because of the small scale of publishing in a small country; Peter Fallon's tiny Gallery Press, with a backlist of 20-odd titles, issues most of new poetry you see on sale. It's also because the Irish find handwork like books, and for that matter writing, somewhat extraneous to the life of language.

That's one reason it didn't occur to the Irish Minister of Finance not to tax books (what keeps the British taxman's hands off them isn't sensibility but superstition). And the lack of turbulent indignation over what remains of the book censorship (which keeps out Playboy as well as shovelfuls of pulp porn: the press displays periodic lists) seems related to a feeling that the censor interferes chiefly with commerce, not with the precious lifeblood of master spirits. It's not as though he were enforcing silence.

Accordingly, this spring's letters to the Irish Times about the Economics of Poetry meditate less on royalties and the book trade than on dreams of subsidized status. An Irish poet, it is affirmed, wields magic, of which the state could use more. Each Celtic chieftain had sense enough to keep one, for jobs of two sorts: eulogizing the chief, cursing the chief's enemies. The curses are held to have been efficacious: there are stories of rats rhymed to death.



SHAW . . . mixing of tongues

In modern times Yeats was still playing the bardic role. His "The Fish" (1898) is an elegant curse. The people of coming days, it reminds its metaphorical fish, will know of your refusal to be caught,

And think that you were hard and unkind
And blame you with many bitter words.

Self-respect, at the thought of that eternal murmuring doom, would drive any but a piscine poltroon into the net.

The rat, the fish, to all such victims reading a page is really extraneous; an efficacious curse is a spoken thing. This may be one reason the mechanics of writing in the Irish language tended to remain cumbersome. Scribal implements are venerated— there are Pen Shops in Dublin, as there are stores in New York consecrated to the Grand Piano. But scribal procedures resemble those of a music copyist, the supply of characters lagging far behind the resources of the Gaelic larynx.

Writing English words by these rules is a humorist's gambit: "Eabharaighbodaigh thiar ios undar aireist" says "Everybody here is under arrest." Joyce started on "Finnegans Wake," which generally sounds like English but seldom looks like it, in the mid-1920's, about the time every Irish schoolchild commenced spending time every day at compulsory Irish. Since the child is learning standard English spelling too, an unintended effect of his schooling is to reinforce any suspicion that to hold a pencil in your fingers and pretend you do something that pertains to living speech is a bit of a cod.

Still, everyone is at least nominally bilingual, and two incompatible tongues confront one another in every brain with a poet's interest in language. The Irish syntax infiltrates the Saxon; rhythms are syncopated; idioms crossbreed. There is no more important fact about the great Literary Revival than the fact that it is just about as old as the Gaelic League Douglas Hyde founded in 1893, to focus attention on what was then a vanishing language.

More than in some mysterious Celtic gift, that may be where an explanation lies for the astonishing profusion of verbal talent on this chill and rain-lashed North Atlantic rock.

Coseka

Coseka Resources Ltd. of Vancouver has announced plans for a $3.6 million exploration and development program.

Included in the program of development of certain semi-developed gas properties in Coseka's share in the drilling of a 16,000-foot test well on its North Coleman, Alta., property.

Other drilling to be undertaken in Alberta includes 53 development gas wells in the Medicine Hat area, 15 exploratory wells in the Bruce-Holden area and three exploratory wells northwest of Edmonton.

Coseka is also heavily involved in gas exploration in the United States, with wells in Louisiana, Kansas, and Texas.

Scotia Bank

Cedric E. Ritchie, chairman of The Bank of Nova Scotia, says he expects a further erosion of the bank's profit margins this year which may be offset by higher domestic volume and better international growth.

The bank reported pre-tax earnings for the second quarter fell to $51.7 million from $54.4 million last year. Balance of revenue was $1.06.1 million, up $5.6 million or 5.5 per cent.

Ritchie blamed the drop in earnings on higher domestic interest and operating costs. He said these costs were absorbed by the bank "rather than passed on to customers in response to the general intent of the federal anti-inflation program."

International interest spreads were stable during the two quarters.

Total assets stood at $16.8 billion at April 30, an increase of $1.7 billion. He said this growth was substantially slower than in recent yeas, chiefly because of the reduced credit demands of the bank's international operations.

He said the outlook for the remainder of the year is clouded "by continued uncertainty about the precise application of the federal anti-inflation program and its effect."

"However, while further reductions in our domestic profit margins are probable, we are hopeful of being able to offset their effect through increased domestic volumes and profitable growth in our international operations."

The bank declared a dividend of 40 cents a share for the quarter ended July 31 to shareholders of record June 28, 1976, payable July 28, 1976.

Brascan

Consolidated net income of Brascan Ltd. for the three months ended March 31 is estimated at $17.4 million, or 67 cents on ordinary share, after a writedown in respect of the Sukunka coal project in B.C. of $9.8 million or 38 cents a share.

These results coompare with restated income of $31.3 million or $1.11 a share for the same period last year, President E. C. Freeman-Attwood has announced. All figures are in U.S. funds.

The 1975 results have been restated to reflect the actual 1975 year-end rate base of Light, the Company's Brazilian electric utility, and the changes resulting from the revisions of the Brazilian rate regulations introduced late in 1975 which were in part retroactive to the beginning of 1975.

Freeman-Attwood said the earnings of Light reflect an annual 12-per-cent return on the rate base, the maximum allowable. A rate increase of approximately 20 per cent was granted effective Jan. 1, 1976. The resultant rates should be adequate to cover the estimated cost of service for the year, he said.

He also said the company has decided not to exercise the option held by its subsidiary, Brascan Resources Ltd., on the Sukunka project. The option to acquire an additional 47½-per-cent interest in the coal licences will be allowed to expire June 30, 1976.

Brascan Resources Ltd. and its subsidiary Coalition Mining Ltd. retain a 12½-per-cent interest in the project.

Lack of Co-Operation Led to Charge: Police

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A police witness agreed in Victoria county court Wednesday that a second narcotics charge was laid against a man because he didn't live up to a bargain to provide information.

Cpl. Alan Decker of the RCMP drug squad was testifying in the second day of the trial of Larry Stuart Ross, 25, of 943 Esquimalt, accused of possession of cannabis resin and marijuana for the purpose of trafficking in Esquimalt July 30.

Decker's answer came at the end of his cross-examination by defence counsel Gordon Macdonald.

Macdonald asked: "You laid the second count because he didn't live up to his end of the bargain?"

"Yes, that's correct," Decker replied.

Decker denied, as did earlier police witnesses, that anyone was offered immunity to testify against Ross.

Decker said at the time the first charge was laid — to which Ross pleaded not guilty — Ross approached him and said he knew "some heavy people and could assist me."

Decker said he told Ross he faced two charges but he was not certain about one of them because of circumstances, but he could expect that charge to be laid.

Ross then asked, according to Decker, what could be expected if he did anything for the police.

Decker said he told Ross if he could assist with "top people" he would approach Crown counsel but Ross didn't supply any information and both charges were laid.

Decker and two other policemen, Constable David Thornley and Constable Barry Parker, told of bursting into Ross' apartment and finding a number of articles there and in a storage locker which were introduced as exhibits in court.

These included a plastic bag with green plant-like material, 49 vials of liquid, six baggies with plant-like substance, 10 bags of plant-like material and two vials with traces of brown liquid-like substance.

The crown also introduced seven certificates of analysis from the health and welfare department laboratory in Vancouver which were matched with these exhibits. Contents of the certificates were not read to court but they will be available to the jury during deliberations.

Decker said 10 plastic baggies were found in a suitcase in Ross' locker in the apartment building.

He said Ross told him "that's all, this is for my own use."

Continuing the search, Decker found two vials with traces of brown liquid-like substance inside a box of baby clothes. When he asked Ross what it was, he was told "I don't know anything about them, honest . . . this really makes me look bad."

Decker said he asked Ross if there was any more "liquid hash" and was told only what was in the apartment, estimated then at about 35 vials.

He said Ross gave a statement later in which he said he thought there were a couple of bags of marijuana in the apartment, plus what was found in the storage room, and the estimated 35 vials. Ross said he paid $275 for half an ounce of hash oil, the statement said.

The trial, before Judge G. B. Ladner and a jury, continues today. The Crown's case, completed Wednesday on the possession aspect, is being presented by Malcolm McMicken.

ANOTHER SEAT ON BENCH

B.C. will get one more Supreme Court judge under legislation introduced Tuesday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

The legislation increases the B.C. Supreme Court bench to 25 from 24.

Gardom said the extra judge was necessary because Mr. Justice Tom Berger is tied up until at least the end of this year on the northern pipeline hearings and another judge will spend the next two years as vice chairman of the Canada Law Reform Commission.

The federal government will pay the cost of the new judge, Gardom said, but the provincial government will pick up the tab for any support services necessary.

Federal Justice Minister Ron Basford is responsible for appointing the new judge.

The Supreme Court Amendment Act also contains some housekeeping measures to clear up the jurisdiction of local judges who at times must sit as Supreme Court judges.

Capital Change

MANILA (AP) — Manila will become the official capital of the Philippines on June 24, the government announced. President Manual Quezon had founded neighboring Quezon City as the capital in 1939.

Drug Sentence Reduced

The B.C. Court of Appeal has upheld the conviction but reduced the sentence of a 25-year-old Victoria man found guilty last July in Victoria county court of possession of speed for trafficking.

Dennis Grant Laverty had been sentenced by Judge Montague Drake to seven years in penitentiary but the appeal court reduced this to four years.

Laverty was convicted of possession of two pounds of speed, technically known as Methamphetamine, said by police to have an ultimate street value of $304,640.

The charge arose from a police raid on a downtown hotel June 6, 1974.

The Crown's key witness was Gordon Robert Drainville of Montreal, who told court the speed deal with Laverty was for delivery of five pounds in Victoria. Drainville was facing two charges from the same incident but his case was waived to Montreal.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A new attempt to reduce one of the factors contributing to loss of valuable time went into effect Wednesday in Victoria provincial court with the institution of what amounts to a "call list" for lawyers.

It was disclosed by Nicholas Lang, prosecutor in the main criminal-court section which handles the daily call list of overnight arrests, remands and summons matters for anywhere from one to three hours each morning before getting to scheduled trials.

Lang said defence lawyers have been asked to "sign in" with court officials by 9:20 a.m., 10 minutes before court starts, listing such items as seniority, nature of their cases and schedules in other courts.

He said the hope is "to facilitate the fast movement of matters and avoid lawyers sitting around." Presiding Judge William Ostler indicated the system was worked out by court administrators, the Victoria Bar Association and prosecutors in meetings with Ostler.

Bail was refused by Ostler in two separate cases.

One involved Gary Wayne Davis, 18, address not known, who was charged with theft of about $440 Tuesday from his parents' home in Colwood and taking his father's car at the same time without the owner's consent. The youth's case will be called again Friday.

Also detained in custody was Frank Woodrow Richards, 28, who was charged in April with possession of a shotgun for a purpose dangerous to the public peace. His mandatory-supervision parole was cancelled after his arrest but expired at midnight Tuesday. Richards now will be detained until his trial June 16.

James Harvey Ouellette, 30, chose trial in provincial court on a charge of escaping and being unlawfully at large March 20 from the William Head institution.

Ouellette pleaded not guilty and Ostler set the trial for Sept. 30. Lang and defence lawyer Scott Marshall said Ouellette was in custody on another matter so bail was not a factor.

Ronald Glen Westad, 33, appearing for a routine weekly remand on a Duncan charge of break-in and theft, said he wanted to be remanded straight through to his Sept. 22 hearing so he could avoid weekly appearances and return to an Alberta prison.

"I'd rather go there than sit out at Wilkinson Road," Westad told Ostler, who suggested Westad could get his desire by consulting with his Duncan lawyer.

Westad has already been remanded straight through to a Sept. 22 hearing in Victoria on a Saanich charge of escaping from Wilkinson Road jail March 23, 1975. His Alberta term is for other offences and an escape since that date.

Thetis Lake area resident Lise Bernier, 26, pleaded guilty to a Saanich charge of stealing two inexpensive grocery items Tuesday from the Safeway at 3555 Douglas and was put on probation for six months by Ostler.

Lang said another person, described at different times as a boy and a young man, took food items and handed them to Miss Bernier. She put them in her purse and was stopped outside the store. The young male, meanwhile, had paid for other items.

Ostler said he didn't like the result — "I would rather be sentencing him than you."

Trial by judge and jury was chosen by Donald Neil Buckner, 30, of 877 Ellery, on a two-count charge of trafficking in heroin May 6 in Victoria. His preliminary hearing was scheduled by Ostler for Aug. 5.

Ostler set a fine of $200 for Brent McLellan, 21, of 505 Russell, who pleaded guilty to a Food and Drug Act charge of possession of a drug Nov. 29, 1975. Prosecutor Malcolm Macaulay said police found 16 capsules of MDA when McLellan was checked behind the Imperial Inn, 1961 Douglas.

Fined after pleading guilty to separate charges of impaired driving in Colwood were Frederick Clifford Douglas Cornes, 28, of 3362 Painter, stopped Saturday and fined $450, and Gerald Joseph McIvor, 29, of 2628 Dowler, stopped May 26 and fined $350.

Nuclear Cover-Up?

TOKYO (AP) — Radio Peking says the nuclear test agreement, signed last week between the United States and the Soviet Union is aimed at concealing the stepped-up nuclear race between the two countries. China contends that international agreements to limit testing of nuclear weapons are devices to preserve the overwhelming Soviet and American nuclear superiority

BCGEU Takes Seriously Affiliation Challenge

The B.C. Government Employees Union is responding to petitioners who challenge a recent vote agreeing to affiliation with an Ottawa-based national union.

"We are taking these complaints seriously," said John Fryer, general secretary of the BCGEU, which has appointed a committee to inquire into procedure of conducting the referendum that passed by 60 per cent.

"We have absolutely nothing to hide and we're confident the voting procedure will stand up under the committee's examination," Fryer said.

There are 17 members on the inquiry committee, including eight from Victoria locals of the union. They will send five sub-committees to locals throughout the province to gather submissions from the membership, including two meetings scheduled for Victoria and Nanaimo. They have until August to report.

Vancouver Island opponents to the alliance with the National Union of Provincial Government Employees are encouraged by Owen S. L. Moore, a Saanich liquor store employee, who is not a member of the BCGEU.

Moore has surveyed most liquor stores on Vancouver Island and found support for the petition that seeks to have the referendum vote declared void on grounds that not all members had an opportunity to cast a ballot.

He said there is also a feeling that B.C. public servants would pay more to support the national organization without receiving benefits.

Petitions have been sent to Fryer and the one now circulating will be sent to the Labor Relations Board.

Victoria committee members are Jim Hedgecock, BCGEU regional vice-president; Ted Hibberson, Adam Cochrane, Pat Sloane, Tom McCann, Ken Austin, Ron Ritchings and Roland Lestock-Kay.

THAT WAS A TV SET NOT BODY

An argument in a second floor room of the Douglas Hotel — followed by a loud thump outside on the first floor roof — had city police rushing to the scene late Tuesday looking for a body.

All they found was a mangled television set.

Police discovered someone had tossed the set out the window. It landed on a ventilator pipe.

Both the culprits and the television had disappeared when police arrived.

Saanich Recreation at the Malls

Saanich's recreation department is trying something new this year — bringing its summer programs to two shopping malls for previews.

ing at Hillside shopping mall

The first preview opened this morning at Hillside shopping mall and will close at 9 tonight. Hours will be the same Friday but on Saturday they will be from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The second preview will take place at the Mayfair shopping mall next week on Thursday, Friday and Saturday during the same hours.

Saanich playgrounds will be running a mini playground in the malls, complete with slides, swings and a craft shack. Children of all ages will be able to experience first-hand some of the activities that take place in the playgrounds.

Members of the Hampton senior citizens' centre will be on hand, inviting people to shoot a game of pool or join them in a game of carpet bowling. They will also discuss some of the bus trips that are planned for this summer.

The Cedar Hill Community Centre will be running mini clinics of their summer theatre school, badminton, golf and basketball courses.

The Gordon Head Recreation Centre will demonstrate some of the activities of the centre's summer craft classes. The summer swimming programs will be outlined and those interested in life-saving skills will be able to watch resuscitation demonstrations in the malls.

The Cedar Hill Golf Club will hold mini golf clinics for golf enthusiasts. The club's pro, Bill Goldsworthy, will be on hand to give a few pointers on how to improve your game.

Raiding Parties Feared In Civic Talent Crisis

B.C. municipalities face such an acute shortage of senior administrative personnel over the next few years that they could end up "robbing each other" to fill vacant jobs, members of the Municipal Officers' Association of B.C. were told at their annual conference here on Wednesday.

The warning came from Dennis Young, executive director of the Capital Regional District, during discussion on a major study of manpower needs, education and training for municipal administrators in the province.

The just-published interim report of the Municipal Administration Education Council estimates that 411 senior positions in B.C.'s local government level will have to be filled over the next seven years.

Young, a member of the council which was established two years ago with representation from the MOA, the provincial deputy minister of municipal affairs, the Union of B.C. municipalities and the federal ministry of urban affairs, said the figures indicate a looming "crisis."

"We have an immediate problem and we have to waste no time in dealing with it," he said.

One delegate referred to the report's estimate that 176 management personnel — or 43 per cent of the projected 411 vacanies — will be needed merely to replace administrators who would say "that's enough. I quit."

"Why are so many people leaving?" he asked.

Young said some were getting out because they couldn't "stand the heat in the kitchen," while others were lured by greater remuneration in other fields.

"Those left are the dedicated people who recognize their responsibilities while others still are survivors," he said. "But unless we do something about the new influx into the service we are going to make the jobs of those who do stick around a heck of a lot harder."

A delegate from a small municipality in northern B.C., who told the conference he "stumbled" into municipal administration almost by accident, complained that the career opportunities in local government are virtually unknown in high schools and universities.

"We don't sell ourselves," he added.

Association officials declined to release details of the Education Council's report, pointing out that it still has to be endorsed by other agencies represented on the council and returned with reactions to the urban affairs ministry which largely funded its preparation.

But Norman Brown, a Vancouver consultant who co-authored the study, said in an interview that the manpower crisis it deals with has been developing "for quite a long time."

Among the reasons for the shortage of administrators is population growth and the increasing complexity of local government, he said. For example, the Municipal Act used to be the only statute governing the operations of municipalities in the provinces, but now there are numerous pieces of legislation whose intricacies have to be understood and observed.

Brown said one of the major objects of the study was to plan a program of education and career development for municipal administrators.

"Since the cessation of the courses which used to be offered by the University of B.C. for the certificate of municipal administration — they died about eight years ago — there has been nothing to take their place," he said.

More than 260 delegates are attending the three-day conference which concludes Friday.

Price Watch Set Up

A price-watch has been set up by Vancouver Island's four labor councils to focus attention on cost of living increases.

Victoria Labor Council price-watcher Jack Radford reported that in only two weeks of operation the system had noticed significant jumps in the price of some items, such as the ferry rates and groceries.

For example, he said, soft drinks had been going through a spate of markups locally, where two 26-ounce bottles sell for $1.03 compared with 69 cents in Vancouver.

Information is likely to be forwarded to the B.C. Federation of Labor and the Canadian Labor Congress.

The congress is conducting a national price-watch to reinforce its view that the federal Anti-Inflation Review Board is focussing on wage controls and ignoring such other inflationary areas as profit and prices.

Abortion: Another Viewpoint

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Close to 1,000 abortions in Greater Victoria last year reflects a failure to provide adequate birth control information and counselling, a spokesman for those wanting to repeal abortion law said today.

Women who want abortions are going to get them legally or otherwise, said Mary Anne Erickson. People who would halt safe and legal abortions would have the blood of those women who would inevitably die at the hands of "back alley butchers" on their hands.

Erickson, one of the local co-ordinators for the Canadian Association for Repeal of the Abortion Law, was commenting on a brief presented by the Victoria Pro-Life Society to the provincial government.

That society, which said abortions in Greater Victoria have climbed from 14 in 1969 to 979 last year, condemned the liberal interpretation of the federal abortion law for making abortions easy locally.

Erickson said CARAL does not promote abortions but believes it to be a matter which a woman must decide for herself in consultation with her doctor.

Section 251 of the Criminal Code prohibits abortion except where a hospital abortion committee rules that continuation of the pregnancy would or would be likely to endanger the woman's life or health.

CARAL wants the law erased from the statue books because it is not being applied equitably. It argues that less than 300 hospitals in Canada have established abortion committees. It also claims it is easier for wealthy women or those living in cities to get abortions.

Erickson said abortions underline the failure of governments to provide enough money for birth control information, counselling and research.

She questioned the claim by the Victoria Pro-Life Society that 95 per cent of abortions in B.C. are performed solely for reasons of social or economic convenience.

"Having an abortion is not convenient for anyone," she said. "It's something most women turn to because they can't or don't chose to be parents.

"People are starting to realize that being a parent is something you have to be prepared and want to do."

As to the different rates of abortion approval across the country, she said, "what's happening is that in some places, perhaps in Victoria and Vancouver, the concept of health has been interpreted in a very wide way."

Human beings make mistakes, she said, and when they lead to unwanted pregnancies their health in the broadest sense can be endangered.

Asked if a woman with an unwanted pregnancy has any moral responsibility to the unborn child, she said she believes the woman has a responsibility to do the best thing for herself in the given situation.

"If she feels she can't care properly for a child, she should have an abortion."

Artifacts May Be Reburied

The Songhees band council will meet within the next few days to decide whether to ask the Provincial Museum for the return of artifacts taken from a three-year-old archaeological site on the Maple Bank reserve, Esquimalt Harbor.

Chief John Albany said most of his people appear to be in favor of asking for the return of the artifacts and reburying them on the ancient site.

The artifacts, mostly hunting and fishing items dating to about 200 B.C., are held in trust for the band by the museum.

The band's move to recover the artifacts follows a government decision to stop funding the project.

The project has been carried out under a summer employment program for young area Indians. They worked the site and at the same time received training in archaeological techniques.

"It's too bad they stopped funding this project," said Chief Albany. "It is one of the biggest undisturbed archaeological sites on Southern Vancouver Island.

This was confirmed by Tom Loy, assistant curator of archaeology at the museum.

"It's about three quarters of a mile long and in some places 250 yards in depth," he said. "The ancient Indian settlement was extensive and included the National Defence property."

He said another five years work remained to be done on the site.

"The study is not nearly complete," he said. "We could even work beyond five years on the site without exhausting the material on the site.

Camera Stopper

Main attraction at dockside today when the P and O-Princess Cruises' Island Princess landed at Ogden Point on her first Alaska cruise of the season was piper Rob Cross of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment. He piped the passengers ashore with aplomb, apparently oblivious to the battery of cameras aimed at him.

Indian Grab Fizzles

Fears that Indian dissidents would attempt to stack the annual meeting of the Victoria Indian Friendship Centre Wednesday night proved unfounded.

A spokesman for the centre said today there was no trouble at the meeting attended by between 60 to 70.

Elected to the board of governors of the centre were Mrs. Dolly Seeds for a second term, Barbara Higgins and John Masters.

On Wednesday Sharon Whonnock, a representative of the centre, expressed fears that so-called members of the American Indian Movement would attempt a takeover of the centre's operations.

She had asked city police to step up patrol in the area of the centre at 1292 Gladstone in anticipation of trouble.

She had also indicated two RCMP plainclothes officers would attend.

Her concern was based on what apparently happened in Vancouver last Saturday when a radical Indian group stacked the Vancouver Friendship Centre meeting and, she said, was voted into power. The group had said then Victoria would be their next stop, she said.

The Friendship Centres are funded by municipal, provincial and federal grants to give Indians a meeting place and an opportunity to develop leadership skills.

The centres offer a wide range of recreational, educational and cultural programs for both non-status and status Indians.

New Rates Whack Farmers

Increased commercial ferry rates are going to ruin many small farmers on Vancouver Island, a Cobble Hill rancher said today.

Bill Cameron, owner of one of the province's top Arabian horse breeding ranches and president of the Arabian Horse Association of V.I., said the rates will put out of business about 80 per cent of the small farmers on the island.

"In the past we have paid $8.25 for a bale of Washington alfalfa compared to $4 on the mainland and $2.50 in the interior," he said. "Now we are faced with increased ferry rates which means we will even have to pay more for hay."

He said under the existing commercial rate structure it will be impossible for island farmers to compete with their counterparts on the mainland.

"We ship and sell livestock to the mainland and other parts of Canada," he said. "Under the present set-up we won't be able to do this."

"The new rates are also going to affect consumer prices," he said. "Prices of commodities shipped to the island will all go up."

He noted that some truckers haven't opposed the ferry rates and a few have gone as far as saying that it is about time the rates were increased.

"That's smug talk," he said. "They know their increased costs will be passed on to the consumer. So they are not worrying."

Cameron said he doesn't understand the government's reasoning for increasing the commercial rates.

"The government is telling the worker to restrict their wage demands," he said. "And at the same time it is initiating inflationary policies."

He listed a few examples — automobile insurance rates, ferry rates, hospital co-insurance and sales tax.

These increases are mainly responsible for the high inflation in B.C., he said.

"Ferry rates were boosted without any thought for the long-range effects of such a policy," he said. "In the end it is the consumer who pays."

Cameron noted that B.C.'s ferry system has always been subsidized and it should continue to be so.

Free, Minister Confirms

Transport Minister Jack Davis and the B.C. Ferry Authority can't agree on whether Gulf Islanders can travel between islands free.

According to the ferry authority's schedule islanders can travel between Long Harbor, on Salt Spring Island, to Galiano Island for the standard fare, but can travel free in the opposite direction.

Galiano Chamber of Commerce president Dr. Harvey Armitage called Davis and reports he was assured "at least ten times" that travel in either direction is free for islanders.

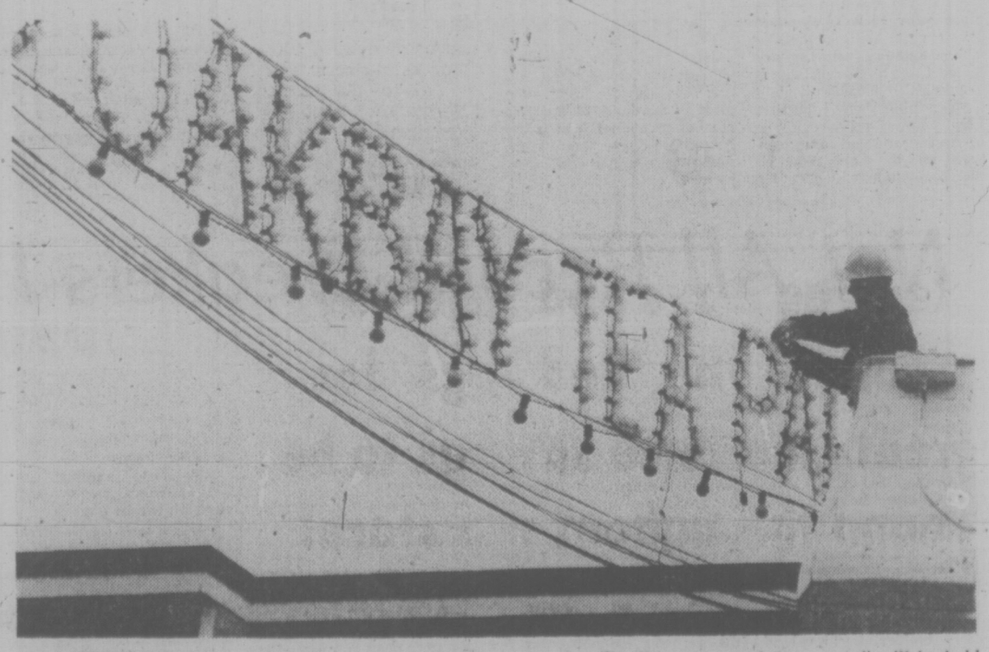
The traditional baron of beef will be served on both days and, in spite of the inflationary trend, will still cost $1.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How do nutritionists compute the vitamin content of different foods? — B.F.

A. Joyce Nordwall, chief dietician at Victoria General Hospital, refers to two major sources. One of them, Composition of Foods — Raw, Processed and Prepared, Agricultural Handbook Number 8, is prepared by the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and gives vitamin and mineral content together with water content, food energy, protein, fat and ash for specific portions of just about every known food.

The other reference work she uses is Geigy Pharmaceutical Scientific Tables, which lists trace vitamins and minerals, those found in minute quantities but known to be essential.



TEA TIME approaches and to make sure everyone knows about it Bill Wright of Oak Bay's municipal staff strings the message in lights over Oak Bay Avenue. Traditional annual "tea party" will be held Saturday and Sunday and there's something for all ages. (John McKay photo)

Shucks, Fella, It's Really No Problem to Go Metric

It's much easier than you think. At least that's what the book says on the metric system and with the Olympic Games soon upcoming in Montreal, it might be nice to know just how high Debbie Brill is jumping when the word is flashed that the Haney lass leaped 1.90 meters.

Well, I'm not one to break the pact and so you'll have to do it yourself. To change metres to feet yu multiply by 3.281. who want it in feet, convert.

Of course, it's not really new. Metrics, that is. They've been doing it in France since 1790, in Holland and Belgium since 1792 and 1795, respectively and, according to a revealing release from The Cooper Tool Group Ltd., there's lots that's interesting in the realm of measurement. The Cooper Tool Group, it should be explained, is supplying all the measuring tape that will be used to establish distances prior to the games and for actually measuring athlete's efforts during the various competitions.

For instance, the Italians got into the metric act in 1859, Portugal followed in 1868 and Germany in 1872, while in North America we are just thinking about it now. As a matter of fact since the first Olympic Games were held in Athens in 1896, track and field events have been measured in metres, kilometres, and all the metrics.

And the metre! It's no simple figure of speech. Specifically it is defined by international agreement (1960) as 1,650,763.73 wavelengths of the orange-red light produced by artificially excited atoms of krypton 86 (an isotope of the element krypton) and replaced the platinum-iridium bar that previously served as the international standard. So there!

As for measurement, did you ever stop to figure out how the pyramids were built back in 6,000 B.C.

Well, the Egyptians had a way of measurement and if an Egyptian bent his arm and stuck out his hand he wasn't reaching for a sandwich, but was measuring a "cubit" which was roughly 19 inches.

A "foot" measured two thirds of a cubit or about 12.6 inches; and outstretched arms — about six feet, and still a form of measurement today, were known as a fathom and that's still in effect in nautical terms.

I had forgotten, too, that the Greeks and Romans had established the Mille or Mile at around 5,000 feet, which is only 280 feet short of the statue mile as we travel it today. The word "mile" comes from the Latin words "milia passuum" which mean a thousand paces. The ancient Roman pace consisted of two steps (about five feet) and 1,000 pacts was nearly the equal of the mile.

The Romans also invented the inch. Their "cubit" consisted of about 26.6 inches, which was divided into two feet of their measure with each foot divided into 12 unciae which is where our word "inch" came from. It was also the measure of the end of the thumb.

Then the Romans got some unexpected help from the Scots. The Romans originally called it the "thumb breadth", but King David of Scotland went two thumbs further and decreed the inch was the mean measure of the thumbs of three men and it didn't matter how long thumb nails were because he stipulated that "thoums are to be meassurit at the rut of the nayle."

It was the English, specifically King Alfred and King Henry I, who established the lineal and cubic foot of capacity and the yard. King Henry decreed a yard to be the distance from the tip of his nose to the end of his thumb.

The decimal system was a product of the French revolution and was declared law in 1790. But even in that era everyone didn't agree with government and in 1793, the weights and measures committee was thanked for its work and Lavoisier, a scientist and principle member of the metric committee, received the most attention. He was sent to the guillotine!

Matter of fact, it was a crime punishable by death not to use the system.

That isn't the precise reason why Canada is going metric and henceforth all your track and field results should be in metric figures and won't be changed in this corner either. No, it's just catching up with the world.

However, if you want the key, try this; from feet to metres multiple by 0.305; from yards to metres x 0.914 and from metres to yards x 1.094. Metres to feet you got earlier.

And our thanks to the Cooper Tool Group Ltd. whose goal, 'tis said, "is to become predominantly metric — not totally metric. The process is called "metrication". Not "metrification". The "if" has been taken out. Thank goodness!

It's About Time Joe Cashed Return Ticket

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Joe McCrea of the Victoria Shamrocks jokingly remarked after his team's 17-9 victory over Nanaimo Timbermen in a Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena Wednesday night, "well I guess I can cash in my return airline ticket now."

This was McCrea's way of saying that he thinks he might have arrived as a full-fledged member of the Rocks off his Wednesday performance. And maybe he has at that. At least he was noticed.

McCrea scored four goals, his highest output of the year, in leading the Irish to their eighth victory in nine starts, their third straight triumph at home and an eight-point bulge over the second-place Vancouver Burrards. McCrea also had an assist.

In coach Nirmal Dillon's opinion, McCrea had arrived earlier. "He has been playing well," said Dillon. "His checking has been good; it's just that the goals weren't coming. Tonight they did."

McCrea comes by his scoring talents honestly enough. He was second high scorer to teammate Ivan Thompson on the Boston Bolts of the National Lacrosse League last year with 130 points on 67 goals and 63 assists. Thompson, for his part, had 207 points and 99 goals while Larry Bell, another ex-Bostonian with the Rocks had 92 points with 28 goals.

Chris Hall is the fourth member of that pro team to be with the Irish this year and, between them, against Nanaimo, they accounted for nine goals.

Thompson and Hall each had a pair while Bell had one. The other Shamrock goals went to Mike Beulac, who had three, Jerry Kustaski, with two, Pete Rushton, Charn Dhillon and Ron MacNeil with singles. Dhillon also had two assists to reach the 300 mark.

There is now a three-way tie for the points lead on the club. MacNeil, Thompson and Beaulac all have 37 points.

Nanaimo, in its first start here, showed a quick, alert club, but weak defensively because of a noticeable lack of size.

But with John Lewis in goal, they were ever dangerous and did manage a second-period run at the Rocks in a game that otherwise was dominated by the Irish. Lewis kept the Timbermen relatively close and, if it hadn't been for his efforts, the Rocks likely would have run up the score.

After spotting the Timbermen an early 2-1 lead, the Shamrocks showed their true intentions by running in four goals in a little over four minutes for a 5-2 margin.

It was 6-3 Shamrocks at the end of the period before a slight letdown brought the Timbermen close at 9-7, thanks to three successive goals by the Wasson brothers, two by Jim and one by Bob. Then McCrea got his second to restore the Rocks' three goal lead at 10-7 by the period's end.

The Irish scored the first three goals of the final period and that proved more than enough despite a pair of power-play golas by Nanaimo by Wayne Sutherland and former Victorian Jim Lynch.

Rookie Norm Baker, playing his first game after suffering a pre-season hand injury, got his first official taste of senior lacrosse, some of it the hard way, in the penalty box. It was while he was there the Timbermen got three of their goals. Or as Dillon said "he needs a little conditioning." Dillon was also displeased with the officiating. He called it inconsistent.

McCrea got the game's first star, Beaulac the second and Lynch, who scored two Nanaimo goals, the third.

Other Nanaimo scorers were Brian Evans, another Eastern import, with two, and Roger Dubyna, the ex-Shamrock, with one. Evans also had three assists.

George Grover, in goal for the Irish, came up with a strong game, particularly in the third period, when he made 17 of 37 saves. Lewis had 35.

The Shamrocks play in Coquitlam Saturday night.

Bates Stumble on Rarity —Nothing-to-Do Weekend

As co-holders of the world men's softball championship, Victoria Bates found it easy to arrange a hectic schedule.

That's why this weekend is a rarity.

It's the one and only weekend of the summer that Bates have to themselves. Committed to 40 games in the Pacific Coast League, plus exhibition and tournament appearances, Bates have "something going" for 19 of the 20 weekends from the first of May until early September.

In addition, of course, there are several mid-week commitments to keep Bates on the go.

One of the latest games arranged for the Canadian champions is a fund-raising game with the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

Sorority members will play Bates June 10 at Central Park with proceeds of the "Fastball Follies" game going to the Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatism Society.

Bates also are involved in their own fund-raising moments. There are expenses involved in playing, and one of their fund-raising efforts is a $50-a-plate dinner, scheduled to be held Friday at the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Bates return to action June 12 and 13 when they meet Vancouver Magicians in a four-game series at Royal Athletic Park.

Canadian Moves To Fourth Round

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Graham MacIntyre of Halifax remained in the running for the British Amateur golf championship Wednesday with two victories, including a 2-up decision over Arthur Dunsmore of England in the third round.

Earlier in the day, he took a 1-up victory over Michel Rey of Switzerland in the second round.

MacIntyre, who tied for 10th place with Nick Weslock of Mississauga, Ont., in the Canadian amateur last year, defeated I. H. Ritchie of Britain 1-up in his first-round match.

Meanwhile, Vinny Giles and Dick Siderowf survived a day of upsets and led American hopes into the fourth round of the competition.

Giles, the defending champion fron Richmond, Va., covered the old course at St. Andrews in 70, two under par, and defeated Michael Miller of Scotland by one hole.

Siderowf,a 38-year-old New York stockbroker who won the title in 1973, scored an easy 6 and 4 win over England's Michael Reece in the morning, but had a tougher fight before overcoming another Englishman, Ian Porteaus, on the 18th.

John Paul Cain, a 40-year-old Houston stockbroker, eliminated David Greig, the pride of Scotland, at the 23rd hole after a duel lasting 5½ hours. Greig was one of eight seeded players in the tournament.

Phoenix Slaps Celtics With Sobering Setback

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ricky Sobers, Phoenix's "other" rookie, upstaged teammate Alvan Adams, the National Basketball Association's rookie-of-the-year Wednesday night.

Thanks to Sobers, the underdog Suns, the longest shot in the ten-team field that began the NBA playoffs this season, beat Boston Celtics 109-107 and tied the best-of-seven series 2-2.

Sobers took charge in the third period of Wednesday's game. With Boston leading 71-70 midway through the quarter, the Suns reeled off 12 consecutive points, eight of them by the embattled rookie. Sobers also fed Keith Erickson for another basket during this spree.

The streak put the Suns ahead 82-71—and they never trailed after that.

Sobers finished with 14 points, while Paul Westphal led the Suns with 28, Adams scored 20 and Garfield Heard had 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Jo Jo White paced the Celtics with 25 points, Dave Cowens had 22 points and 12 rebounds and Paul Silas collected 18 points and four rebounds.

Not All Record-Breakers Happy

TORONTO (CP) — Records continued to fall at the Canadian Olympic swimming trials Wednesday but the record-breakers still weren't satisfied.

"I am looking for a 1:04," said Graham Smith, 17, of Edmonton, after he broke his own Canadian record in the men's 100-metre backstroke with a time of one minute, 5.25 seconds. "I wasn't very pleased with my time."

And Stephen Badger of Winnipeg, the Australian who recently received approval to swim for Canada at Montreal, expressed similar disappointment after setting a Canaian record of 1:54.61 in winning the 200-metre freestyle final.

Paul Midgley of Pointe Claire, Que., scored the day's other record with a 16:08.86 clocking in the 1,500-metre freestyle heats but he has another chance to further lower the mark when that final is run tonight.

Wednesday's other two events did not produce records. Wendy Quirk of Point Cliare wont he women's 400-metre freestyle and Wendy Hogg of Vancouver, formerly Wendy Cook, captured the women's 100-metre backstroke.

Second place behind Smith in the 100-metre backstroke was Mel Zajac of Vancouver in 1:07.94. The Olympic standard for three entries is 1:06.9 and for two entries, 1:08.2. Thus Smith and Zajac qualified but the third-place finisher, Dave Meinbuch of Vancouver, missed with a time of 1:08.00.

In the men's 200 freestyle, Vancouver's Stephen Pickell started the assault on the Canadian record by winning a heat in 1:55.90, beating the former mark of 1:55.92 held by Bruce Robertson of Vancouver.

Badger then lowered the mark to 1:55.66 in his heat and wound up with a 1:54.61 in the final.

Bill Sawchuk of Thunder Bay took second in the final with a 1:55.49 and Pickell took third in 1:56.14. Jim Hett of Kitchener took fourth in 1:56.93. The Olympic standard for three entries is 1:57.2.

The trials continue until Saturday night when the Olympic team will be named.

Men's 200-metre freestyle: 1. Stephen Badger, Winnipeg, 1:54.61 (Canadian record previous record 1:55.66 by Badger in heats); 2. Bill Sawchuk, Thunder BAy, 1:55.49; 3. Stephen Pickell, Vancouver, 1:56.14; 4. Jim Hett, Kitchener, 1:56.93; 5. Michael Ker, Vancouver, 1:57.11; 6. Gary MacDonald, Vancouver, 1:57.33; 7. Alan Davis, Thunder Bay, 1:57.49; 8. Butch Batchelor, Vancouver, 1:57.84.

Men's 100-metre backstroke: 1. Graham Smith, Thunder Bay, 1:05.25 (Canadian record, previous record 1:06.38); 2. Mel Zajac, Vancouver, 1:07.94; 3. Dave Heinbuch, Vancouver, 1:08.00; 4. Ron Campbell, Kitchener, 1:08.35; 5. Camil Chevalier, Quebec, 1:08.40; 6. Ted Fullerton, Vancouver, 1:08.45; 7. Francois Marneau, Quebec, 1:08.93; 8. Jeff Naylor, Pointe Claire, 1:09.30.

Women's 400 freestyle: 1. Wendy Quirk, Pointe Claire,Que. 4:19.81; 2. Shannon Smith, New Westminster, 4:19.91; 3. Wendy Lee, Regina, 4:21.19; 4. Mich Oliver, Toronto, 4:22.41; 5. Liz McKinnon, Thunder Bay, 4:22.45; 6. Anne Jardin, Pointe Claire, 4:23.94; 7. Danielle Balla, Thunder Bay, 4:24.35; 8. Anne-Marie Latta, Thunder Bay, 4:24.90.

Women's 100-metre backstroke: 1. Wendy Hogg, Vancouver, 1:04.88, 2. Cheryl Gibson, Vancouver, 1:04.92; 3. Nancy Garapick, Halifax, 1:05.3; 4. Helen Bolvin, Pointe Claire, 1:05.89; 5. Linse Chenard, Quebec, 1:06.24; 6. Kathy Smith, Toronto, 1:06.77; 7. Ginette Ladoucour, Pointe Claire, 1:06.94; 8. Cathy Raftery, Pointe Claire, 1:06.98.

Oak Bay High Chasing Title

Oak Bay, Nanaimo and G. P. Vanier of Courtenay will represent Vancouver Island in the B.C. high school golf championship starting Saturday at Seymour Golf Club in Vancouver.

The 21-team, 36-hole event concludes Monday at Capilano Golf Club.

David Watt, Jim Rutledge, Rob Lee and John Denizeger make up the Oak Bay squad, which finished second to Nanaimo in the recent Island tourney.

Eric Hamber of Vancouver captured the title in 1975.

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Tommy Davis Impressive In Comeback

By The Associated Press

Maybe Tommy Davis can't roll out of bed on Christmas morning and get a base hit, but he wasn't too bad Wednesday on his first night back after two months of idleness.

The 16-year major league veteran, released by New York Yankees just before the season started, signed on Wednesday with California Angels of baseball's American League.

A few hours later he made his 1976 debut with a tie-breaking two-run pinch single in the eighth inning that sparked the Angels to a 5-2 victory over Minnesota Twins.

In Wednesday's other American League games, New York Yankees whipped Boston Red Sox 7-2, Baltimore Orioles outlasted Cleveland Indians 2-0 in 14 innings, Chicago White Sox nipped Texas Rangers 1-0 in 11, Kansas City Royals edged Oakland A's 4-3 in 12 and Detroit Tigers downed Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

Davis, 37, was supposed to start work with a record promotion comany in Los Angeles this week. However, he received a call from Angels general manager Harry Dalton last Friday and decided to resume his playing career.

Dave Chalk drove in the other three California runs with a two-run single in the second inning and a sacrifice fly following Davis' hit.

Ed Figueroa hurled a four-hitter and the Yankees chased Boston starter Dick Pole in piling up a 6-0 second-inning lead.

The Yankees scored five times in the second on four walks, a hit batter, a run-scoring wild pitch and only two hits, one of them Chris Chambliss' two-run single. Cecil Cooper accounted for Boston's runs with a sixth-inning homer.

Lee May hit a two-run homer in the 14th inning off Cleveland reliever Tom Buskey following a single by Reggie Jackson. Jim Palmer and Wayne Garland combined for an eight-hit shutout, the first against the Indians this season.

The drive by May negated a two-hit pitching performance by Cleveland's Jackie Brown, Dave LaRoche and Buskey through the first 13 innings. Brown gave up only a pair of singles in 9⅓ innings. He has given up only one run in his last 36⅓ innings and his earned run average is 1.87.

Jorge Orta's single for Chicago with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th produced the game's only run and ended a string of 24 consecutive scoreless innings by loser Jim Umbarger.

John Mayberry's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning scored Amos Otis with the winning run for Kansas City.

Milwaukee first baseman George Scott was hit on the back of his left hand by a pitch from Vern Ruhle in the sixth inning and left the game.

In the bottom of the inning, Jim Colborn's first pitch hit Aurelio Rodriguez in the back and both benches poured onto the infield. There were a few heated arguments but no blows were struck.

Juniors Break Out In Brawl

COQUITLAM (CP) — Coquitlam J-Hawks defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies 16-11 Wednesday night in a Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League game that saw 251 minutes in penalties called during a brawl-filled third period.

The J-Hawks took 3-2 and 12-6 period leads before the bench-clearing incident that stemmed from a fight between two players.

Coquitlam was assessed seven game misconducts and Hawks' Rob Broomfield received a match penalty, a major and a 10-minute misconduct. New Westminster received seven game misconducts.

Leading scorers for Coquitlam were Mike Rielie with three goals and Butch Stewart, Dan Tickner, Jim Alward, Mark Valastin, Erick Otterstrom and Brent Whitty, all with two goals each.

A total of 23 schools, including defending-champion Oak Bay and 11 others from the Greater Victoria area, will be competing in the annual Vancouver Island junior high school track and field championships Saturday at Centennial Stadium.

The one-day event gets underway at 10 a.m.

Oak Bay, which won its fifth straight Victoria-area title two weeks ago, was upset in the Island meet last year by Arbutus.

Meanwhile, eight Greater Victoria area schools will be represented in the B.C. senior high school meet which gets under way Friday at Swangard Stadium in Burnaby.

Defending champion Mt. Douglas, coached by Stan Gill, heads the entries. Mt. Doug has qualifed 24 athletes in 31 events and is expected to have a strong argument with Burnaby Central in the scramble for team honors this year.

Burnaby Central has qualifed 30 competitors in 40 events.

Claremont, runnerup to Mt. Doug in the Island meet, has qualifed 16 athletes; Esquimalt 11; Parkland 4; Oak Bay, Dunsmuir and Spectrum two each, and Belmont one.

Only one final — the 3,000 metres — is scheduled for Friday's program, which gets under way at 3 p.m. Saturday's program starts at 11:40 a.m.

TIRADE OK FOR UMPS BUT NOT TV AUDIENCE

HOUSTON (AP) — Manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati Reds says he will not allow network television to wire him for sound anymore during the course of a baseball game. Anderson uttered a few choice expletives during the course of Saturday's game against Los Angeles Dodgers, and when he was wired for sound Monday against Houston, he forgot himself again. Twice Anderson delivered naughty words, but this time his mike was dead. "Klu (coach Ted Kluszewski) was standing next to me and was afraid to say anything and George Scherger stayed down at the other end of the dugout like I had the plague," Anderson said.

Oaks, Seaboard Staying Atop McGinnis Loop

Royal Oak Sporting Goods and Seaboard Construction maintained their one-two pace atop the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League with victories Wednesday night at Central Park.

Royal Oak, sparked by the three-hit pitching of Ken Fox, downed Ingraham Hotel 4-1 and Seaboard, helped by four opposition errors, defeated Victoria Molsons, 8-2.

Successive two-out singles by Bob Bugslag, Rick Bate, Wayne Scotney and Mike Wallace provided Roal Oak with three runs in the seventh inning to break a 1-1 deadlock.

Scott Sinclair and Glen Kilduff set the batting pace for Seaboard, each with two hits in three trips to the plate. Sinclair, who had a triple in the first inning, scored once and drove in one run while Kilduff scored twice.

At Hyacinth Park, GSV Combos downed MacDonalds Furniture Seniors 10-5 and Ingraham Hotel topped CJVI Vicettes 9-4 in Victoria Senior Women's League play.

Diane Sluggett set the batting pace for Combos with a three-for-four performance, including two doubles, to score twice and drive in two runs. Carol Newcombe and Sandy Milliken combined to pitch a three-hitter for Combos.

Linda Newcombe sparked Ingraham by hurling a three-hitter while Julie Hood topped batting with a triple and a single in three trips to the plate to score three runs.

In Heywood Men's League play at Heywood Avenue Park, Castle Properties edged Hygrade Radio 1-0 as John Coccioloni scored the lone run of the game on a wild pitch in the eighth inning. Ross Johnson picked up the pitching win with a four-hitter.

Sidney Hotel bumped Victoria Chiefs 16-2 in a Sidney Men's Association game at Sanscha Park.

In the Macdonald Park Men's League, London Boxing Club edged William Head 6-5 in the botton of the ninth, James Bay tripped Trafalgar 1-1 and Cliff McKay blanked Mayfair, 11-0.

Shaky Greaves Able to Survive

Despite committing seven errors, Greaves Movers managed to trip Kubiceks Home Service 11-10 in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Wednesday at Lambrick Park.

Roy Moretti picked up his third victory of the season by pitching shutout relief in the seventh inning.

Coach Terry Karpiuk singled in both the tying and winning run during Greaves' four-run seventh frame.

Expos Drop Colbert

MONTREAL (CP) — Nate Colbert, a veteran first baseman-outfielder has been given his outright release by Montreal Expos, the National League baseball club announced Wednesday. Replacing Colbert on the club's 25-man roster will be infielder Jim Cox, who had a .354 batting average for Denver Bears of the Class AAA American Association.

Cedar Hill Holds Junior Golf Lead

Cedar Hill defeated Glen Meadows 6-3 this week to maintain its hold on first place in the Greater Victoria Junior Inter-Club Golf League.

Second-place Gorge Vale defeated Uplands 5½-3½ while Royal Colwood edged Victoria 5-4.

Stu Holroyd packed the key punch in Gorge Vale's decision when he defeated two-time city junior champion Jim Rutledge 7 and 6.

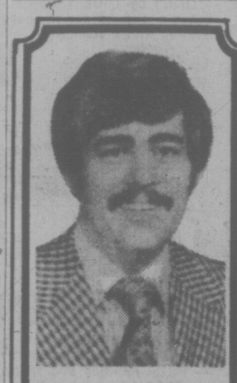
Lions Get Stillwagon

TORONTO (CP) — Veteran defensive tackle Jim Stillwagon of Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League has been traded to British Columbia Lions for future considerations, the Argonauts have announced. Stillwagon, 27, played five season with Toronto. He saw limited action over the last two seasons with knee and thumb injuries.



CLOTH TALK
Peter George

Have you ever worn a made-to-measure suit? Many men have to because of unusual sizing problems. Every man should consider it even if a proper fit can be obtained "off the rack."

Each major suit manufacturer has hundreds of cloths in their suit range. No one store — no matter how large — will carry every cloth and size offered by the manufacturer. When you are unable to locate just the colour of fabric you want off the rack, ask to see the manufacturer's swatch book.

Samuelsohn, for example, offer over 400 cloths in their suit and sports coat range. Freedman, one of Canada's largest tailors, have over 1000 cloths in stock at any one time. We offer a made-to-measure service from both those houses which can satisfy nearly every request.

This factory custom-made service to your own measurements will cost you $30-$50 more than a similar garment off the rack. The benefits, however, will save you much shopping frustration and a perfect fit for sharp appearance. There is no adequate substitute for either of those qualities.

We are professionals!

Post-Operation Discus Record

ROME (AP) — Silvano Smeon, an Italian discus thrower who two years ago underwent rare heart surgery to keep competing, has set a national record at 213 feet seven inches.

Simeon, 30, is scheduled to compete in the Olympic Games at Montreal.

Players' Opinions Vary On Violence in Hockey

CASTLE HARBOR, Bermuda (CP) — For the second day in a row the National Hockey League Players' Association discussed violence in the sport but came to no conclusion about the matter Wednesday.

Alan Eagleson of Toronto, executive-director of the association, said Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, would meet the group today to present his views on violence.

Campbell, along with Bill Wirtz, chairman of the NHL board of governors and president of Chicago Black Hawks, were among league officials who were scheduled to meet the players Wednesday. However, their flight was delayed and the meeting was rescheduled.

Eagleson said the player representatives of the 18 clubs discussed violence for about a half hour following a two-hour meeting Tuesday on the same subject.

Later, they were part of a presentation put on by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"There are some player reps who have the view that fighting should be eliminated completely from hockey and players who fight be ejected from the game and given suspensions," Eagleson said in a telephone interview.

"There are others who aren't quite as strong in their views. Most, however, want to get rid of the goon aspect in hockey, the enforcer thing, which sees a few players deliberately starting fights. They all acknowledge that something is wrong in the game and they want to correct it."

Stepped-up action against violence appears to date from last fall when Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry instructed police and Crown attorneys to lay more charges against professional hockey players who commit what are alleged to be criminal offences on the ice.

Campbell has suggested a crackdown on players who deliberately initiate fights by assessing game misconduct penalties to the instigators of fights.

Children Betrayed: Greenpeace

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The Greenpeace Foundation Wednesday denounced Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau as a "betrayer" of millions of children for continuing to sell nuclear technology abroad.

The charges were delivered at Habitat by foundation president Bob Hunter.

"The Prime Minister of Canada will some day have to look his own children in the eye — and our children too — when they ask, 'why do we have leukemia from Strontium 90, Daddy?'," Hunter said. "Mr. Trudeau is the betrayer of his children and millions of other children around the world."

Hunter accused Trudeau of brushing aside a call for an end to the use of nuclear power plants issued at the conference by 24 leading world thinkers and a forum of non-governmental organizations.

Trudeau told newsmen earlier this week Canada would continue to export nuclear technology to "the world "starved for energy" as long as nations agree to tighten safeguards against building nuclear weapons.

"The Greenpeace Foundation can only express horror and disgust that the leader of the nation hosting habitat — an attempt to save the world not destroy it — should so hypocritically defend the wealthy and powerful nuclear industry while admitting he is taking all sorts of wild chances rolling the genetic dice whose fall will shape the lives of generations to come," Hunter said.

Hunter noted India used material from a Canadian-supplied nuclear reactor to build a nuclear device set off in 1974. Trudeau, he said, had admitted Canada knew all along Indian might choose to build a bomb.

HABITAT '76

Counter-Sessions Not What They Were Supposed to Be

VANCOUVER (CP) — Habitat Forum, the non-government conference operating parallel to the official United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, might not be as successful as organizers hoped.

When the Forum opened a week ago, four days earlier than the formal conference, organizers hoped it would provide a useful and open stage for the voicing of opinions and ideas from more than 10,000 concerned people from around the world.

Today, only about half of the anticipated participants have registered, and some are complaining that the Forum isn't what it was billed to be.

Although nearly all are unanimous that the organizing committee—the Association in Canada Serving Organizations for Human Settlements—has been successful in preparing the physical facilities for the conference, some complaints have been raised about the carnival atmosphere of the proceedings.

Habitat Forum is taking place at Jericho Beach, about four miles from downtown, in five converted RCAF seaplane hangers now owned by the city.

Under the direction of Habitat Forum producer Al Clapp, the site was decorated and prepared for about $900,000 in federal funds from the Canadian Habitat secretariat. An additional $750,000 was provided for guest participants and speakers.

One of the near-unanimous complaints from participants is that the hangars are too cold. Vancouver has been hit with low temperatures in the last week and there were no provisions made for heating the hangars.

As a result, hundreds of persons are going to meetings with gray army blankets wrapped around their shoulders.

The blankets were donated by the armed forces, which is writing them off as a form of overseas aid. One Canadian was, turned away when he asked for one, with the explanation that they were for foreigners only.

However, more disturbing than the peripheral shortcomings is the fact that some delegates say the Forum is doomed because the meetings and workshops which were supposed to provide so much interchange have failed to spark any real communication.

The important workshop on co-operation between non-government organizations and governments, for example, began Tuesday with most speakers talking about their country's approach to the general issues confronting Habitat, with no reference being made to the question at hand.

Delegates have complained that what should be the Forum's heart, the plenary hall, has become little more than a sounding board for speakers to preach to the already converted.

★ ... AND MAIN MEETING 'A WASTE OF TIME'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Habitat is a waste of time and money because the developed nations are not prepared to make concessions to the third world, Otieno Ooro, of the Organization of African Trade Union Unity said Wednesday.

A firm commitment to a change in the world economic order is needed if the conference is to be a success, he said.

Previous UN conferences on food, the environment and trade have failed to achieve this change and, it is unlikely Habitat will, he added.

Third World countries should realize talking at Un conferences is futile and begin using pressure tactics to get self-determination from the rich nations, he claimed.

Nuclear Energy 'Not Answer'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maurice Strong, chairman of Petro-Canada, told a large and enthusiastic crowd at Habitat Forum Wednesday that it is folly to rely nuclear energy to provide the future energy needs of the world.

Strong told a overflow crowd of about 2,500 at the forum's plenary hall that there is no miracle cure for the world's energy problems and that in pursuing nuclear energy, "we are taking risks (with consequences) most of us have not really acknowledged."

Strong, who was a key organizer in the 1972 United Nations environment conference in Stockholm, said the world must use a mix of approaches to overcome its energy crisis.

Conservation of existing power sources is clearly the best initial approach and that the development of solar and wind energy must be more thoroughly studied as alternatives to existing power sources, he said.

Strong said in the applause-punctuated speech that there must be a multiplicity of options available for energy development and that the world's people must not be caught in a brureaucracy of centraliziation.

He said at a news conference following the speech that although he did not approve of the spread of nuclear power, that if there is a case for it anywhere, it's in the developing world.

Strong said in his speech that despite energy shortages and energy wasting, the energy consumption of some world cities will have to increase.

Blistering Attack On Big Companies

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Australian trade unionist levelled a blistering attack against multi-national corporations Wednesday night, saying they epitomize everything that is destructive and wasteful.

"The role of the multi-nationals has been to be predatory, rapacious and inhuman," Jack Mundey told a panel discussion at Habitat Forum.

Mr. Mundey told the discussion at Forum, a non-government parallel conference to the UN-sponsored Habitat meeting, that multi-nationals often have more power than sovereign countries. He accused some multi-nationals of playing an active role in the downfall in the last few years of governments in Chile and Australia.

The former head of the Australian Builders and Laborers Union did not name specific companies, but said all multi-nationals are interested in "maximizing profits while showing no concern for finite resources."

There is "no magical knock-out" punch that can be delivered to eliminate multi-nationals, but workers around the world should mobilize public opinion against the large companies. If that happens, Mr. Mundey said, governments would listen to the public and impose tough restrictions on multi-nationals.

Carriers have fun trip to Vancouver

A total of ninety-seven newspaper carriers and adult supervisors recently took off from Victoria for a day of fun in Vancouver. Their first stop was Stanley Park Aquarium, where they saw the sights and the famous Killer Whale Show. After the show they crossed the Lions Gate Bridge to the Grouse Mountain Gondola Skyride and were whisked to the top of Grouse Mountain for a chicken dinner at the Grouse Nest Lodge.

Next stop was PLAYLAND for a barrel of fun on the thrilling rides. The trip was awarded to each carrier as a prize in a spring promotion which was open to all carriers. The youngsters arrived back in Victoria around 10 p.m., tired, but happy.

Socred Opposes MLA Pay Cut

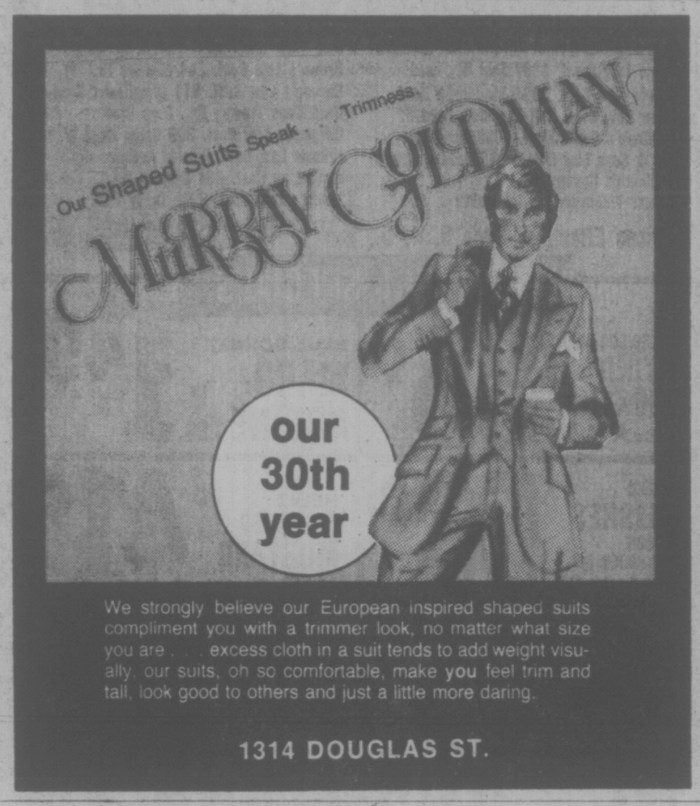
Cyril Shelford (SC — Skeena) broke ranks with the government Wednesday night and voted against legislation which will reduce the salaries of MLAs, cabinet ministers and some executive assistants by 10 per cent.

"I figure the pay for the MLAs is needed to get around and meet all the constituents," Shelford said following the vote.

He was joined by Liberal leader Gordon Gibson and members of the NDP in voting against the bill during third reading in the legislature.

Shelford said some MLAs travel 20,000 miles a year to cover their ridings, and after taking expenses from their $24,000-a-year salaries "I think a member would make between $6,000 and $8,000 a year."

He said other Social Credit members were opposed to the bill but instead of voting against it, were absent.



We strongly believe our European inspired shaped suits compliment you with a trimmer look, no matter what size you are . . . excess cloth in a suit tends to add weight visually, our suits, oh so comfortable, make you feel trim and tall, look good to others and just a little more daring.

Powers Protested

The provincial government was told Wednesday to withdraw its anti-inflation legislation until the Supreme Court of Canada rules on the constitutionality of the federal anti-inflation legistlation.

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria) told the legislature the provincial bill is "Iron Curtain legislation" because of its wide powers.

The Anti-Inflation Act permits the government to sign an agreement with Ottawa in the battle against inflation and empowers the cabinet to freeze all wages and prices.

B.C. is one of the provinces challenging the federal legislation before the supreme court on the grounds that wage and price controls are the domain of the provinces.

"There is no place in a constitutional democracy for a government giving itself this type of power," Barber said.

He criticized regulations which he said the government refused to define and which permit government agents to enter "private homes and businesses, day or night, to seize records."

FERRY FOOD QUALITY UNDER STUDY

Transport Minister Jack Davis assured Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace Wednesday that the quality of food service on B.C. ferries is under review.

Wallace said that as of June 1, food served in the ferries' cafeterias was no longer cooked in the galleys but was reheated frozen food.

He said he has had 50 complaints about the inferior quality of the food under the new system.

Wallace Loses Deletion Bid

Expropriation powers in the provincial government's proposed B.C. Buildings Corporation Act should be eliminated, Conservative leader Scott Wallace told the legislature Wednesday.

An amendment introduced by Dr. Wallace to delete the word expropriation from the bill was defeated by a vote of 24 to 13 with all opposition members supporting the amendment.

The bill would allow the government to set up a Crown corporation responsible for the building, renting and leasing of provincial buildings.

The legislation would also give the corporation power to acquire land and buildings through expropriation or other methods.

Wallace said the Social Credit party campaigned in last December's provincial election on the basis of individual freedom and the expropriation powers are a direct contradiction of the campaign theme.

"Expropriation is a very, very serious thing," said Liberal leader Gordon Gibson.

Opposition leader Bill King said there would have been a great public outcry if the previous New Democratic party administration had introduced a bill with such awesome powers.

RECORD FARM INCOME

The annual report of the provincial department of agriculture showed B.C. farmers had a gross income increase of 7.8 per cent last year, but operating costs increased nine per cent.

Gross farm cash receipts increased $28 million to a record of $395 million in 1975.

The report said food price increases at the retail level during 1975 were due mainly to increased costs "beyond the farm gate" and the proportion of income spent on food remained steady at about 17.5 per cent.

Under the Agricultural Credit Program, brought in by the former New Democratic Party government, the government guaranteed 81 loans and paid partial reimbursement of interest to 3,774 farmers. The government pays the difference between about eight per cent interest and the bank interest rate.

The report showed the biggest increase in production last year came from the dairy sector where milk production increased to 1,086 million pounds, up 6.5 per cent from 1974. Number of cows increased by 7,000 to 90,000 head.

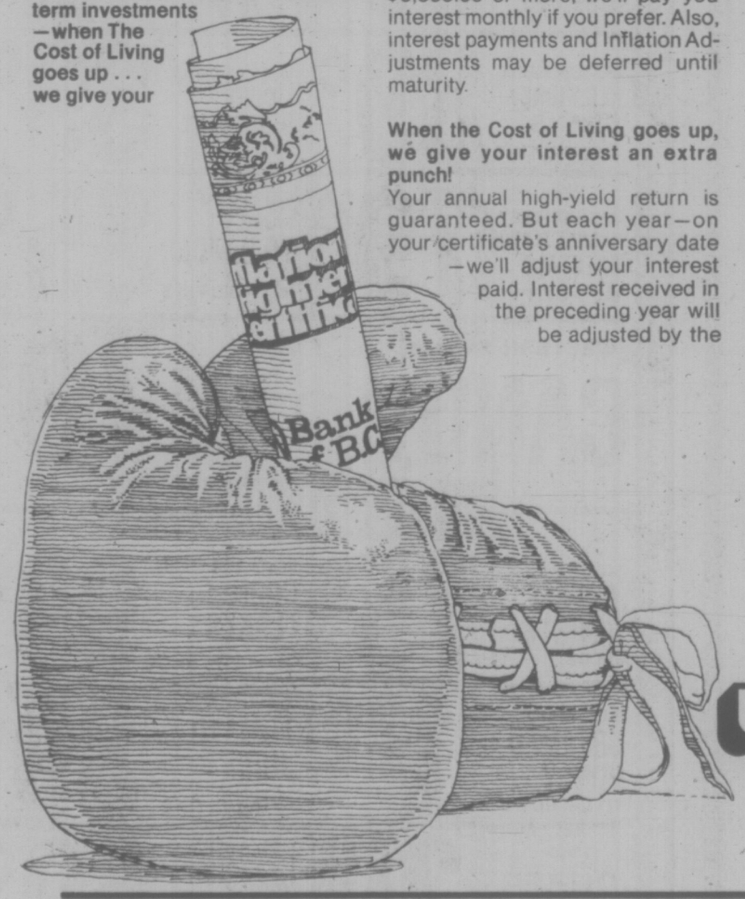
Inflation Fighter Certificates

Inflation is still with us. But there's still time to fight back with Bank of B.C. Inflation Fighter Certificates. With these guaranteed high-yield term investments —when The Cost of Living goes up . . . we give your interest an extra punch!



1 to 5 year terms. Guaranteed high-yield returns.
Deposit $1,000.00 or more for terms of one, two, three, four or five years. We'll pay you guaranteed high-yield interest returns semi-annually on June 30th and December 31st. Or on deposits of $5,000.00 or more, we'll pay you interest monthly if you prefer. Also, interest payments and Inflation Adjustments may be deferred until maturity.

When the Cost of Living goes up, we give your interest an extra punch!
Your annual high-yield return is guaranteed. But each year—on your certificate's anniversary date —we'll adjust your interest paid. Interest received in the preceding year will be adjusted by the increase in The Consumer Price Index as published by Statistics Canada.

Here's how the Inflation Fighter Adjustment works.
We don't know what the increase in The Consumer Price Index will be next year, but—just as an example—let's say it is 10%. If you deposited $1,000 at a guaranteed annual rate of 9%, your return would be as follows:

Guaranteed interest return:	$90.00
Inflation Fighter adjustment:	9.00
Total interest paid:	$99.00
or 9.9%

Note: This is an example only. Check your nearest branch of Bank of B.C. for current rates.

Cremation a 'Horrendous Shock'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Parents of a woman who died in mysterious circumstances at Roberts Creek July 12, 1974, experienced "horrendous shock" four days later when they learned her body was cremated before they viewed her, the B.C. Supreme Court was told Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McNeil, who testified in their suit against Forest Lawn Memorial Services Ltd., seek damages for mental anguish for going ahead with cremation despite their wishes that there would first be a private family viewing.

W. H. Edmonds, counsel for Forest Lawn, told Mr. Justice J. G. Gould the firm admits there was an unintended mistake in having the woman cremated before the agreed viewing was to take place but denied that this was done willfully or wrongfully.

The court was told that the daughter, Mary Margaret Jones, 33, died at nearby Roberts Creek under what was said at the time to involve violence and peculiar circumstances.

A male friend of the woman was charged with manslaughter but following an inquest the charge was stayed. It was re-laid after the father voiced his dissatisfaction with the investigation but was again stayed following a preliminary hearing in which a judge refused to commit the man for trial for lack of evidence.

McNeil testified Wednesday that the intended view of their daughter was important to both him and his wife because it would have determined for them that it was their daughter who had died and not someone else.

He said that after RCMP told him of his daughter's death, he and his wife went to Forest Lawn and arranged to have the body brought there for cremation but there was to be a private viewing for them.

Jack Unger, Forest Lawn funeral director, said he instructed company dispatcher William Reid that a viewing was to take place but Reid testified he did not remember the instructions were given.

Negotiations At Kaiser Break Off

SPARWOOD (CP) — Negotiations between the United Mine Workers of America and Kaiser Resources broke down Wednesday, a union spokesman said.

The spokesman said that talks broke off with no plans for further negotiations. The union has been on strike since May 15.

"We are demanding a 17.42-per-cent increase in a one-year agreement and refuse to settle for any less than a coal miner is entitled to," the spokesman said.

He said the union has a copy of a letter sent from the B.C. Employers' Council, to which Kaiser belongs, to Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the federal Anti-Inflation Board. He said the letter indicated that the union and Kaiser might have settled on a 15-per-cent increase on the advice of the board.

The spokesman said the union believes the employers' council had convinced Kaiser not to settle on a raise of 15 per cent.

Leger Pays Visit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Governor-General Jules Leger paid his first visit to city hall Tuesday. Following a private meeting with Mayor Art Phillips. Leger, accompanied by his wife, paid similar visits to city halls in New Westminster and North Vancouver.

Miller Remanded

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Ronald James Miller, 22, serving five years for robbery, appeared in provincial court Wednesday on a charge of assault causing bodily harm to a B.C. Penitentiary guard during a hostage-taking incident Tuesday. He was remanded to June 9.

Hostess Raped

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 22-year-old Habitat hostess was dragged into the bushes and raped at knifepoint as she was returning to her east end home late Tuesday. A suspect was arrested nearby after policed were alerted by a neighbor of the victim, police said.

GRAINWORKERS WIN 83 CENTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's 600 grain workers were awarded a wage increase of 83 cents an hour Wednesday for a 13-month period that ends this December.

The binding arbitration award was handed down by H. Landon Ladd of Burlington, Ont., and covers grain workers at five grain terminals in Vancouver.

Ladd, a former international vice-president of the International Woodworkers of America, was named last December as a special consultant to the terminals.

The union and grain companies agreed to Ladd serving as a mediator-arbitrator, a move which Labor Minister John Munro hailed as a "breakthrough in Canadian labor relations."

He awarded the grainworkers what he termed virtual parity with the Longshoremen's Union and a common expirty date. He also gave the grainworkers union a hiring hall clause.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Wednesday that grainworkers had been awarded a base labor rate of $8.03 an hour and $8.43 for trades, exactly the same rates as the longshoremen have.

Ladd's award gave them relative parity which he found to be 83 cents an hour on the grainworkers' present base rates of $7.02 an hour for labor and a top rate of $8.02.

Scientists Probe for Mystery Monster

By JOHN NOBLE WILFORD
New York Times

There is something irresistible about the Loch Ness monster, like a mountain unscaled, a river unnavigated, a flying object unidentified.

Over the years, the elusive and unexplained phenomenon has attracted countless seekers to the deep, cold and murky waters of the Scottish lake. They have stood patient watch with cameras and telescopes, hovered overhead in autogyros, baited the waters with sex attractants, descended in tiny submarines and probed the depths with sonar and underwater cameras.

Now, after centuries of legend and years of amateurish observation and scientific debate, a team of engineers and scientists is to undertake what is planned as the most thorough and technologically sophisticated investigation to date into the phenomenon, whatever it is.

The expedition this summer was organized by Dr. Robert H. Rines, a Boston lawyer and educator, and is sponsored by the Academy of Applied Science of Boston and The New York Times. Rines, trained as a physicist as well as a lawyer, is dean of the Franklin Pierce Law Center, Concord, N.H., and president of the 350-member Academy of Applied Science, which was formed in 1963 to support unusual areas of research and promote closer relationships between technologists and the rest of society.

More than two dozen people, mostly Americans but also including Canadians, Scots and Englishmen, are expected to participate, with the first contingent scheduled to depart this weekend for the British Isles. Zoologists from Harvard, Cambridge, the Smithsonian Institution and the British Museum of Natural History serve as advisers.

The purpose of the Academy of Applied Science-New York Times Loch Ness Expedition is to obtain, by means of advanced underwater cameras, sonar and other electronics, clear and detailed photographs of the creature so that zoologists can make a positive identification.

In the past, the reported sightings and few grainy photographs have yielded nothing better than an uncertain composite portrait of a creature supposedly having a small head with several protuberances (nostrils?), a long serpentine neck and a large lumpish body with diamond-shaped flippers.

Hardly convincing scientific evidence, according to the sceptics, who suspect that the image of the so-called monster exists more in the eyes of beholders than in reality. But encouragement enough for the believers to wonder if they are not on the trail of some marvelous freak of nature, a survivor from prehistoric time, perhaps, or a species of common aquatic animals masquerading in some grotesque form.

The current expedition may take two or three weeks or all summer. Success may be impossible this year with the means at hand. But the leaders of the expedition are determined.

"We're not going to give up until we've got a solution to the mystery," vowed Rines.

And the participants seem quietly optimistic, though they decline to speculate about what they expect to find.

"I'm an experimenter," commented Dr. Harold E. Edgerton, emeritus professor of engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the party's senior expert in underwater photography. "I never decide anything until I go out in the real world and see what I see. There's no telling what we'll find, no telling."

Members of the expedition are, however, generally convinced that there is something strange and evanescent in Loch Ness and that it is discoverable.

Their belief has been strengthened by the refinement and re-interpretation of some photographs and sonar records taken in 1972 and 1975. In fact, this gave the impetus to this summer's expedition, attracting more serious-minded scientists and technicians to the quest.

The most distinct pictures, taken by another party led by Rines, seemed to show a flipper attached to a body. Other photographic evidence suggested that the object was moving. Indeed, it seems that an agitated creature may have knocked over one camera and kicked silt over the lens of another.

Independent scientists who examined the new data, while remaining cautious, were led to recommend further and more intensive research. One, Dr. George R. Zug, curator of reptiles and amphibians at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, concluded:

"I believe these data indicate the presence of large animals in Loch Ness but are insufficient to identify them. This new evidence should serve to encourage research on the natural history of Loch Ness and its plant and animal inhabitants, and remove the stigma of 'crackpot' from any scientist or group of scientists who wish to investigate the phenomena in Loch Ness."

Months were spent planning where the Loch Ness expedition will look and what it will look with.

The search will be concentrated in Urquhart Bay, an arm of the 23-mile-long lake where 57 of 258 "reliable" sightings between 1961 and 1970 were reported and where Rines obtained the tantalizing photographs in 1972 and 1975.

The bay, near the village of Drumnabrochit, is thought by some experts to be where the creatures feeds on salmon swimming to and from spawning tributaries of the Loch. A widely held assumption is that the creatures are predators. Loch Ness has only sparse vegetation, but it seems with salmon, sea trout, char and eel.

It is further assumed that if the so-called monster is a living creature there should be not just one but a school.

At Urquhart Bay the party will work fron boats a few hundred feet offshore. The will lower a complex of cameras and lights to a depth of some 40 feet, with divers making sure they are in proper position.

A television camera will provide the first round-the-clock surveillance and videotape record of life in the Loch. In a cottage near the pier, a member of the expedition will monitor the TV screen at all times.

If something does appear on the screen, a pair of submerged cameras, one black-and-white and the other color, will be triggered to capture stereoscopic images of the object. Resolution of such pictures should be better than anything yet achieved in searching for the monster.

Among the other instruments to be deployed is a 16-mm camera with free-running color film, snapping pictures about every 15 seconds This is Ederton's "old reliable," a camera he developed and has used extensively to photograph marine life, sunken treasure and shipwrecks, including the Civil War ironclad, the Monitor, lying offf Cape Hatteras.

Another of Edgerton's inventions, the modern strobe

Elderly Gorilla Stays Put

CHICAGO (UPI) — How do you move the fourth oldest male gorilla in captivity?

Mark Rosenthal, curator of mammals at Lincoln Park Zoo, says you don't.

So when the zoo's 25 orangutans, chimpanzees and gorillas were being tranquilized and carried on hospital litters to new quarters in the great ape house today, Sinbad, the dean of the Lincoln primate collection, remained behind.

"It's a risky business to transfer him. He's too valuable a specimen to risk placing under anaesthetic," Rosenthal said.

Sinbad, 29, is fairly elderly for a gorilla, Rosenthal said.

Also, the new quarters were constructed for group living and Sinbad is used to living alone, he said.

So, when the new great ape house is dedicated Monday by Mayor Richard Daley, Sinbad will be staying home in his old quarters.

Scientists to Search Loch

light, also widely used in underwater exploration, will serve as one of the sources of artificial illumination so critical to photography in the peat-staned waters of Loch Ness. The time-lapse camera will be synchronized with the flashers of the 100-watt seconds strobe light. The other cameras will operate in conjunctions with continuous tungsten light sources, all powered by cable from the shore.

Even with the artificial lighting, twice as powerful as in previous attempts, photography in the loch is expected to be limited to a range of about 30 to 40 feet from the camera. Success could depend, therefore, on how lucky the expedition is in planting its cameras where the creatures are.

But that kind of luck may not be so necessary, according to several photographic experts in the expediition. It just may be that there is something about the camera systems — the lights, the sound of the electric motors, something — that acts as a lure.

Two nonphotographic approaches to the search are also planned this summer — one sonar (or echo sounding), the other infrared reconnaissance.

Dr. George Newton, an engineering professor at M.I.T., is the first to concede that the infrared search is "a very long shot." From a perch on Urquhart Castle overlooking the bay he plans to scan the surface waters with a high-resolution infrared instrument which should be able to detect differences in temperature of less than a degree.

Since nostril-like features are prominent in some descriptions of the monster's head, it has been suggested that the creatures may not need to surface completely to breathe. This could explain the relatively rare sightings. And if that is the case, it might be possible, through infrared technology, to detect the presence of the monsters by their warm exhalations.

Martin Klein, president of Klein Associates, Inc., of Salem, N.H., an undersea search and survey company, is directing the expedition's sonar operations, which, he said, would consist of three phases.

One phase will be to make a general survey of the bottom topography of Loch Ness. A motorboat will crosscross the lake in regular patterns, trailing a torpedo-shaped side-scan sonar device behind it. The sonar will transmit sound pulses to the bottom and then receive and time the reflected signals. The slightest differences in the time of the return signals can be translated into variations in depth contours.

By bouncing similar sonar pulses off the steep walls at the sides of the lake, Klein will look for possible underwater caves where the creatures might dwell. He thought he saw evidence for such caves in a brief 1970 survey, but now he is not so sure.

A stationary sonar device, deployed in the area of photographic operations, will serve as an additional lookout for the Loch Ness Monster. If something should pass through the sonar beam it could be identified quickly as a moving object. If at the same time a camera photographed a similar object, one piece of evidence would tend to corroborate the other. But only the photograph could lead to an identification of the object.

Martin Klein, directing the sonar operations, said that the sonar planned for this summer's expedition has a higher resolution and longer range than the system previously used. The quality of the return signals should be sufficient, he added, to distinguish between a large solid body and a school of fish.

A third sonar objective will be to search for skeletal remains. This assumes, of course, that the monsters are vertebrates, which may not be a valid assumption. It also assumes they have not been buried too deep in bottom silt and can be picked up on the solar scan.

No monster bones have ever been found in or around the lake, and Dr. Christopher McGowan, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, realized that the search this summer may be futile.

"The basic aim of our experiment is very simple, but the trick is to pull it off," Dr. McGowan remarked. "And even if we get lucky and find something, the recovery will be difficult."

If there are sonar traces of possible bones, McGowan explained, the first step would probably be to lower a television camera to be sure what was there. If the bones are not too deep, less than 200 feet, say, divers might go after them; deeper, and it would probably take a submarine with grappling devices.

That would be expensive, and probably be planned for another year, but McGowan and other zoologists would like nothing better than to have in their hands some bones to aid in identifying the creature.

Ukrainian Students, Prof., All Cheated

MOSCOW (UPI) — The director of the Ukraine Agricultural Academy permitted widespread cheating and did some plagiarizing of his own, the Communist party newspaper Pravda says.

Pravda also said Dean Yurchishin handed out jobs freely to members of his family. An investigation showed that no fewer than 160 teachers at the school were his relatives, it said.

The newspaper reported "grave violations" of regulations at the Kiev Academy and said illegal councils were set up to hand out degrees.

Investigators who checked nine theses at random found all dishonestly used other persons' works, the newspaper said. One thesis was used by three different persons.

Pravda also accused Yurchishin of using unattributed works by other scientists in his own thesis for a doctorate.

It said the abuses were condoned by the Communist Party Commitee at the academy.

Yurchishin was expelled from the Communist Party and the academy's party committee secretary received a strict reprimand, Pravda said. All degrees granted by the councils are being reviewed.

Smoking. What are you going to do about it?

If you've given up smoking more times than you'd like to remember, the chances are you enjoy it so much you don't want to give it up at all.

The question is, what are you going to do about it?

You've probably tried cigarettes that promise extra mildness and found yourself checking every once in a while to see if they were still lit. Which brought you right back to your regular brand.

Now, there is Vantage.

Vantage gives you the taste you want. The full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. But here's the big difference. Only Vantage has the specially designed filter that gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. You don't have to work hard getting the smoke through so that all the joy of smoking is lost.

Rich taste and easy draw. Good reasons for any thoughtful smoker to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked — avoid inhaling. 11 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

Legion's Torch Heading East

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The petite teenager and the First World War veteran stood together, holding a symbolic lighted torch.

"In the name of God and peace we say go," said the padre.

Veteran Bill Hudson handed the torch to Sharon Kemble of the YM-YWCA's Flying Y Club.

And so began the torch-bearing trek from Victoria to Winnipeg, marking the 50th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Legion.

The young runner, one of eight to take part in the Victoria stretch on the cross-western Canada sally, began her leg from Mile 0 in Beacon Hill Park, escorted by two police motorcyclists and the two Legion vehicles that will make the trip to Winnipeg.

A similar torch-carrying caravan is travelling from Newfoundland to Winnipeg where the legion's annual convention begins June 13.

Before Rev. Bert Harris of White Rock, vice-president of the legion's dominion command, had given the signal to start, various dignitaries had taken part in the send-off ceremonies on Wednesday.

The Canadian armed forces' Naden band provided a musical backdrop.

The ceremony had a personal significance for former lieutenant-governor George Pearkes, the legion's grand president.

He told how he had accompanied Earl Haig, the commanding officer of all British forces in the First World War when in 1926 Earl Haig went to Winnipeg to persuade Canadian veterans to join in one organization.

"There were all kinds of (veterans) organizations and he pleaded with them to band together," Pearkes recalled, "to keep their comradeship in peace time and remember the sacrifices they had made."

Earl Haig was successful and the legion was born.

Pearkes reminded the crowd a lighted torch was first used as a symbol after the Battle of Thermopylae in Greece.

Tom Harris, executive officer of the legion's Pacific Command, said the torch was symbolic of the Legion's desire to encourage younger generations to join them in their projects.

Rear-Admiral Andrew Collier, commander of maritime command Pacific, praised the Legion for the support it gives the regular forces.

"In many ways I've grown up in the Legion," Collier said, "Earlier this year my father was presented with his 50-year (Legion) pin."

BALCONY BLAZE

Esquimalt firemen extinguished a fire which broke out early today in a chesterfield-chair left on a balcony of a third floor apartment at 1315 Esquimalt Road.

A spokesman for the fire department said a carelessly placed cigarette had started a fire in the chair earlier in the evening but the occupants of suite 315 put it out and as a precaution placed the chair on the balcony overnight.

A patrolling Esquimalt police officer spotted the chair "burning merrily" at 4:24 a.m., the spokesman said.

He estimated damaged at about $200.

Arthritis Wonder Drug Now in Short Supply

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A shortage is developing in British Columbia and other parts of Canada of a new drug used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis.

Dr. Tully Chambers, northern interior medical information officer, said the drug, penicillamine, has been used in Canada for six months and has resulted in improved remission rates over any previous medication.

The drug is also used to treat a rare inherited disorder of copper metabolism called Wilson's Disease, he said.

"The news of the impending shortage has been greeted with much anxiety by both the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society and those patients who have found themselves unable to replenish their supply of the drug," Dr. Chambers said.

"The problem appears to that preparation and production has been stopped by the pharmaceutical company, Merck, Sharp and Dohme of Montreal," Dr. Chambers said.

He said patients on this drug are advised to check with their doctor as dosage schedules will have to be altered or other drugs used and those with Wilson's Disease will receive priority for existing stocks.

In Victoria, a spokesman for a major pharmaceutical firm said he has a small supply on hand but there has been no call for the drug. Pharmacists at two local hospitals confirmed the drug sees very little or no use.

Vancouver outlets for the drug are "close to exhausted" with limited supplies remaining in Prince George, Dr. Chambers said.

People suffering from rheumatoid arthritis have recovered in some cases to such an extent that they have been able to return to work, he said.

Pearson College Has Room to Grow

OTTAWA (CP) — Maryon Pearson appealed to the wives of Liberal MPs and senators Wednesday for donations to a scholarship fund for the college built as a memorial to her late husband, Lester B. Pearson.

Mrs. Peorson said the college can accept more students if it has a larger scholarship fund.

She told about 30 women at a luncheon that students are allowed into the school regardless of their ability or their parent's ability to pay.

Mrs. Pearson is honorary chairman of the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific, about 18 miles west of Victoria, B.C. She said about 200 students from 42 countries are currently enrolled at a cost of $6,000 each.

The widow of the former prime minister said she spends most of her time these days gardening and cooking at her home in Ottawa.

COAL IMPETUS SEEN

A move to develop the Saxon coal property near Dawson Creek will give impetus to the development of other coal properties in northeastern British Columbia, Economic Developent Minister Don Phillips said Wednesday.

The minister was responding to an announcement in Toronto of a preliminary agreement between Denison Mines Ltd. and the Ruhr Kohle group to develop the property.

"There are many equally attractive coal properties in this same area and the announcement by Denison will foster increased confidence by other companies now conducting exploration and feasibility studies in the same general area," Phillips said.

The minister said the government has set aside $5 million in this year's budget for studies of environmental impact, transportation, highways and other details related to such mining developments.

Shawnigan Diamond Jubilee

Shawnigan Lake School celebrates its diamond jubilee this weekend with an open house Saturday afternoon.

The boys' school, founded, in 1916 by Christopher Lonsdale will begin the 60th-birthday weekend with a founder's day and thanksgiving service at 1 p.m. followed by the open house between 2 and 5 p.m.

After 5, invited guests only will stay for a program including a beef barbecue dinner, film presentations and stage show.

Dr. Mervyn Mitchell, organizer of the weekend celebrations, said anyone wishing to attend the open house may do so without notice but those wishing to take part in the later program should phone the school at 743-5516.

Mitchell said more than 500 "old boys" are expected to attend.

During the afternoon, students will be challenging visitors to croquet, rowing, tennis, squash or badminton and an exhibition of photos and other memorabilia will be on display.

On Sunday there will be a communion service beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Among the outstanding graduates are Chief Justice Bruce Robertson of the B.C. Supreme Court and clerk of the Commons Alistair Fraser.

Democracy Pledged for Spain

WASHINGTON (WP) — King Juan Carlos of Spain told a joint meeting of the U.S. Congress Wednesday that his new monarchy is committed to democratic rule and "the orderly access to power of distinct political alternatives" through free choice.

Members of the Senate and House gave that pledge encouraging applause. The 38-year-old king of Spain is in the midst of a still-uncertain transition from nearly 40 years of dictatorial rule.

The Ford administration, which is Spain's champion in the West, is gambling that the king will carve out a democratic middle course for post-Franco Spain.

President Ford welcomed the Spanish ruler and Queen Sophia on the south lawn of the White House for a ceremonial four-day visit Wednesday morning.

President Ford was the only speaker throughout the day who made even elliptical allusion to the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who picked Juan Carlos to restore Spain's monarchy.

Ford said that since his visit to Spain last summer, "great changes have taken place. Your country has entered a new era." The king became Spain's ruler upon Franco's death last November.

"We are very proud of our historic ties with Spain," the president said. "We are encouraged by Spanish progress under your leadership. We look forward to building and strengthening our relationship ..."

The tall, young king, and his queen, who both have visited the United States before, are making the first visit of ruling Spanish monarchs to the American hemisphere, which was in large part dominated by Spain four centuries ago.

While avoiding an air of pomp and circumstance, the king made the most of this America connection in his address in the House and later in an appearance before the Organization of American States.

New Post Given Rippengale

The man responsible for developing historic Fort Rodd Hill on Esquimalt Harbor into one of the most attractive parks in the Capital Regional District has been promoted.

Superintendent Jack Rippengale, is now development officer for the park.

In his new job he will gather information and look for artifacts to put back into the fort built between 1890 and 1895 by Royal Engineers. Most of the early equipment disappeared between the two world wars.

Earl Pallister, maintenance supervisor for Fort Rodd Hill, is acting area superintendent for the federal park.

Mayor's Son In Car Crash

DUNCAN — The son of Mayor Ken Paskin was taken to Cowichan District Hospital for treatment of head cuts resulting from a collision here Wednesday afternoon.

Mark David Paskin, 16, collided with a vehicle driven by Mrs. Lorna Wright of Duncan at a city intersection.

Mrs. Wright and her two children were also taken to hospital for treatment of minor cuts.

Nixon's Letters to Lover Found

LONDON (UPI) — Two British newspapers reported today 22 letters, allegedly written by Richard Nixon during the height of the Watergate crisis, suggests the former president was having an affair with a diplomat's wife while in office.

The stories in the Times of London and the London Daily Telegraph were similar to one published Wednesday in the London Evening Standard.

The newspapers said literary agent Scott Meredith believed the 22 letters in his possession are genuine.

The Times quoted Meredith as saying handwriting experts who have examined the letters over the past 2½ months "regarded them as being in Mr. Nixon's hand."

It quoted Meredith as saying the long letters were written to a beautiful woman, who looks younger than her age, "and leave no doubt that they concern an affair."

It said the woman, who has a child and is married to a European diplomat, "admitted having a friendship with Mr. Nixon" in conversations with Meredith. Her husband later was "escorted out of the country," he said.

He said the "affair apparently lasted for some time, at least a year or two." Some of the latest letters speak of drinking too much as the result of Watergate pressures.

The London Evening Standard, in its story Wednesday, said 24 letters were involved and the woman was then living in California. The letters were not quoted:

The newspaper said an agent of Meredith's met the woman and that she has admitted knowing Nixon, but would not confirm or deny his authorship of the letters.

"I personally believe these letters are genuine," Meredith was quoted as saying.

"If the letters are authentic they could be worth millions because they are obviously written from true, deep personal feeling." Meredith was quoted as having told the Evening Standard.

Union Groups Earn More

WASHINGTON (WP) — Union members make substantially more money than non-union workers for doing the same job, according to a study released Wednesday by the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

The study said that in 1975 the average wage of a union member was about 16 per cent higher than that of a non-union worker in the same occupation.

But the Princeton professor who did the study, Orley Ashenfelter, said that the existence of a substantial differential between union and non-union wages does not mean that unionism contributes to wage inflation.

Ashenfelter said that the popular conception is that because unions command a premium wage, they boost the cost production and cause inflation. Ashenfelter said that economic analysis is deficient on the role of unions in inflation and that it is "unclear what the presence of these differentials or movements in them imply for the course of aggregate wage inflation."

The Council on Wage and Price Stability is the White House monitoring agency set up in September, 1974, to keep track of wage and price developments in the private economy and to watch for government regulations which contribute to inflation.

The council Wednesday held a public symposium on the Ashenfelter study.

University of Michigan professor George Johnson said that while only about 25 per cent of the American work force belongs to a union — a percentage which was held fairly constant since the Korean War — union members take home between 45 per cent and 50 per cent of the wages paid.

The Ashenfelter study said that the average black male gains more by being a union member than any other worker and that unions by and large have tended to narrow the wage gaps between black and white males. The only exception, Ashenfelter told the symposum, is the construction industry.

Drugs Checked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is tightening regulations governing the manufacture of intraveneous drugs.

"Because these drugs are injected directly into the blood stream of weakened or seriously ill patients, there is no margin for error in their manufacture or use," said FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt Wednesday.

General Killed

PARIS (AP) — Air Force Gen. Paul Bailly, who commanded Free French bombers based in Britain during the Second World War, has been killed in an automobile accident. He was 73. In addition to other posts, Bailly commanded Allied forces in Central Europe in 1953 and was named French air force inspector-general in 1955. He left active service in 1959.

Politician Accused Of Bribery

NEWARK, N.J. (WP) — Rep. Henry Helstoski (Dem.-N.J.) was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury on three charges of soliciting and accepting bribes from Chilean and Argentinian aliens in exchange for introducing in Congress private citizenship bills that were intended to delay deportation proceedings.

Helstoski, a six-term Congressman who is running for renomination in Tuesday's New Jersey primary, was also accused of conspiracy, obstructing justice and lying to a federal grand jury.

The 10-count indictment alleges that Helstoski, beginning as early as 1967, conspired with several of his congressional and campaign aides to shake down attorneys representing illegal aliens.

HAYS ONE OF 13 DENIED BY RAY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Elizabeth Ray has told federal agents Rep. Wayne Hays (Dem.-Ohio), was only one of 13 congressmen and two senators who spend leisure hours in her bedroom, according to the Chicago Tribune. An attorney for Miss Ray said she denied the report.

The Tribune reported in today's editions Miss Ray had told federal agents she secretly tape-recorded intimate interludes with the 15.

Seymour Feig of New York, an attorney for Miss Ray, said: "Miss Ray categorically denies making any such statement to anyone. And please underline anyone."

But the Tribune said Feig, after denying the story, consulted with Miss Ray and, reached by telephone at Miss Ray's apartment, later acknowledged his client had supplied investigators with a list of legislators' names.

Miss Ray, when told of the specifics in a CBS news interview, replied, "untrue, untrue."

Asked if she had anything to say to any of her Washington paramours who might be worried about having their sex lives publicized, she said with a smile, "have no fear gentlemen. I will not do anything to hurt you."

Sources said Miss Ray recorded the liaisons with a voice-activiated tape recorder under her bed, the Tribune said. She then phoned the congressmen the next day to discuss their lovemaking, tricking them into incriminating themselves, the sources told the Tribune.

The newspaper quoted sources close to the case as saying several of the men she named are prominent and that evidence and allegations compiled suggest the scandal might become "the Congressional Watergate."

Mixup Delays Vaccine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A plan to innoculate ill and elderly Americans against swine flu may be set back four to six weeks because of a production mixup at one drug company.

The mistake — which resulted in the wrong kind of vaccine being produced — is not expected to affect the nationwide innoculation program for other segments of the population.

The public health service said Wednesday that Parke-Davis Co., one of four companies producing the vaccine, made 2.6 million doses, an unknown number of which were based on a similar but different flu virus from the one isolated among recruits at Ft. Dix, N.J., in February.

None of the company's production before the mistake was uncovered can be used, the agency said, though there might have been no harm and immunization might have been effective against swine flu.

Some human test subjects were given the wrong vaccine in the clinical trials which began in April and have covered 3,200 volunteers, 600 of them children.

Dr. Teodore Cooper, assistant health, education and welfare secretary for health, said Parke-Davis has since changed strains and "significantly increased its production." Since the earlier batches cannot be used, the start of inoculations for the chronically ill and elderly may be delayed.

Charcuterie: Art with Pork

craig claiborne

Although New York City boasts with considerable reason that it is one of the world's greatest resources for gastronomic treasures, there has, nonetheless, over the years been a conspicuous lack in one area.

An enigma we have pondered for many, many years is the absence of a fine charcuterie. We have found this a painful lack.

What is charcuterie? It is one of the chief, delectable arts of the French kitchen. The word derives, as Jane Grigson so happily points out in her excellent work. "The Art of Charcuterie" (Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., 1968), from "chair cuit" meaning cooked meat, principally, if not exclusively, of the pig.

She adds that the trade of the charcutier goes back "at least as far as the time of classical Rome, where a variety of sausages could be bought, as well as the famous hams from Gaul." The world of charcuterie embraces, in addition to hams, such delicacies as terrines and pates, while siasuages, blood sausages and, of course, andouilles and andouillettes.

It will be a year next month that what is perhaps the best and most enduring shop for charcuterie opened with small fanfare in Greenwich Village. It is called Les Trois Petits Cochons or The Three Little Pigs and is the enterprise of two young Frenchmen who gave New York this gift almost by accident. At least their ambitions lay in other directions.

The young chefs are Jean-Pierre Pradie, 31 years old, a native of Bordeaux, and Alain Sinturel, 28, of Paris.

"What we really had in mind," Pradie said recently, as he sliced into a most engaging bit of charcuterie of his own invention, a terrine Normande made with pork and apples and calvados, "was to open a restaurant. Trouble is, we didn't have the funds."

"We met in London," his partner added, as he chopped a platter that also included a duck pate with aspic to garnish a platter that also included a duckpate with Grand Marnier and another duck pate scented with cognac and flavored with truffles.

Sinturel, Pradie at work

"I'd never worked as a professional chef before, although I had graduated from the hotel school in Lausanne, Switzerland. After that I'd joined the sales department of a hotel chain in Paris — they owned places like the Lotti and the Scribe. As things turned out Jean-Pierre and I took a long tour of Africa, north and south, east and west, and we spoke often of going into the restaurant business together.

"When we met again in New York, we discussed it but capital was scarce. So we decided it would take far fewer funds to open a small place that didn't require a large overhead and a large staff. Or that's what we thought at the time."

Neither Jean-Pierre nor Alain had vast experience in the art of pates and terrines, but they did painstaking, voluminous research in all the pertinent manuals they could get their hands on and accepted the advice of friends in the local world of chefdom. To this day, particularly with two establishments in operation, a 16-hour work day is not uncommon.

Extra Special Chicken Dinner

3 whole (couble) or 6 single chicken breasts
4 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. accent (M.S.G.)
1 tbsp. minced onion
2 tsp. salt
1 green pepper cut in ¼" strips
1 c. diagonally cut celery in ½" strips
1½ c. chicken stock (see below)
1 19-oz. can pineapple chunks well-drained
2 tbsp. cornstarch
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ c. cold water
14-oz. can pimiento, cut in ½" pieces

Bone out chicken breasts or have your butcher do it for you and ask him to include the bones in the package. Put the bones on to cook in about 2 cups water and simmer covered for 1 hour to get the 1½ cups stock you need (OR add 2 teaspoons chicken bouillon cordial to 1½ cups hot water). Cut the breasts in strips — about 10 to each breast-half. Cover and refrigerate. Assemble all remaining ingredients on a tray. When dinner time is near, having frying pan on high heat all the time, melt butter, add chicken strips and sprinkle with accent, onion, salt and stir constantly about 4 minutes until chicken is white. Add green pepper strips and celery and cook stirring for 1 minute. Add chicken stock and well-drained pineaple chunks, bring to boil and cook covered tightly for 5 minutes. Blend together cornstarch, Worcestershire sauce and water to a smooth paste and stir into hot mixture until thickened. Add pimiento pieces.

Serve over hot cooked rice made by adding 1¾ cups raw long grain rice to 4 cups boiling water with 2 teaspoons salt and cook COVERED tightly 30 minutes.

Double Cheese Potatoes

3 cups potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
1 ctn. (16 oz.) cream style cottage cheese
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup chopped green onions
Salt and pepper
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese

Prepare potatoes. Rub cottage cheese through a fine sieve. In medium bowl, combine sieved cottage cheese, egg, parsley, Worcestershire sauce, green onion, salt and pepper. Into greased 1½-qt. casserole dish, place one-third the potatoes; sprinkle with salt and pepper; cover with one-third the cottage cheese mixture. Repeat layers twice, using remaining ingredients and ending with cottage cheese mixture. Cover. Bake in 350-deg. F. oven for 50 to 60 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove from oven. Top with cheddar cheese; continue cooking, uncovered, 15 minutes longer, or until cheese has melted. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

bery band that surrounds each mussel. Replace one mussel in each shell and arrange the shells on a baking dish.

5. Melt the butter and add the remaining ingredients except the bread crumbs. Spoon equal amount of the butter mixture over each mussel. Sprinkle the mussels with bread crumbs. Run under the broiler until the butter is bubbling and the mussels are piping hot.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

CREPES AUX FRUITS DE MER NANTUA

(Seafood-filled crepes with lobster sauce).

18 to 20 crepes aux herbes (see recipe)
1 one-and-one-quarter-pound live lobster
6 tablespoons butter
½ cup finely chopped shallots
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon cognac
1 clove garlic, finely minced
2½ tablespoons tomato paste
¾ cup dry white wine
3 cups fish stock or use fresh or bottled clam juice
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh parsley
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon dried thyme
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.
¼ cup flour
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup finely chopped fresh mushrooms
¾ pound small scallops, cut into small pieces
¾ pound squid, cut into small pieces (optional)
¾ pound shrimp, shelled, deveined, cut into small pieces.

1. Prepare the crepes, stack them and keep covered.

2. Split the lobster in half. Break off the claws and crack them. Remove and discard the tough sac near the eyes of the lobster. Remove the coral and liver from the carcass and set aside.

3. Heat half the butter in a heavy skillet and add the lobster tail, the claws and the carcass pieces. Sprinkle with shallots and cook over high heat, stirring, until lobster shell turns bright red. Add the one-quater cup cognac and flame it. Add the garlic and tomato paste, stirring. Add the wine, fish stock, parsley, bay leaf, thyme, salt and pepper to taste. Cook about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

4. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

5. Remove the lobster pieces and when cool enough to handle, remove the meat from the tail and claws and set aside. Chop the lobster shell coarsely and add it to a food processor or put it through the coarse blade of a meat grinder. Blend or grind coarsely. Return this to the sauce and cook about five minutes longer.

6. Blend the coral and liver with two tablespoons of butter and the flour. Stir this, bit by bit, into the sauce. Add the cream and bring to the boil. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and put the mixture through a fine sieve.

7. Cut the lobster meat into small pieces.

8. Heat the remaining tablespoon of butter and add the mushrooms. Cook briefly and add the scallops and squid. Cook about 30 seconds, stirring, and add the shrimp. Cook until shrimp turn pink. Cover and cook five minutes. Uncover and reduce briefly. Add the remaining tablespoon of cognac. Stir in about one-third cup of the lobster sauce and heat. Add the lobster and stir.

9. Fill the crepes, one at a time, with equal portions of the mixture and fold the crepes over to enclose the filling. Arrange the crepes symmetrically in an over-proof baking dish large enough to hold them. Spoon the remaining sauce over. Cover with foil and bake 10 or 15 minutes or until piping hot. Serve on hot plates.

Yield: 8 or more servings.

MOULES FARCIES

3 pounds mussels
¼ teaspoon anise seeds
Freshly ground pepper to taste
½ pound butter at room temperature
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 teaspoons finely chopped shallots
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
Salt to taste
1 teaspoon Ricard, Pernod or another anise-flavored liqueur
2 tablespoons bread crumbs.

1. Scrub the mussels well and place them in a heavy kettle with a tight-fitting cover. Add the anise seeds and pepper. Do not add liquid. Cover and let them steam five minutes or just until all the mussels are open. Shake the kettle as the mussels cook. Set aside briefly to cool.

2. Drain and reserve for another use or discard the cooking liquid.

3. Preheat the broiler to high.

4. Remove the mussels from the shell and reserve half the shells for stuffing. Pull away and discard the tough, rub-

A Yogurt Each Day Keeps Doctor Away?

OTTAWA (CP) — A Guelph food science professor prescribes a daily dose of yogurt as a cure for such intestinal problems as gas, constipation and diarrhea and suggests it may even inhibit cancers.

Dr. C. L. Duitschaever told a food conference here that studies have shown the lactobacillus, one of the two bacteria strains in yogurt, helps to balance the microbial system in the intestines.

"And a study done at the University of Nebraska indicates yogurt may inhibit the formation of cancers in mice — but much more research needs to be done on this before conclusions can be drawn," he said.

Dr. Duitschaever told the 19th annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Food Science and Technology that yogurt is exceptionally nutritional "and more easily digestable than the milk it is made from."

Breastfed babies receive the yogurt bacteria, lactobacillus, from their mother, he said, which accounts for their lower incidence of colic and gastro-enteritis stomach and bowel problems.

The same lactobacillus helps suppress a dangerous strain of intestinal bacteria — e. coli serotypes — which Dr. Duitschaever says habe been linked with crib deaths in bottle-fed infants. And it's been used for treatment of infant diarrhea that doesn't respond to antibiotics.

Dr. Duitshaever says belief in the healing powers of yogurt began in the west in 1908 when a Nobel prize winning Russian biologist, Elie Melchnikoff, wrote a book called The Prolongation of Life.

Melchnikoff said the yogurt eaten by the Russians who lived in the Balkans accounted for their extremely long lives. Many lived to be more than 130 and were active to the time they died

"Melchnikoff believed that the lactobacillus released certain antibiotics from milk," said Dr. Duitschaever. "There hasn't been enough research done to prove or disprove his theory."

These Homemade Crusty Rolls Are Hard Enough to Bounce

Mary Moore

QUESTION: I could kick myself. I loaned out my recipe for your Crusty Rolls and it never came back. Before I blow my top would you give the recipe again in your paper? You describe them as "hard enough to bounce" and they did. Edna O.

ANSWER: Edna that was in 1964! Simmer down. Here they are.

HOMEMADE CRUSTY ROLLS (20)

1 pkg. granular yeast
c. lukewar, water
1 tsp. sugar (first amount)
1 tbsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar (second amount)
2 tbsp. shortening (room temperature)
2 egg whites
¾ c. lukewarm water
about 4 c. sifted all-purpose flour (divided—see below)

In you large mixing bowl soak the yeast with the 1 teaspoon sugar in the ¼ cup lukewarm water for 10 minutes. Then add the salt, sugar, shortening, egg whites and the ¾ cup lukewarm water. Stir a little, then beat in 3 cups of the sifted flour. Sprinkle board with half of the remaining flour. (Reserve remaining ½ cup flour for second kneading later.) Knead 200 times, working the flour on board into dough.

Dough should be smooth and elastic. Grease mixing bowl and return dough to it to rise, covered, at room temperature, until more than doubled—about 1½ to 2 hours.

Punch down dough and knead 50 times on board sprinkled with remaining flour. (You may not be able to work all of this remaining flour in.) Let rise again in bowl until doubled — about 1 to 1½ hours.

On LIGHTLY floured board board punch down and knead 25 times. Shape into long rolls under palms. Cut into 18 or 20 even pieces. Shape into round SMOOTH balls about 2" or 2½" in diameter. Let rise 2" apart on greased baking sheets under light until doubled — about 1 to 1½ hours.

Put large shallow waterpan in bottom of oven cantaining ½" boiling water. Bake rolls on centre shelf of oven at 450 Deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes.

As soon as removed from oven drop into Hot Glazed Mixture: Mix 4 teaspoons cornstarch into 1½ cups cold water and stir until boiling and slightly thickened. Drain rolls a little, put back on baking sheets. Return to oven for about 5 minutes to dry glaze until shiny.

POLLY'S GOODIES

½ c. shortening
½ c. butter
1 c. brown sugar
½ c. molasses
3 eggs
1 c. raisins
½ c. sesame seeds
½ c. peanuts
½ c. natural bran
½ c. wheat germ
1½ c. all-purpose flour
½ c. whole wheat flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. ground cardamo (optional)
½ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. vanilla

In a large beater bowl beat shortening, butter and sugar until blended. Beat in eggs and nolasses.

With beaters on "low" add all remaining ingredients as you measure them.

Drop by rounded silver teaspoonfuls on greased cookie sheets TWO inches apart. Polly and I had 5 pansfull. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 9 to 10 minutes. Remember to watch them. Do not burn any.

These are excellent cookies from a nutritional standpoint. Adults like them too.

Golden Crusted Sesame Seed Bread

(3 high loaves)

2 tbsp. yeast
¾ c. warm water (a little warmer than lukewarm)
1 tsp. sugar
3 c. lukewarm milk
1-3 c. oil
1-3 c. brown sugar
¼ c. molasses
¼ c. sesame seed
¼ c. cornmeal (OR millet meal)
3 c. whole wheat flour
2 eggs
1 tbsp. salt
about 6½ to 7 c. all-purpose flour

In a VERY large bowl or clean dishpan soak the yeast and white sugar in the warm water 10 minutes. While you are waiting heat the milk and measure the flours. As soon as yeast liquid is ready add the lukewarm milk, oil, brown sugar, molasses, sesame seed, cornmeal (or millet meal), whole wheat flour, eggs and salt. Mix until perfectly smooth — about 50 complete stirring strokes. Scrape down sides of bowl or dishpan, let rise under light ½ hour — a very short period.

Now beat in FOUR cups all-purpose flour until mixed. Sprinkle your kneading board with 2½ cups all-purpose flour and turn all of the dough out on it. Now turn the dough over to have a floured top. Knead 100 times when all of the flour should be incorporated. (If you need a LITTLE more flour to prevent sticking do not hesitate to add it.)

Shape dough into roll. Cut into three even pieces. Roll each into a round about 9" in diameter with rolling pin. Roll up like a jelly roll to exclude air and give them a smooth surface. Place in greased standard loak pans. Let rise under light 1½ to 2 hours until 2" above rims of pans. If desired brush unrisen loaves with diluted beaten egg and sprinkle tops with more sesame seeds. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 minutes. Do not underbake — crust should be crisp and golden brown. Be sure to eat a slice and call the whole family for theirs while it is warm and fresh.

PORK CHOP CASSEROLE

6 ¾" pork chops
½ c. chopped onion
1½ c. minute rice or ⅞ c. raw long grain rice
2 c. hot water
1 c. chopped apple
1 c. chopped pitted prunes (dried or drained stewed)
1½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. basil or rosemary

Trim excess fat from chops and render it out in the frying pan then add and brown chops. Transfer to holding plate. Discard fat scraps. Add onion and GENTLY cook 5 minutes, stirring. Tip onions into medium-large casserole. Rinse out pan with 1 cup of the hot water and add to casserole. Add rice and 1 more cup hot water (2 cups water in all). Now stir in the apple, prunes, salt, pepper and basil or rosemary. Cover with chops. Put on lid and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. If minute rice is used it requires 45 minutes. If raw rice is used it requires 60 to 70 minutes.

It's Third World Women Who Need Aid

The Canadian government has been very generous with foreign aid, especially in Africa and South America, but the projects it is sponsoring (or has sponsored) are mostly geared to help and train men of those countries.

Yet, it is the women who do the hard work in the fields and in their primitive homes and they should definitely be included in help from Canada or any other country.

This is the belief of Mrs. E. W. Fulton, area vice-president in Canada for the Associated Countrywomen of the World, who was in Victoria last week as a special guest at the 23rd biennial convention of the British Columbia Women's Institutes.

Enlarging on the need to help and educate women in so many countries, Mrs. Fulton described work of the ACWW, especially among rural peoples of the world.

"Believe it or not," she said, "sixty per cent of the peoples of the world still live in rural areas, yet, in so many instances they are the forgotten people.

"We believe, however, they are still the backbone of society. They must be helped . . . and we are trying to do that."

Here she told of an ACWW field worker in Africa, struggling to educate women of the Cameroons in simple health and nutrition methods.

"Those women were working in the fields with primitive tools and in primitive ways and it was taking them a week to gather and grind the necessary supply of corn for their various villages. They had no time to stop and listen to the field worker."

What did she do?

"She invented a simple corn grinder that disposed of the week's supply in one day. The women then had time to listen and to learn about cleanliness, health rules and nutritious foods."

Mrs. Fulton also described a six-year project to save the sight of children in rural areas of India and South America, where they were faced with the threat of blindness at a very early age.

The Royal Society for the Blind first discovered this fact and asked for help.

"So, for the first three years of this project we worked entirely with that society."

Then the ACWW descided to put its own medical and scientific people in the field to examine the children and to try and pinpoint the cause.

"They discovered the people were not eating proper foods and were even ignoring plants right at their door steps that could produce good foods."

In the past three years therefore, while still cooperating with the Royal Society, the ACWW has also been financing a program to educate the women in proper methods of nutrition and in ways to use their common plants for food.

Concerned also with "the appalling number of deaths among children at an extremely early age" in rural areas of South America, this world association has now set up a nutrition health centre at Villa Maria in Argentina.

"It's actually a school where we train a picked number of young women in proper ways to care for newborn babies and about cleanliness and health rules," Mrs. Fulton explained.

"After training they go out to the villages and impart their knowledge to the women, who are eager to hear and to learn."

In this way, she said, "We have already saved some lives and with the degree of progress we are making, we will soon save many more."

How are these — and other projects — financed?

The ACWW represents 286 institutes and societies in 69 countries of the world, with a total membership of eight-and-a-half million women.

And it is these women, through their various organizations, that provide the money for the projects.

Trouble is, Mrs. Fulton said a little sadly, "certain of our organizations cannot help with projects in other parts of the world because they cannot send money out of their countries."

That leaves an added responsibility on those countries that can contribute.

Help also comes through A Pennies For Friendship program, in which individual members around the world, save their pennies and donate them regularly to carry on the work and to maintain a small Head Office in London, England.

"This program doesn't cover all our every-day expenses," the area-vice-president said, "but it is a big help."

At present the ACWW has projects in five areas in Idia, three in Africa and two in South America, and in each of these countries it also maintains a field worker.

MRS. FULTON
. . . speaker for forgotten

"We go where the people — especially the women in rural areas — need us and we spread knowledge that will educate them to eventually take over and do it themselves," Mrs. Fulton told me.

Coming back to Canada she pointed out that the approach here is very different.

"In this country we are becoming involved in issues that count today, both provincially and federally. We present briefs, we approach governments, and while we still help in rural areas and rural peoples, it is in a very different way."

Right now women's institutes and the societies in Canada are vitally interested in seeing new family law adopted. In the mid-west there are transportation issues including rail line abandonments.

Down east and "more so in the west," it is efforts to keep rural centres alive.

"People, especially the young, are leaving the farming areas for the cities, where they often end up on welfare.

"We are striving to reverse that trend, to see small rural communities revitalized and to keep people in those areas, where, if they have to be subsidized, they would be so much better off."

Institutes and societies are also preparing and presenting briefs on land use.

"We're really uptight about good land being used for new roads and subdivisions when that land should be kept for growing food or for recreation areas."

There is also a trend toward helping with urban problems.

"We are gradually returning to several programs we pioneered years ago and dropped, including help for the poor and the lonely in our cities and in educating and training young people for marriage.

In conclusion Mrs. Fulton again put a finger on funding methods of government.

"Even in this country," she pointed out, "so many projects helped through funds from various levels of government, are geared mainly for men."

Then a determined look came into her eyes and she added one short sentence:

"Let's have our women helped, too!"

Postscript—The Associated Countrywomen of the World holds consultative status with the United Nations as a non-governmental organization and works actively with UNESCO, UNICEF and WHO.

POTTED CHEESE

1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
½ cup soft butter
2 tbsp. sherry (or brandy), optional
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tsp. minced onion
⅛ tsp. garlic powder
Dash pepper
½ lb. finely shredded sharp cheddar cheese
4 oz. bleu cheese, crumbled
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Chopped walnuts
Snipped parsley

In bowl, beat together until well blended, cream cheese, butter, sherry, Worcestershire sauce, onion, garlic powder, and pepper. Work thoroughly into mixture, cheddar cheese, bleu cheese, and Parmesan cheese (blend thoroughly for best results). Oil a 4-cup mold; sprinkle with a few chopped walnuts. Press cheese mixture in mold; sprinkle with additonal chopped walnuts. Cut out a piece of cardboard to fit bottom of mold. Cover cutout with foil. Tape this to the edges of mold base. Invert: keep chilled.

To serve: remove potted cheese from mold, decorate with additional walnuts and snipped parsley. This dish will keep refrigerated, wrapped in plastic film, for two to three weeks.

French Fried Onion Rings

4 TO 5 LARGE ONIONS
Ice water
1½ to 1¾ cups flour
1 tsp. salt.
¾ tsp. soda
2 eggs
1½ to 2 cups buttermilk
Oil for deep frying, heated to 375 deg. F.

Slice onions ¼-inch thick. Soak in ice water for 1 hour. (Note: Soaking in ice water is essential for crisp results.) Sift together flour, salt, and soda. Combine with eggs and buttermilk to make batter. Dry onions thoroughly; dip in batter. Deep fry several at a time in preheated oil until crisp and brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Keep onions hot by placing in 275 deg. F. oven while cooking remaining onion.s Serve hot and crisp. Make 4 servings. Note: Batter is excellent for cheese or poultry fondues.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Readers often ask me why it is so important for them to know the basics of good nutrition. And my answer is that once you have learned what the various essential nutrients are, what they do and where they are found, you have taken a giant step toward planning a good diet.

In all, there are some 40 essential nutrients, which can be divided into six categories. How much do you know about the basics of good nutrition?

1. Water, protein, fat, fibre, carohydrate, vitamins and minerals are all necessary in a good diet. One of them, however, is not a nutrient. Which one is it?

2. Which class of nutrients is necessary to build, repair and maintain all body tissues?

3. What class of energy-giving nutrients also serves as the carrier for vitamins A, D, E and K, and includes the essential fatty acids?

4. Two categories of nutrients provide no calories but are essential to help regulate metabolic processes. Are they (a) protein and carbohydrate, (b) vitamins and protein, (c) fat and minerals or (d) vitamins and minerals?

5. If you are looking for an excellent source of calcium, vitamin D and high-quality protein, would you choose eggs, fish, soybeans, or milk?

6. Liver is our best food source of iron. Does it also provide (a) protein, (b) vitamin A, (c) trace minerals, (d) vitamin C and (e) B vitamins?

7. True or false: To get sufficient protein, you must have one serving of meat, fish or poultry each day.

8. Vitamin A itself is a clear substance. But carotene, the provitamin with which the body can manufacture vitamin A, is clearly visible in certain foods. How do you spot it?

9. Although orange juice is one of our best sources of vitamin C, this essential nutrient is found in many other fruits and vegetables. Pick out the only one of the following that is low in vitamin C: potatoes, strawberries, apples, canteloupe, broccoli, tomatotes, kale, green peppers, rutabagas, cauliflower.

10. Trace minerals are present in many foods, and we need only "trace" amounts. Pick the luncheon menu that should supply the highest amount of trace minerals. Menu 1: egg salad sandwich on whole-wheat bread, milk, raw vegetable salad, fruit. Menu 2: hamburger on enriched roll with lettuce and tomato, soft drink, fruit pie.

And here are the answers:

1. Fibre is not a nutrient because it passes through the body without being broken down or absorbed.

2. Protein.

3. Fat is the carrier of the fat-soluble vitamins, A, D, E and K. Polyunsaturated fats supply the essential fatty acids, which cannot be manufactured by the body.

4. Vitamins and minerals.

5. Milk and milk products are our best source of calcium, fortified milk supplies vitamin D and one cup of milk supplies about nine grams of high-quality protein.

6. All of them. Liver is the body's storehouse for many nutrients, and fresh liver, quickly cooked, even provides some vitamin C.

7. False. Adults can get plenty of animal protein from dairy products and the rest of the protein they require from vegetable sources such as peas, beans, lentils and nuts. (Children, however, need another source of good animal protein such as eggs and milk to achieve optimum growth.)

8. Carotene is the red-yellow pigment in fruits and vegetables like winter squash and watermelon. It is masked by the green chlorophyll in green vegetables, but it is still present. The deeper the color, the more provitamin A.

9. Apples are low in vitamin C, providing only about six milligrams in a medium-sized one. One serving of any of the other fruits and vegetables listed will supply at least half the 45-milligram daily requirement.

10. Trace minerals are removed from foods in heavy milling, refining and processing, and are not returned by enrichment. Menu 1, with its whole grains, milk and fresh fruit and vegetables, will have a better supply than Menu 2, which contains more highly processed foods.

If you were right with only six out of 10 answers, chances are you should do a bit more homework on what makes up a healthy diet.

WORDS DROPPED IN RECIPE

A short section of Mary Moore's recipe for Banana Split Pie was accidentally left out in Wednesday's Times.

The dropped words are concerned with assembling the pie and the complete text for the incorrect section is as follows:

To assemble remove chocolate wafer crust from freezer. Slice one banana evenly over bottom of crust. Spread softened vanilla ice cream over bananas. Spread cooled raspberry sauce over top. Return to freezer and freeze for 24 hours. (After chocolate sauce has hardened I covered my pie with wax paper.)

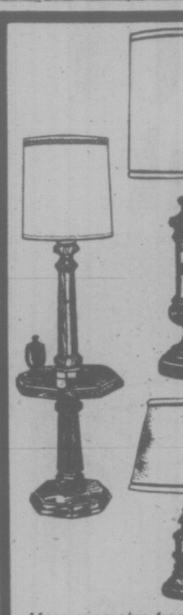
indoor gardens

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: A friend of mine recently returned from a visit to Florida and told me of forests simply dripping with a plant he called "Spanish Moss." He told me that this plant, which he said just hangs like gray cobwebs on the trees, can be cultured as an indoor plant. Is this true? If so, where can it be obtained? Thanks for your help.—L.T.

Dear L.T.: Spanish Moss, which is a variety of the Bromeliad, Tillandsia, can indeed be cultured as an indoor plant. Although it would prefer the outdoor atmosphere of a covered patio, this is a true "air plant," and as long as you merely drape it over a piece of wire, or a clothes hanger, and hang it in a nice bright spot, your Tillandsia will flourish by taking the necessary nutrients right out of the atmosphere.

You should spray it often, as most indoor situations don't contain enough natural humidity to support Spanish Moss, and you should probably give it a foliar feeding.



The Accent is on Natural Wood

Yes, wood, and antique brass to complement it, is the thing in this trio! The floor lamp's finished in elegant countryside pine, and the Colonial table model is Honey pine. The mini-lamp is antiqued brass (18½" high). All have three-way lighting.

Abby Not Needed

DEAR ABBY: I am going into the hospital for four or five days to have silicone breast implants. A good friend of mine who is also my neighbor has offered to look after my two children during the day in her home.

My problem is another neighbor who is in and out of my house several times a day. She is quite a busybody, and I don't want her to know where I am and why.

I've thought of telling her I'm going to visit my mother who lives out of the state, but then she'll wonder why I wouldn't be taking my preschooler. I could also tell her I'm going to the hospital for a D and C.

Or I could just leave and not tell here anything, but she would see my husband taking my kids to my neighbor's house and back, and she'd be sure to ask him where I was.

The neibor who is caring for my children knows the facts and can be trusted not to say anything, but I don't want Mrs. Busybody to know. What should I tell her?—WANTS PRIVACY

DEAR WANTS: Tell her you're going to the hospital for minor surgery. Period. (P.S. And if she presses for more information, tell her it's a personal matter.)

DEAR ABBY: I response to DISGUSTED who complained about the service in a restaurant: NO! Walking toward the door without paying will not do it.

Last year, my husband and I waited one-half hour for the bill in a fashionable Palm Springs restaurant. In desperation, my husband finally went to get the waitress himself. She said she'd be "right over."

We waited for another 15 minutes, and he again went looking for her and saw her through the kitchen window talking to the help. Finally, after waiting for another 15 minutes, we got up and stood by the exit door for five minutes. Everyone was looking at us and knew what we had in mind, but when the waitress still didn't come, we walked out without paying our bill for $26.

It was not even a busy evening. I hope she had to pay for our bill. What would you have done?—MADELEINE

DEAR MADELEINE: I'd have located the manager, paid my bill (sans tip) and told him why he shouldn't expect to see us agin.

DEAR ABBY: A quote from your column, "Violence begets violence," calls to mind the words of the late Martin Luther King Jr. (from his book, "Stride Toward Freedom"):

"To retaliate in kind would do nothing but intensify the existence of hate in the universe. Along the way of life, someone must have sense enough and morality enough to cut off the chain of hate."

Thanks for trying, Abby.—YOUR ADMIRER

DEAR ABBY: In response to your decision to sign the Living Will, Dr. Peale asserted that there is a variety of opinions on this issue, but that the prevailing Protestant view would be that "God alone should determine life and death. The individual should be in the hands of God, who gave life and whose function is to take it."

Human beings are not puppets. God has endowed us with minds that He expects us to use wisely and responsibly. We decide when to consult a doctor and whether or not to have surgery performed.

The decision to keep patients alive by artificial means is not made by God, but by doctors. They assume they are carrying out God's will and have been supported by the courts. They become arbiters in life and death.

To declare that "God alone should determine life and death" is simplistic and naive. We must accept responsibility for our actions and be guided by what we believe is God's will and purpose.

The Psalmist did not ask that God keep him alive forever on earth, but said: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten, and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away." — THE REV. ERNEST O. MARTIN.

Refrigerated flaky biscuits are truly versatile. They can be used for many nutritious main dishes as well as a host of delectable desserts.

The eight-page "Turn Simple Fare Into Simply Terrific" ("Faites un festin d'un simple plat") features an array of quick and easy recipes.

One is for a 'Hearty Stew 'n Biscuits.' This is expanded by a dozen suggestions on how to adapt this basic recipe to suit different tastes and special occasions. For instance, the meat cubes could be tenderized in wine or wine vinegar; sliced mushrooms could be added to the stew; the biscuits could be dipped in sour cream before baking or they could be steamed into dumplings.

Among other lunch or dinner dishes are recipes for a tuna biscuits casserole, a cheesy chicken and green bean casserole and zippy ham and cheese roll-ups.

Dessert suggestions include a cheesy apple cobbler, cinnamon crisps, and light, fluffy donuts.

The booklet offers other ideas you will enjoy.

CLC Argument Gets Rocky Ride

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Wright received a rocky ride Wednesday when he attempted to convince the Supreme Court of Canada that federal anti-inflation controls are unconstitutional and intended to interfere with labor relations.

Mr. Wright, Canadian Labor Congress lawyer, called the Anti-Inflation Act an "attempt to assume control over matters that are entirely provincial."

His arguments, presented during the third day of a hearing to decide whether the act is constitutional, were closely questioned, and sometimes challenged, by the nine-man bench.

He said economic evidence compiled for the CLC shows that inflation was not a problem of national dimension when the act, which placed the country under three years of wage and price controls, was introduced last fall.

"Should we carry our money around in a wheelbarrow then?" remarked Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

That statement reduces the CLC case to absurdity it does not deserve, Mr. Wright shot back.

"I'm not saying that I'm in favor of inflation or that the CLC is in favor of inflation," he added. "But the matter can be responded to within the framework of the constitution."

The CLC and Alberta argued the act is unconstitutional because inflation did not constitute a national emergency. The act oversteps provincial powers guaranteed by the British North America Act, the country's constitution, and the law allows this only in emergency situations where the federal government must act alone to ensure peace, order and good government.

Ottawa, supported by Ontario, already has argued that inflation had become an evil of serious national concern and that it had to take sweeping action to protect the economy.

Mr. Wright, of Ottawa, said the Anti-Inflation Act is not true emergency legislation because it does not cover "enormous portions of the country." A national emergency usually involved universal coverage, but the anti-inflation controls covered only certain companies.

Quebec, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, the only other provinces arguing at the hearing, all have given Ottawa qualified support, saying the act is constitutional only if the federal government can prove an emergency existed.

B.C. repeated Wednesday that an emergency situation has not been proven, while the other two left it up to the court to decide.

The CLC's economic evidence, prepared by Queen's University economist Richard Lipsey, was intended to show that inflation was on the decline nine months before the controls were brought in.

Charts showed that inflation had been worse in 1948 and 1951, that living standards have gone up and that the Canadian inflation rate was favorable when compared with other countries.

The various statistics did not go over well with the justices.

"Surely these don't help us on the constitutional issue," said Chief Justice Bora Laskin. "Economists can play with them."

Earlier, Mr. Wright said the preamble to the Anti-Inflation Act does not contain any statements to show that inflation was a national emergency.

ECONOMIC AGREEMENT BY CANADA AND ECM

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen announced Wednesday that officials of Canada and the Commission of the European Communities have reached agreement on texts of the framework agreement for commercial and economic co-operation between Canada and the European communities.

The agreements were marked in Brussels by an exchange of notes between the commission and the Canadian mission to the communities.

Texts of the agreements now will be submitted to the governments concerned for consideration and approval, said MacEachen.

The minister added that both sides hope formal signing of the agreements will take place soon.

Formal negotiations on the agreement began last February. However other discussions have been going for about two years.

MacEachen said the framework agreements "would be non-preferential and of evoluntary and pragmatic character."

Canada's Reserves Up $8.2M

OTTAWA (CP) — The value of Canada's international reserves rose by $8.2 million during May, the finance department reported Wednesday.

The total value of reserves at May 31 was $5.812 billion, up from $5.804 billion at the end of April 30. The reserves are measured in terms of U.S. dollars.

Holding of U.S. dollars dropped sharply by $41.4 million to $3.67 billion, indicating the federal goverment was selling U.S. dollars in an effort to keep the value of the Canadian dollar up.

Other foreign currencies were drawn down last month by $4.4 million from April levels. Holdings of gold declined by $5.9 million to $867.2 million.

Special drowing rights with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) declined by $2.4 million to $548.7 million, but the reserve position with the IMF was increased by $62.3 million to $713.7 million.

Quick Move to Pay TV?

TORONTO (CP) — Broadcasters and cable television operators say they are ready to take up a federal government offer and move quickly into pay television.

Top officials of both industries outlined plans at the Canadian Cable Television Association (CCTA) convention for national pay-TV systems which, they said, would bring new life to domestic film and television program production.

Murray Chercover, president of the CTV Television Network Ltd., said in an interview the privately-owned television network will present the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) with detailed plans for a joint venture with cable companies to launch a pay-TV system.

CCTA President Michael Hind-Smith said the association, representing most of the country's 400 cable operators, is ready to become the dominant force in a national pay-TV system.

They were responding to Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve who caused a stir at the CCTA's annual convention by calling for submissions on pay-TV by Sept. 1.

CRTC chairman Harry Boyle said the broadcasting regulatory agency will be ready to consider applications for pay-TV licences by the end of the year.

She said the government will anounce new pay-TV policies this fall, probably setting out guides for a single national pay service under government regulatory control, but run idependently by the cable, broadcasting and film industries.

Subscribers would pay a flat monthly fee, perhaps $8 for a package of commercial-free movies and other programs.

Mrs. Sauve said pay television will only be allowed if there are specific safeguards. It must provide a range of programming which does not duplicate shows now offered by on-air broadcasters and must be used to help finance production of high-quality Canadian programs good enough to attract international purchasers.

BILINGUAL 'MARKET SCHEME'

QUEBEC (CP) — Spokesmen for a group of French-language air industry employees say federal transport department officials have told them that a planned inquiry into bilingual air traffic control is no more than a "marketing operation" to sell bilingualism.

Roger Demers and Pierre Beaudry, president and secretary respectively of L'Association des Gens de l'Air du Quebec, made the statement at a news conference Wednesday following a meeting with Sylvain Cloutier, deputy federal transport minister, and Walter McLeish, associate administrator of the transport department.

Demers and Beaudry said the federal officials conceded to them there is no technical justification for the inquiry, set up as part of a recent contract settlement with the Canadian Association of Air Traffic Controllers (CATCA).

PATENT CHANGES EYED

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposals for a new federal patents law to encourage more research and faster disclosure of inventions were published Wednesday by the consumer and corporate affairs department.

They are part of a complete federal overhaul of "intellectual property" legislation controlling the use of patents, trademarks, copyright and industrial design.

Legislation to revise existing trademarks laws is expected to be introduced in the Commons this fall. Studies now are under way into revisions to federal laws covering the use of copyrights and industrial designs.

The patents study was prepared for the consumer and copyrights act by outside consultants and is not government policy. It is being considered by the government, however, for legislative amendments that may be up to two years away.

Basically, a patent gives an individual or consumer a controlled monopoly position for the commercial use of an invention for a fixed period. Currently, that period is 17 years.

The study proposes a new law to replace the existing 40-year-old Patent Act. The new law would be an interim one for 10 years while studies were concluded to decide whether Canada needs a patent law at all.

One of the major problems now is that 95 per cent of Canadian patents go to non-Canadians. This raises a real question whether there is any benefit for Canada in having patent laws.

The paper says there is little evidence to show the current patent system encourages domestic research. Most of the research in the country is federally funded.

Tories Join Government In Defending UIC Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MPs joined the government Wednesday in defeating a New Democratic nonconfidence motion condemning the government for proposed changes in the unemployment insurance program.

The rebuff for the NDP came after Manpower Minister Robert Andras scorned suggestions that a proposal to lengthen the qualifying period for benefits to 12 weeks from eight will force thousands of unemployed to apply for welfare.

The suggestions came not only from members of other parties but also from several Liberal MPs.

Former manpower minister Bryce Mackasey, who held the post when the present plan was introduced in 1971, was one who expressed concern. He now is postmaster-general and consumer affairs minister.

The NDP motion, defeated by a vote of 193 to 20 with Social Credit members and Leonard Jones (Ind.—Moncton) supporting it, said it regretted that at a time when 760,000 workers are jobless, the government should move to lengthen the qualifying period.

The Conservatives will have a vote on their non-confidence motion next week. It criticizes the government for alleged failure to cope with economic troubles.

Conservative support for the unemployment insurance changes indicate the government should have little trouble rallying forces for its amendments when they come before the Commons next fall.

Speaking in the budget debate, Mr. Andras said claims that seasonal and low-income workers would be forced to rely on welfare are irresponsible nonsense.

Andres said surveys show that of those who work only eight to 11 weeks before applying for benefits, 80 per cent have no dependents and almost half are under 25. Many are secondary wage earners in a family, with only loose ties to the labor force.

Andras said in the Atlantic provinces, where employment conditions are less favorable, that at any given time only 10,000 individuals will not be able immediately to find 12 weeks of insured earnings.

He promised again that savings made from the unemployment insurance changes would be used to create new jobs.

But he also said the costs of job creation programs were enormous.

MONTREAL — Princes, presidents and potentates from far-away places will be in Montreal's seashell-shaped Olympic stadium when Queen Elizabeth opens the Summer Games July 17.

Problems of security make it difficult, however, for reporters to get a clear and full picture.

Former King Costantie of Greece is likely to attend as an honorary member of the international Olympic Committee.

There also are unconfirmed reports that Spain's King Juan Carlos will come.

There have been similar reports for many months regarding Monaco's Price Rainier, an ardent yachtsman who is expected to attend with his wife, Princess Grace, and their children.

Some officials feel the chances of a visit by President Ford are slim in view of the United States Bicentennial celebrations and domestic political battles leading to the presidential race.

There is speculation that Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser will come to Montreal before his scheduled visit with President Ford July 27.

Other visitors expected to attend include Prince Faisal Fahd Abdulazia of Saudi Arabia and Price Bertil of Sweden, who head the national Olympic committees in their respective coutries.

Prince Gholam Reza Pahlavi, IOC member and brother of the Shah of Iran, is scheduled to come to Montreal and there are unconfirmed reports the Shah will arrive as well.

WILSON LIST DEFENDED

LONDON — Former prime minister Harold Wilson broke a week-long silence Wednesday on a controversy surrounding the peerages—knighthoods and other titles—he bestowed on leaving office, stating that he and he alone drew up his retirement honors list.

Wilson's unprecedented statement followed news insinuations that his personal secretary, Lady Falkender, had influenced the list—which was said to include members of her social circle.

Wilson said he toook full responsibility for each and every name and that he hopes the statement would bring an end to "this orchestrated vendetta."

The list was widely attacked by the news media and other poloticians who regarded it as breaking a tradition.

This Record Real Snip!

PAVIA, Italy — Barber Pino Amato claimed a new world record for non-stop haircuttting Wednesday night, snipping about 200 heads in 83 hours. Then, red-eyed and aching, he briefly collapsed.

Amato said he surpassed by three hours an old mark set in 1972 by British barber Derek Applegate Rees.

"I'm happy," Amato said. "It's been a hard grind but now the record is mine."

During his performance Amato was attended by a doctor who regularly measured his blood pressure, a masseur who soothed his aching muscles and a dietician who fed him vegetables and yogurt every three hours.

New Hughes' Will Really in Orbit

LAS VEGAS — Many of the Howard Hughes "wills" have been imaginative, but the latest is out of this world.

The 28th — to date — "last will and testament" of the late billionaire arrived at the Clark County courthouse Wednesday.

It leaves $400 million to a Dwayne Clyde Byron Hughes, identifying him as the billionaire's son, "born in a flying saucer over Oklahoma in 1946."

The 28th "will" came on the heels of the 27th, which leaves the entire $2.5 billion fortune to Judge Crater, the New York jurist who vanished early in this century, creating a puzzle that has lasted to this day.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Exactly how our experts go about winning duplicate games (and tournaments) is vividly illustrated in today's deal, which came up during the 1976 Spring National Championships. The deal also serves to illustrate the prime importance of overtricks in a game where everybody plays the identical deals, and the scoring is on a relative basis.

	NORTH ♠ A K 7 6 3 ♡ Q 5 4 ◇ J 7 ♣ J 6 4
WEST ♠ Q 9 5 4 ♡ A 10 2 ◇ Q 5 3 2 ♣ 10 8		EAST ♠ J 8 2 ♡ J ◇ K 10 9 4 ♣ K 7 5 3 2
	SOUTH ♠ 10 ♡ K 9 8 7 6 3 ◇ A 8 6 ♣ A Q 9

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	1 ♠	1 NT	2 ♡
3 ◇	3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

East's one notrump overcall was the "unusual notrump," announcing the possession of at least nine cards in the minor suits. The bid could not be misconstrued as showing a good hand, since East had passed originally, thereby denying 13 or more points. West's bid of three diamonds was normal, since East was known to have at least four diamonds. The North-South bidding was standard.

West's opening lead of the club ten was covered by dummy's jack and East's king, South's ace winning. A spade was then led to dummy's king, after which the spade ace was cashed, South discarding the six of diamonds. A low spade lead came next, which was ruffed with South's six of hearts.

Assuming that East had nine cards in the minor suits for his "unusual" notrump overcall, South decided to play him for the singleton jack or ten of trumps (East had already been revealed as the possessor of three spades). So he next led the king of trumps — and when West took his ace, East's jack fell on the trick. West led his remaining club and South's queen won the trick.

The carefully preserved three of trumps was now led, and when West followed suit with the deuce, declarer inserted the board's five-spot. Now declarer had the extra entry he needed to establish and cash dummy's fifth space.

A fourth spade lead came next, South ruffing. Dummy was then re-entered via the trump queen, picking up West's ten-spot en route. On the board's remaining spade South discarded his eight of diamonds. He then claimed his contract, with his only loser being a trump trick to West's ace.

The deal was played 13 times, and the two extra tricks South made gave his partnership the top score on the deal.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, June 4

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Accent on unique services, diet, health, employment. Maintain moderate pace; don't make waves. Pisces, Virgo could figure prominently. If patient—and thorough—you make significant gains. Refuse to rush. Time is on your side.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Check with one willing to share experience. Line up priorities—be willing to accept necessary changes. Member of opposite sex is very much in picture. Speculative venture could surprise by paying dividends.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): You conclude deal, transaction, close discussion which has been ongoing in relation to security, costs, property. Older family member attempts to tie you to past. Key is to have courage to take plunge into future. Aries, Cancer and Libra figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Emphasis is on short trips, communication with relatives, new starts, creative approach to "irritating" question. Leo, Aquarius persons could be in picture. An idea could lead you along creative path which, in turn, results in "expressions of love."

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) Emphasis on collections, valuables, personal possessions. Evaluate places and people—and refuse to sell yourself short. Your own esteem should be high—an Aquarian could show the way. Money flow resumes; you rise above petty differences, obstacles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Lunar cycle is high—popularity increases, activities multiply. Take initiative; expand horizons. Judgement, intuition are likely to be on target. You will be at right place at right time. Know it and act as if you are aware of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You get glimpse behind the scenes. Feeling of confinement is temporary. Visit to hospital should not be blown up out of proportion. Aquarious, Scorpio and Taurus could figure prominently. Maintain aura of mystique. Don't reveal all you know.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Accent on desire, fulfillment. Popularity increases in form of more customers, orders. Success crowns efforts. You find that you have more friends than imagined. Gemini, Virgo persons figure in picture. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment.

SAGITARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Family member supports your aspirations. Confidence grows as you realize you are not alone. Utilizie voice in teaching, getting points across. One who has authority will decree that you "advance."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Good lunar aspect coincides now with long-range views, plans. Publishing, advertising, writing seem to be very much a part of current scenario. You might be asked to appear before the media, representing special group.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): What seems a dead end is merely a temporary stop. Emphasis on what has been hidden or lost. You get the facts—you're given opportunity to save and earn money. Contract should be studied for hidden clauses.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Obtain hint from Aquarius message. Let others take initiative. Your role should be that of keen, shrewd observer. Spotlight is on public relations, partnership, special agreement, marriage. Get rid of burden not really your own.

IF JUNE 4th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sincere, dedicated, versatile and you seldom, if ever, "follow the crowd." You are unorthodox, were on your own at a relatively early age. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You might change residence this year—September and November are highlight months.

Growing Perennials from Seed

Named varieties of flowering perennials have to be increased by division of the present plants, or by rooting cuttings, to obtain a stock similar in all characteristics, but there are some perennials which can be grown quite successfully from seed. These provide a stock for those wishing to add perennials to their gardens without a great outlay of cash.

The beginner will usually save all plants that result from a sowing; they are reluctant to discard. Experience makes us more critical and we quickly select those which appeal to our taste and dump the others on the compost heap.

This selecting is done after the plants have displayed their flowers in a prepared "nursery bed" where they are grown before being placed into the permanent beds and borders. The selected plants are then increased by division or cuttings after reaching a suitable size.

Under normal conditions the seed is sown thinly in shallow boxes in rows two inches apart during the first week of June. The soil mixture is screened compost and sand, slightly heavier than used for the early indoor sowings.

Each kind of perennial is sown in a separate box because of different germination periods. The boxes are covered with a sheet of glass to prevent excessive drying-out during germination, then placed in any shady sheltered place outdoors.

After the seed has germinated, the glass is removed, but kept handy for covering on cool nights. With careful watering, the seedlings grow while the gardener is attending to other jobs and visiting the summer flower shows.

Whether we shall be able to put the boxes outside this year for germination will depend on weather conditions in early June.

At present it appears likely we shall have to germinate the seeds in a cool place indoors, or delay the sowing for a week to 10-days in the hope of higher temperatures.

Three perennials worth growing from seed and well within the scope of beginners are Coreopsis, Geum, and Gaillardia. All are summer flowering, producing quantities of bloom year after year, for garden decoration and for cut flowers.

Coreopsis is a large daisy-like flower now offered in three varieties. Coreopsis lanceolata var. Baby Gold (16 ins.) has large single golden blooms on knee-high plants. Variety Brown Eyes (16 ins.) has bright yellow flowers with deep brown-red centre zone. Mayfield Giant Grandiflora (24 ins.) is a large flowered single with a dark centre.

There are two varieties of Geum which have long been garden favorites, Lady Stratheden with double golden-yellow blooms on 18 in. stems, and Mrs. Bradshaw with double flowers of brilliant scarlet. Now available is Mrs. Bradshaw Improved from a selected plant which appeared in a seedgrower's planting, with flowers almost twice the size of the older strain.

It was never possible to grow enough plants of these geums (pronounced gee-um) to fill the demand, yet they seem unknown to many of today's gardeners.

Gaillardia is another daisy-type flower of which Indian Chief (18 ins.) has deep mahogany-red centres; Double Lorenziana (18 ins.) a selection of crimson and yellow; Grandiflora Portola Hybrid (30 ins.) a copper-scarlet tipped yellow.

A newer introduction is Stokes Royal Monarch Blend (32 ins.) selected from eight European named gaillardias with a color range covering yellow, orange and scarlet, and bicolors of yellow and red, orange and scarlet, and yellow and maroon.

If your summer garden is lacking bright accents you will find the answer in these easily grown perennials.

Murder Over Hidden Gold?

MANAUS, Brazil (UPI) — Police found Joseph Seregi hanging by a nylon rope. In his room they found a map. On the map they found the word "gold."

Now they are searching for Peter Gerhard Brauer, a West German karate expert who they say may have killed Seregi to protect the whereabouts of the gold.

But they say his body may be at the bottom of an Amazon tributary.

Seregi, 32, a naturalized American and Brauer, 26, who had extensive knowledge of the jungle, first appeared in the Amazon March 3, arriving at the small Brazilian town of Benjamin Constant, 2,225 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro on the Colombian border.

According to a report by the Amazonas state interior ministry, the two men stayed until late March, then slipped into the jungle to hunt. But police said they also wanted to talk with the Catuguinas Indians who reportedly know where to find gold and diamonds.

The pair, joined by a Brazilian identified as Nelson Geronel, then moved on to the small river town of Jutai, 500 west of Manaus, where they staged an expedition up the Bia River March 26.

Five days later they returned. They brought back no hunting trophies, the police report said, but they talked of finding gold.

Then the search turned ugly.

Brauer, on a second trip into the jungle, disappeared and Seregi went looking for him. Police said Seregi, visibly shaken, came back alone.

On April 23, Seregi's body was found hanging from the ceiling of his room.

Searching his personal effects, police found the map. On it, near the Bia river, was scrawled the word "gold."

Police also reported finding a sealed letter in the dead man's room addressed to a Lajos Tahacs of Somerset, N.J., which they said provided more information about the case. They declined to disclose the contents of the letter.

Manaus authorities, who were preparing to begin a five-day search of the Jutai area Friday, first learned of the pair May 6 in a letter from the chief of police in the Jutai district.

Police cleared Geronel in the case and an 11-day foray into the jungle May 7 uncovered little new information. Nevertheless, police said, they believe Brauer sneaked into Jutai and killed Seregi to keep the whereabouts of the gold to himself.

But they say Brauer also may have been killed and dumped in an Amazon tributary.

Authorities planned to exhume Seregi's body to see if he was murdered or if he committed suicide.

Because Jutai is outside the range of effective radio communication, police said they could not provide further information on the case until its patrol returned to Manaus in the middle of June.

ON THEIR WAY on 20-month walk across Canada are (left to right) Neil Livingstone, Ed Dowbyhuz, Tom Parsons, John Best and Murray Muir. Hike will take them from Prince Rupert to Gamble, Nfld. Two more hikers will join group, called Green Gamble Hackers, at Jasper, Alta.

Footloose Across the Country

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Five hikers from across Canada have left Prince Rupert, B.C., for a 20-month walk across the country.

The trip—organized by Murray Muir, 19, of Brampton—is due to wind up in Gamble, Nfld. at the end of 1977.

The hikers will be joined by two others en route and they plan to average seven or eight miles a day through the fields and woods.

As 18-year-old Andrew Forber of Brampton said: "I'm a hiking addict, and I just need a massive fix."

Andrew, along with Maggie MacMillan, 18, of Wolfville, N.S., will join the walk in Jasper, Alta.

The rest of the group left Brampton April 26 on a three-day train trip to B.C. to begin the long hike.

Murray said he had been planning the trip since 1973.

"I want to see the country, and it's a challenge," he said. "Most of the people have been on hikes and they like it a lot. Now they want to go on a long hike."

Murray was on a 20-day hike through the Rocky Mountains last year and he is a veteran of walks on Ontario's Bruce Trail. He and three friends from Brampton—Andrew, Neil Livingston, 18, and John Best, 19— advertised on the CBC Radio program As It Happens for others who wished to join them.

They recruited Ed Dowbyhuz, 24, of Montreal; Tom Parsons, 23, of St. John's Nfld., and Maggie.

Murray said 90 per cent of the walk will be through woods and fields. He said the group will make about five miles a day through the mountains, 15 through the prairies and seven or eight the rest of the way. They plan to go to populated areas only to get supplies, then light out again for the country.

The name of the walk is the Green Gamble Hackers.

"Hacking is what we do through the swamps," said Andrew. "It really improves the patience."

Joining them on the hike are three dogs, which carry supplies in specially-made backpacks.

Murray said the hikers will need about $2,000 each for the trip, not counting money spent on tents, parkas, sleeping bags, backpacks and hiking boots.

"Our parents have backed us pretty well," said Murray. "Most of them tried to discourage us; they said it was a crazy idea. But now they back us."

He said some of the walkers have less experience than others, but all have enthusiasm. They will take trains only if they get behind schedule, and they have no plans to work on the way.

Maggie was asked how she feels being the only girl in the group. She replied: "I don't see why I'd feel any different than Tom feels or Ed feels. We're all a bunch of crazy people, so we'll get along."

Games Post Mortem Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial Chamber of Commerce has called for a post-mortem inquiry on the Montreal Olympics to investigate the astronomical costs of the Games.

In its annual brief to the Quebec government Wednesday, the chamber said it "believes that, after the Games, a much greater light must be shed on the exceptional gap between the estimated and real costs."

the chamber said that the Games, "whose hallmark was supposed to be modesty, have turned into indecent ostentation."

The latest official estimates place total cost of the Games at more than $1.4 billion.

Approximately 2,000 members of the Canadian armed forces will be housed in the Olympic Village temporarily this month until they can move into school billets as originally planned, it was announced Wednesday.

A Canadian Forces spokesman told a reporter 300 to 400 military personnel are already living in the village, built for athletes and team officials participating in the Summer Olympics.

Capt. Geoff Haswell, forces information officer, said that in an arrangement between the national defence department and the Olympic organizing committee, up to 2,000 troops will stay in the village.

He said the agreement provides that the troops live in the village until June 19 but discussions are under way to extend the deadline to June 23.

Olympic organizing officials have said that the first athletes are expected to move into the village starting July 1.

New Hughes' Will Really in Orbit

LAS VEGAS — Many of the Howard Hughes "wills" have been imaginative, but the latest is out of this world.

The 28th — to date — "last will and testament" of the late billionaire arrived at the Clark County courthouse Wednesday.

It leaves $400 million to a Dwayne Clyde Byron Hughes, identifying him as the billionaire's son, "born in a flying saucer over Oklahoma in 1946."

The 28th "will" came on the heels of the 27th, which leaves the entire $2.5 billion fortune to Judge Crater, the New York jurist who vanished early in this century, creating a puzzle that has lasted to this day.

Holiday Toll 426

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S.-wide count showed 426 persons dead in traffic accidents during the long Memorial Day weekend that ended at midnight Monday. The National Safety council had estimated between 340 and 400 persons could die in U.S. traffic mishaps during the period.

Communal School Struts Its Stuff

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen teachers and students from Twin Valleys, a communal school, near London, Ont., are using Habitat Forum to show their alternative community in action.

They have built a geodesic dome, pitched tents, planted gardens and generally made the Jericho Beach site in Vancouver a miniature of their school farm where students and teachers share all work and do everything, from constructing buildings to growing their own food themselves.

"We're more than just a theory," explains the Twin Valleys' founder and director, George Bullied.

"We're an alternative community that works. We're here to say it works and it works well."

Twin Valleys was set up five years ago for young people who didn't fit into the regular school system — drug users, petty criminals and dropouts.

To date 500 students have gone through the system, 80 per cent to either a higher education or to employment within a month of leaving the school.

Bullied said Twin Valleys is successful because its students are totally accepted and responsible in the community.

He starts by making them responsible for basics such as food and shelter. The community, which now numbers 165 — 90 of them students — provides 80 per cent of its own food.

"It's much easier to teach kids how to make a living once you've taught them how to love," Bullied said.

Bullied says the lessons learned at Twin Valleys could be applied in other communities and that is why he is at Habitat.

WHITE SPOT CLOSING

The White Spot restaurant at Town and Country Shopping Centre in Saanich is closing, almost 15 years to the day it opened.

Colin Hueckendorff, White Spot vice-president of operations, said today the company will not renew its lease on the building which comes due June 26. The building is owned by the shopping centre.

The White Spot has been at the location since June 19, 1961. Hueckendorff said the decision to close was "basically a matter of economics" and had nothing to do with intermittent problems the restaurant has had with youths at the drive-in.

The restaurant will close probably three days before the lease expiry date, he said, to enable a crew to clean the building.

Clair Anderson who operates the Coffee House and Lemon Tree at Mayfair will open another restaurant at the site, sometime in July.

Hueckendorff said staff from the Town and Country White Spot is being offered jobs at the company's other Victoria outlet at Douglas and Caledonia.

He said the company hopes to re-establish a second drive-in at another location in Greater Victoria.

White Spot Ltd., with headquarters in Vancouver, operates White Spot restaurants and 55 industrial catering outfits. It also holds the Col. Saunders Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise for B.C.

The company is a subsidiary firm of General Foods.

Headless Molester Appeased

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Shrieking female employees who claimed they had been molested by a headless, 10-foot ghost led a stampede of workers out of an electrical equipment factory.

The factory shut down for three days until arrangements were made to satisfy the angry spirit.

The women said they saw the appartion last Saturday at Carter's Semiconductors factory in Ipoh. Some fainted. About 50 women started shrieking that they had been possessed and everyone fled.

Factory workers advised the plant's American manager to summon a bomoh, or witch doctor.

Bomoh Tok Ali, after some consultations, declared that the ghost would be appeased if a goat was sacrificed.

He sprinkled water and rice around the factory and the workers returned to their jobs Tuesday. The sacrifice is to be performed Saturday, followed by a feast for the workers.

Farmers Hurl Milk

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry, chanting crowd of thousands of Quebec dairy farmers smashed windows and hurled containers of milk and milk powder on the steps of Parliament today as federal cabinet ministers told them there was no easy solution to their production and price problems.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, his face splattered with milk, was hissed and booed as he started speaking in English to the French-speaking farmers.

"I am your agriculture minister," he said as chunks of butter landed at the feet of helmeted RCMP riot policemen and a phalanx of Liberal MPs and reporters surrounding him.

He then retreated into the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings.

Earlier, Regional Expansion Minister Marcel Lessard told the angry farmers from across Quebec that there is no easy solution.

Strike Averted?

A threatened strike by B.C. Ferry workers has apparently been averted as Labor Minister Allan Williams said Wednesday he will announce some good news in the legislature today.

The minister said after a meeting with representatives of the B.C. Government Employees Union that his announcement will contain details of a proposal put to the union by him to settle the dispute.

There is speculation that intervention may take the form of an industrial inquiry commissioner appointed by the labor minister.

The dispute centres around overtime worked by licensed and unlicensed members of the BCGEU's marine services component and the layoff of a number of workers.

The union served 72-hour strike notice and was in a position to strike Tuesday but didn't pending further talks.

59% Increase Awarded To BCR Men

VANCOUVER (CP) — The biggest "catchup" pay increase since federal anti-inflation income controls — up to 59 per cent over two years — has gone to workers on the British Columbia Railway.

The arbitration by Owen Shime of Toronto provides for increases of $2.20 to $2.82 an hour over two years from July 31 for about 40 members of the International Union of Operating Engineers who work exclusively on B.C. Rail's Dease Lake extension.

These workers were getting a range of $3.72 to $6.30 an hour, making the increase 44 to 59 per cent.

The Shime arbitration also gave $2.16 an hour for maintenance-of-way employees and truck drivers, warehousemen, mechanics and clerical workers of the Teamsters Union Local 31.

The maintenance of way employees had an average rate of $4.88 with a cost-of-living "fold-in" making their increase 44 per cent.

The teamsters had an average rate of $5.25 with a cost-of-living adjustment, making their increase 41 per cent.

There was no indication whether or when the arbitration might be submitted to the federal anti-inflation board. The B.C. government has yet to pass its legislation bringing public institution under and crown corporations under the federal law.

For operating engineers the Shime decision also reduces the work day to 7½ hours from 8 as of June 15 for the operating engineers.

Spokesman for the unions were satisfied with the Shime award saying it recognized the fact that the railway

Hospital Strike

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Local 180 of the Hospital Employees Union has served 72-hour strike notice on Prince George Regional Hospital but cannot legally strike until June 10 due to a provincial cooling-off order which expires at that time, hospital administrator Bert Boyd said Wednesday. He said a strike would involve 350 to 400 of the hospital's 800 employees and that the administration has worked out a strike contingency plan.

SOLUTION MIGHT BE KISSING 'ER . . .

LONDON (AFP) — The problems of a warring husband and wife were perhaps resolved Wednesday when a magistrate divided their home into a series of forbidden zones.

He awarded the living room and one bedroom for the exclusive use of the husband, Sydney Watson, 64, and the dining room and another bedroom to his wife, Ivy Watson, 66.

Other parts of the house are subject to a rigorous timetable. Watson is allowed in the kitchen for only one hour for each of his meals and for half an hour at night for a last cup of tea before going to bed.

His wife reigns supreme in the bathroom except for two hours in the evening when her husband, according to law, is allowed to take a bath.

To avoid further trouble, the magistrate also ruled that Mrs. Watson should keep out of the way when her husband was either coming up, or going down, the stairs.

Ministers Squabble

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Secluded sniping turned to open conflict between cabinet colleagues Wednesday as Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer openly accused Defence Miister James Richardson for bungling the purchase of 18 long-range patrol aircraft from Lockheed Corp.

In a stunning Commons question period the rift between the two ministers spilled into the open.

Some of Goyer's comments prompted former prime minister John Diefenbaker to charge that the government is trying to make a scapegoat out of Richardson, as a result of Goyer's "stupidity."

The rift is expected to be raised in the weekly cabinet meeting today.

Almost unheeded was confirmation by Richardson that both Lockheed and Boeing submitted earlier this week new "unsolicited" proposals to supply patrol aircraft.

Officials later confirmed that Lockheed has proposed a contract for delivery of Orions with less-sophisticated equipment than those considered in the bungled $1 billion contract which will cost Canadian taxpayers $16 million for wasted preliminary work.

It was in the Commons chambers, however, that the action got off the ground.

The opposition revved-up with an attack on Goyer for his "scurrilous attack" on the public service in blaming an official for the Lockheed mess.

Tory House leader Walter Baker said Goyer's blaming of a public servant, in a statement Tuesday, had been "a scandalous precedent" in light of the fact that the whole cabinet knew and approved the Orion purchase contract.

The two ministers on the firing line took different positions in affixing responsibility for the mess.

Goyer said that the entire blame lay with Richardson. Richardson felt that any blame should be equally shared between the two of them.

Goyer, however, was having no part of shared responsibility.

He stuck with his statement that financing of the contract was the "prime and exclusive responsibility" of the defence department.

Richardson said it was a shared responsibility in that the cabinet and treasury board had decided in November that the $1 billion dollar Orion purchase was to be financed through borrowed money.

Pound Rallies Slightly After Record Plunges

Times News Services

LONDON — The British pound rallied today after falling to a record low on foreign exchange markets.

It was believed foreign central bankers indirectly were coming to the rescue.

In early dealings the pound slid two cents to touch just over $1.70 in U.S. funds, $1.64 Canadian.

But in later trading it recovered most of this lost ground to stand at $1.67 Canadian, almost the point where it closed Wednesday.

The pound now has lost almost 41 per cent of its value from 1971.

Dealers suggested that central banks had started intervening in the money markets of Britain, West Germany and the United States as well as Switzerland.

Some bankers believed that Wednesday's plunge had been partly inspired by panic.

The market action today appeared to have vindicated a statement by Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, that the pound had fallen below its true value and that no emergency fiscal measures in Britain were necessary.

Healey said the important thing is "to keep our nerve and not panic."

In Zurich today, the Swiss national bank, worried by the inflow of foreign funds which pushed the Swiss franc to an uncomfortably high level, began taking counter action, buying West German marks in an effort to keep the franc from rising further.

The action apparently succeeded in pushing down the franc against the mark and even against the pound.

Intervention also conducted by central banks in Britain and West Germany.

ROLLBACK .01%

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-inflation board has ordered a one-hundredth of one per cent reduction in a pay settlement awarded 4,332 Calgary school teachers in a ruling intended to avoid setting a precedent.

A board official said Wednesday the teachers had agreed to an increase that, including pay and benefits, would give them a 9.41-per-cent raise in one year. The board asked them to roll this back to 9.4 per cent.

Habitat Walkout Aimed at Israel

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Arab and some African states staged a major walkout today as Israel addressed a supposedly non-political United Nations conference on human settlements.

But Israeli Interior Minister Josef Burg coolly pressed ahead and challenged critics to adopt a "low tone" and visit Israel to see conditions for themselves.

Departing from a prepared speech, Burg zeroed in on fierce fighting between Moslems and Christians in neighboring Lebanon and said it was not far removed from genocide.

"It has brought more victims than all wars since the proclamation of the State of Israel," he said.

Burg said he was proud that Israel, despite different political attitudes between different people, had been able to hold free democratic elections within its old frontiers and in Israeli-administered areas.

CUBAN TROOPS STAYING

Washington Post

STOCKHOLM — Despite his pledge to withdraw Cuban troops, Prime Minister Fidel Catro intends to keep several thousand soldiers in Angola for an indefinite period, according to authoritative Swedish sources.

The troops will remain to help rebuild and police the war-ravaged land as long as President Agostinho Neto requires them, authorities here said Wednesday.

This disclosure is at sharp odds with the conclusion reached by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He interpreted a Castro letter announcing the withdrawal of 200 a week to imply that all Cuban troops would be evacuated in "roughly" a year. Kissinger moreover has urged that the process be speeded up. He said he would not quarrel if Castro left several hundred technicians behind.

The Swedes are exceptionally good guides to Cuban intentions in Angola. Castro chose Premier Olaf Palme to receive a personal letter revealing Havana's withdrawal plans. Among western nations, Stockholm probably has the closest ties to both Havana and Luanda.

Castro's letter was read to Kissinger during his visit here last week. It promised that half the cuban force would be withdrawn by the end of 1976. Swedish officials doubt that substantially more will be taken out until the Neto regime is confident it can run the country.

The Swedes calcuate that at their peak the Cuban forces in Angola numbered about 18,000, or some 5,000 mroe than Washington's estimate.

HABITAT SCOTCH . . . $2.78 BOTTLE

Oak Bay Tory Scott Wallace almost cleared the legislature Wednesday afternoon.

Wallace asked Attorney-General Garde Gardom whether he had heard rumors of bottles of scotch whisky being sold to Habitat delegates at greatly reduced prices.

An $8 bottle, Wallace told the legislature, was selling for $2.38.

His announcement was greeted by cheers from fellow MLAs, several shouts of "Where? where?" and an immediate request for a taxi from Vancouver Centre MLA Gary Lauk.

Gardom promised he would look into the affair, but said it was a practice to sell liquor to consular services at a reduced price.

The booze bargain apparently is available at an unmarked downtown liquor store.

Wallace mentioned the price of $2.38 a bottle but Vancouver reports say it's $2.78 for a 26-ouncer of Johnny Walker Red Label — a whole case for $33.36.

Smirnoff Vodka costs only $2.59. Beefeater Gin is $2.29.

Those prices also include the seven per cent sales tax.

Habitat is buying the booze from the government at cost and reselling it at the same prices.

The store serves only delegates officially accredited to the United Nations Conference on Human Settlements which opened Monday.

These people all have an official security pass with a brown stripe across the top.

Wallace said that at a conference on human need it was ludicrous to have liquor made available more cheaply than meals.

"It should be the other way round — you can buy a bottle for the price of a hamburger almost," he said.

Beirut Moslems Set Blockades

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies blockaded the streets of Beirut's Moslem quarters and closed shops today to protest the Syrian invasion.

Christian political leaders who welcomed the invaders were reported ready to ask France to send troops to "balance and complement" the Syrian military intervention.

The independent newspaper An Nahar said President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian, scheduled a meeting with ambassador Hubert Argod of France to make the request.

Beirut was without electric power for the second day, the last of 12 high-tension lines supplying the capital and its suburbs was knocked out Wednesday, a government spokesman said.

"Unless a ceasefire is arranged to allow repair teams to put the line in order, Beirut will remain without power indefinitely," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese Moslems and Christians kept up sporadic street battles and artillery exchanges in Beirut during the night and in the nearby hill resorts. Security officials and hospitals estimated about 50 persons were killed and 80 were wounded.

National Strike Closes Alcan

MONTREAL — Alcan Aluminium Ltd., the world's second-largest producer of aluminum, was hit by a surprise Canada-wide strike which closed all but one of its smelter operations.

Some 7,900 workers at Kitimat, B.C., and at Arvida, Isle Maligne and Beauharnois, all in Quebec, walked off the job and manned picket lines in a dispute apparently linked to the lay-off of 100 workers Wednesday.

A company spokesman said only the smelter at Shawinigan, Que., continued operating.

A union spokesman in Kitimat said the walkout was over "management arrogance."

The walkout began after some workers told management they wanted to discuss a grievance and were told to get back to their jobs or go home. They went home.

The union signed a two-year agreement with Alcan in January, but the federal anti-inflation board rolled back an 11 per cent wage increase to eight per cent.

SPY RING CRACKED

KARLSRUHE (Reuter) — West Germany's federal prosecutor announced today that a major spy ring that had operated for the last 10 years inside the defence ministry has been broken up.

Prosecutor Siegfried Buback said 15 men and women, including three civilian employees in the ministry, were arrested two days ago on charges of spying for East Germany.

No Ferry Subsidies

Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday his government has no intention of granting federal subsidies to B.C. Ferries' Vancouver Island-mainland runs.

Lang was quoted Tuesday as saying it is now the government's policy to support ferries serving two points in a province.

But, he said, the Hansard recorders in the House of Commons apparently erred and left out the word "not" in his statement which should have read that it is not government policy to support internal provincial ferries.

Lang said he is initiating talks with the provinces on the whole question of subsidies for ferries, but the result of those talks will probably be the withdrawal of some subsidies which already exist, and not the increase of subsidies.

Ombudsman to Earn $52,000

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The long-promised legislation establishing an ombudsman as a "public watchdog" in B.C. was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

The ombudsman, who will be appointed by a special committee of the legislature "as soon as possible," will have wide powers to investigate complaints about the actions of government departments, agencies, commissions, councils, Crown corporations or any company in which the government owns more than 50 per cent of the shares.

The man or woman will be appointed for six years and will receive a salary of $52,000 per year.

The introduction of the Ombudsman Act fulfills a campaign promise made by Gardom. He said that while he was a Liberal member of the opposition, he introduced an ombudsman act as a private member's bill three times.

The ombudsman can investigate a complaint coming from an individual and can recommend that a change be made, but cannot order the change. He can, however, report to the legislature if recommended changes are delayed.

"The job is to provide protection for individual freedoms and civil rights, with wide powers to investigate, report and recommend improvements and that incorrect procedures be altered and rectified," Gardom said.

"The essential features are these: independence, non-partisanship, objectivity. He can ensure openness, fairness and impartiality."

The ombudsman will have the power to investigate complaints from individuals, the legislature, a legislative committe — or on his own initiative — and will have access to

Phoney Foods Biting Into Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — By 1980, Canadian consumers will spend twice as much on food as they did in 1968, but five times as much on fabricated foods, says a food researcher.

Paul Melnychyn, director of research and development for FBI Foods of Montreal, told a food conference Wednesday fabricated foods will take up between $650 million and $700 million of a $6.2-billion food market.

He said by 1980 food additives will account for $160 million to $200 million of the nation's grocery bill, compared to $47.2 million in 1963.

"Consumers don't have to worry about additives because if they weren't safe and necessary they wouldn't be used," Melnychyn said.

"To have an additive or fabricated food tested and cleared by regulatory bodies costs between $25,000 and $1 million."

In response to an audience question, Melnychyn said many artificial colors are used for esthetic appeal and have no food or health value.

He said margarine, coffee whiteners, and artificial drinks will be fabricated foods showing most growth.

Melnychyn addressed the 19th annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Food Science and Technology which ended Wednesday.

Sister Watches Murder

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen murdered the founder of one of Northern Ireland's first Protestant para-military organizations today.

A lone gunman burst into the home of Jack Parsons, 51, and shot him as his sister looked on.

For about an hour afterward, members of Parsons' Woodvale Defence Association group patrolled streets in the Shankill Road area where the killing occurred, stopping cars and questioning drivers.

A second shooting came just before midnight in Comber, a Protestant stronghold 12 miles east of Belfast.

Gunmen hurled a garbage can lid through the living room window of a house, then shot and killed the 20-year-old Protestant occupant who jumped up to investigate the noise.

Mexican President Disarms Student

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Luis Echeverria disarmed a youth carrying a .22-calibre pistol during a meeting with students to discuss problems at a provincial university, the president's office reported.

"I prefer you to use weapons of intelligence rather than those of violence," Echeverria's office quoted him as telling the 19-year-old student at the University of San Luis Potosi.

The President's office said after the three-hour meeting, Echeverria returned the pistol to the student. There was no indication whether Echeverria had been threatened by the youth or whether the weapon had been loaded.

Guaranteed Pay Plan 'Falls Flat on Its Face'

Ottawa agreed to pay two-thirds of the cost of the program for the working poor, half the cost of plan to help unemployable people and said provinces could administer the system.

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-year search for federal-provincial accord on a plan to guarantee workers a living income ended Wednesday in disarray.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde pledged after a two-day welfare ministers meeting — the eighth and final session called to review the social security system — to go ahead with some form of guaranteed income program for the so-called working poor with or without provincial consent.

Meanwhile, most provinces made it clear they are reluctant to proceed with a potentially-expensive program when their budgets are crimped by rising costs.

"It's obvious the whole thing has fallen flat on its face," commented Reuben Baetz, head of the Canadian Council on Social Development.

At issue is a scaled-down plan that would have guaranteed an estimated 500,000 working poor $36 a month for household heads, $24 a month for spouses and $10 a month for each child.

Total cost of such a plan, had it been in effect last year, would have been about $225 million. Another $75 million would have been spent guaranteeing a minimum income to Canadians who are unable to work.

The proposal, watered down from a once-envisaged $1 billion program, had been accepted in principle at a February welfare ministers' meeting by all provinces but Ontario.

B.C. will probably be the model for the rest of Canada in any federal-provincial guaranteed income supplement program, Human Resources Minsiter Bill Van Der Zalm said.

Van Der Zalm, who returned Wednesday from a welfare minister conference, said the rest of the provinces were negative to the idea and B.C. was the only province which supported the program.

Van Der Zalm will meet again in two weeks with federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde to discuss the program.

He said the program in B.C. would likely be instituted first in an area where there are a lot of low-paying jobs.

The program suggested by Lalonde would provide $36 a month for the head of a household, $24 a month for a spouse and $10 for each child.

UIC Changes Attacked

Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday passed a resolution condemning planned changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Copies of the resolution, which says the government is "attacking the unemployed" through tightening the act will be sent to all three Lower Island MPs.

The restrictions will result in confusion and disqualifications, delegates said.

To continue drawing benefits will need "an exercise in dexterity," said council treasurer Larry Ryan.

Al Carley, an IWA representative asked bitingly: "Are people to hire lawyers to get unemployment insurance?"

The council also authorized Ryan to reply to a letter from Prime Minister Trudeau concerning Canada's position with regard to nuclear arms proliferation through such bases as the Trident missile submarine base at Bangor, Wash.

The prime minister had backed the base following criticism from Ryan.

PAIR ESCAPE INJURY

DUNCAN — Two Victoria pilots escaped injury Wednesday when their light plane overshot the runway of a small airport near Duncan.

Pilot-trainee Delbert Lennea, 37, of 927 Garthland, owner of the plane, was receiving instruction for his pilot's licence from instructor John W. Kaiser, 2032 Ardwell.

NAZI CLEARED

HAMBURG, (Reuter) — A former Nazi concentration camp commandant and five guards have been acquitted of murdering more than one million Jews during the Second World War.

After a trial lasting 3½ years, Judge Joachim Seefield said today no definite proof has been produced that Kerl Streibel, 72, and his five co-defendants had been involved directly in the mass murders in Poland.

The prosecution charged Streibel, commander of Trauniki camp, with personally killing at least nine persons.

The court travelled to the United States, Israel, the Netherlands, Austria and Britain to question some of the 200 witnesses, who included camp survivors.

Judge Seefield said it was impossible to prove that the accused had positive knowledge of the killings.

BURRARD INLET FERRY SYSTEM

THE SYSTEM

The Burrard Inlet Ferry System incorporates a new and exciting concept in the movement of passengers across Vancouver Harbour.
The ships are small and efficient with many ultra modern concepts incorporated in their construction. The terminals have been designed to handle the maximum number of people with great efficiency and with the minimum number of staff.
This ferry link will be an integral part of the Rapid Transit System now being developed to serve the Greater Vancouver Area.
Applications to fill the following positions are now being considered.

MANAGER (OPERATIONS)

THE MANAGER (OPERATIONS) is responsible to the Marine Superintendent for the operational management of the ferries and the terminals and the safety of all passengers; for administering a comprehensive training plan for all ferry and terminal personnel and for developing contingency plans for all levels of operation.

APPLICANTS must have at least a Home Trade Certificate as Master under 350 Tons or equivalent and be able to demonstrate successful supervisory and management experience in the maritime field. Familiarity with Vancouver Harbour would be an asset.

MANAGER (ENGINEERING)

The uninterrupted functioning of the ferries and terminals is vital to the whole operation. The maintenance and servicing organization therefore is of the utmost importance.
THE MANAGER (ENGINEERING) is responsible to the Marine Superintendent to ensure the efficient functioning of all ferries and all terminal equipment; to ensure that all safety equipment is in top operating condition; to administer a comprehensive planned maintenance system and to plan and implement docking of ferries and major overhauls when required.

APPLICANTS must have at least a Second Class Certificate as Marine Engineer (MOTOR) or equivalent and be able to demonstrate successful experience in a maintenance related job. Recent experience afloat would be an asset.

MANAGER (ADMINISTRATION)

THE MANAGER (ADMINISTRATION) is responsible to the Marine Superintendent for providing administrative and staff services to the whole Ferry System. These services will include pay, accounting and financial control; purchasing and control of stores; personnel administration and the provision of secretarial support.

APPLICANTS must have experience in the administration of a medium-sized company; be able to demonstrate an ability for imaginative management in a rapidly developing company, and have experience in some or all of the above fields.

WRITTEN APPLICATIONS stating experience will be received by:

Raiding Parties Feared In Civic Talent Crisis

B.C. municipalities face such an acute shortage of senior administrative personnel over the next few years that they could end up "robbing each other" to fill vacant jobs, members of the Municipal Officers' Association of B.C. were told at their annual conference here on Wednesday.

The warning came from Dennis Young, executive director of the Capital Regional District, during discussion on a major study of manpower needs, education and training for municipal administrators in the province.

The just-published interim report of the Municipal Administration Education Council estimates that 411 senior positions in B.C.'s local government level will have to be filled over the next seven years.

Young, a member of the council which was established two years ago with representation from the MOA, the provincial deputy minister of municipal affairs, the Union of B.C. municipalities and the federal ministry of urban affairs, said the figures indicate a looming "crisis."

"We have an immediate problem and we have to waste no time in dealing with it," he said.

One delegate referred to the report's estimate that 176 management personnel — or 43 per cent of the projected 411 vacanies — will be needed merely to replace administrators who would say "that's enough. I quit."

"Why are so many people leaving?" he asked.

Young said some were getting out because they couldn't "stand the heat in the kitchen," while others were lured by greater remuneration in other fields.

"Those left are the dedicated people who recognize their responsibilities while others still are survivors," he said. "But unless we do something about the new influx into the service we are going to make the jobs of those who do stick around a heck of a lot harder."

A delegate from a small municipality in northern B.C., who told the conference he "stumbled" into municipal administration almost by accident, complained that the career opportunities in local government are virtually unknown in high schools and universities.

"We don't sell ourselves," he added.

Association officials declined to release details of the Education Council's report, pointing out that it still has to be endorsed by other agencies represented on the council and returned with reactions to the urban affairs ministry which largely funded its preparation.

But Norman Brown, a Vancouver consultant who co-authored the study, said in an interview that the manpower crisis it deals with has been developing "for quite a long time."

Among the reasons for the shortage of administrators is population growth and the increasing complexity of local government, he said. For example, the Municipal Act used to be the only statute governing the operations of municipalities in the provinces, but now there are numerous pieces of legislation whose intricacies have to be understood and observed.

Brown said one of the major objects of the study was to plan a program of education and career development for municipal administrators.

"Since the cessation of the courses which used to be offered by the University of B.C. for the certificate of municipal administration — they died about eight years ago — there has been nothing to take their place," he said.

More than 260 delegates are attending the three-day conference which concludes Friday.

★★★ Price Watch Set Up

A price-watch has been set up by Vancouver Island's four labor councils to focus attention on cost of living increases.

Victoria Labor Council price-watcher Jack Radford reported that in only two weeks of operation the system had noticed significant jumps in the price of some items, such as the ferry rates and groceries.

For example, he said, soft drinks had been going through a spate of markups locally, where two 26-ounce bottles sell for $1.03 compared with 69 cents in Vancouver.

Information is likely to be forwarded to the B.C. Federation of Labor and the Canadian Labor Congress.

The congress is conducting a national price-watch to reinforce its view that the federal Anti-Inflation Review Board is focussing on wage controls and ignoring such other inflationary areas as profit and prices.

Abortion: Another Viewpoint

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Close to 1,000 abortions in Greater Victoria last year reflects a failure to provide adequate birth control information and counselling, a spokesman for those wantings to repeal abortion law said today.

Women who want abortions are going to get them legally or otherwise, said Mary Anne Erickson. People who would halt safe and legal abortions would have the blood of those women who would inevitably die at the hands of "back alley butchers" on their hands.

Erickson, one of the local co-ordinators for the Canadian Association for Repeal of the Abortion Law, was commenting on a brief presented by the Victoria Pro-Life Society to the provincial government.

That society, which said abortions in Greater Victoria have climbed from 14 in 1969 to 979 last year, condemned the liberal interpretation of the federal abortion law for making abortions easy locally.

Erickson said CARAL does not promote abortions but believes it to be a matter which a woman must decide for herself in consultation with her doctor.

Section 251 of the Criminal Code probibits abortion except where a hospital abortion committee rules that continuation of the preganacy would or would be likely to endanger the woman's life or health.

CARAL wants the law erased from the statue books because it is not being applied equitably. It argues that less than 300 hospitals in Canada have established abortion committees. It also claims it is easier for wealthy women or those living in cities to get abortions.

Erickson said abortions underline the failure of governments to provide enough money for birth control information, counselling and research.

She questioned the claim by the Victoria Pro-Life Society that 95 per cent of abortions in B.C. are performed solely for reasons of social or economic convenience.

"Having an abortion is not convenient for anyone," she said. "It's something most women turn to becasue they can't or don't chose to be parents.

"People are starting to realize that being a parent is something you have to be prepared and want to do."

As to the different rates of abortion approval across the country, she said, "what's happening is that in some places, perhaps in Victoria and Vancouver, the concept of health has been interpreted in a very wide way."

Human beings make mistakes, she said, and when they lead to unwanted pregnancies their health in the broadest sense can be endangered.

Asked if a woman with an unwanted pregnancy has any moral responsibility to the unborn child, she said she believes the woman has a responsibility to do the best thing for herself in the given situation.

"If she feels she can't care properly for a child, she should have an abortion."

Artifacts May Be Reburied

The Songhees band council will meet within the next few days to decide whether to ask the Provincial Museum for the return of artifacts taken from a three-year-old archaeological site on the Maple Bank reserve, Esquimalt Harbor.

Chief John Albany said most of his people appear to be in favor of asking for the return of the artifacts and reburying them on the ancient site.

The artifacts, mostly hunting and fishing items dating to about 200 B.C., are held in trust for the band by the museum.

The band's move to recover the artifacts follows a government decision to stop funding the project.

The project has been carried out under a summer employment program for young area Indians. They worked the site and at the same time received training in archaeological techniques.

"It's too bad they stopped funding this project," said Chief Albany. "It is one of the biggest undisturbed archaeological sites on Southern Vancouver Island."

This was confirmed by Tom Loy, assistant curator of archaeology at the museum.

"It's about three quarters of a mile long and in some places 250 yards in depth," he said. "The ancient Indian settlement was extensive and included the National Defence property."

He said another five years work remained to be done on the site.

"The study is not nearly complete," he said. "We could even work beyond five years on the site without exhausting the material on the site.

Camera Stopper

Main attraction at dockside today when the P and O-Princess Cruises' Island Princess landed at Ogden Point on her first Alaska cruise of the season was piper Rob Cross of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment. He piped the passengers ashore with aplomb, apparently oblivious to the battery of cameras aimed at him.

Indian Grab Fizzles

Fears that Indian dissidents would attempt to stack the annual meeting of the Victoria Indian Friendship Centre Wednesday night proved unfounded.

A spokesman for the centre said today there was no trouble at the meeting attended by between 60 to 70.

Elected to the board of governors of the centre were Mrs. Dolly Seeds for a second term, Barbara Higgins and John Masters.

On Wednesday Sharon Whonnock, a representative of the centre, expressed fears that so-called members of the American Indian Movement would attempt a takeover of the centre's operations.

She had asked city police to step up patrol in the area of the centre at 1292 Gladstone in anticipation of trouble.

She had also indicated two RCMP plainclothes officers would attend.

Her concern was based on what apparently happened in Vancouver last Saturday when a radical Indian group stacked the Vancouver Friendship Centre meeting and, she said, was voted into power. The group had said then Victoria would be their next stop, she said.

The Friendship Centres are funded by municipal, provincial and federal grants to give Indians a meeting place and an opportunity to develop leadership skills.

The centres offer a wide range of recreational, educational and cultural programs for both non-status and status Indians.

New Rates Whack Farmers

Increased commercial ferry rates are going to ruin many small farmers on Vancouver Island, a Cobble Hill rancher said today.

Bill Cameron, owner of one of the province's top Arabian horse breeding ranches and president of the Arabian Horse Association of V.I., said the rates will put out of business about 80 per cent of the small farmers on the island.

"In the past we have paid $8.25 for a bale of Washington alfalfa compared to $4 on the mainland and $2.50 in the interior," he said. "Now we are faced with increased ferry rates which means we will even have to pay more for hay."

He said under the existing commercial rate structure it will be impossible for island farmers to compete with their counterparts on the mainland.

"We ship and sell livestock to the mainland and other parts of Canada," he said. "Under the present set up we won't be able to do this."

"The new rates are also going to affect consumer prices," he said. "Prices of commodities shipped to the island will all go up."

He noted that some truckers haven't opposed the ferry rates and a few have gone as far as saying that it is about time the rates were increased.

"That's smug talk," he said. "They know their increased costs will be passed on to the consumer. So they are not worrying."

Cameron said he doesn't understand the government's reasoning for increasing the commercial rates.

"The government is telling the worker to restrict their wage demands," he said. "And at the same time it is initiating inflationary policies.

He listed a few examples — automobile insurance rates, ferry rates, hospital co-insurance and sales tax.

These increases are mainly responsible for the high inflation in B.C., he said.

"Ferry rates were boosted without any thought for the long-range effects on such a policy," he said. "In the end it is the consumer who pays."

Cameron noted that B.C.'s ferry system has always been subsidized and it should continue to be so.

Free, Minister Confirms

Transport Minister Jack Davis and the B.C. Ferry Authority can't agree on whether Gulf Islanders can travel between islands free.

According to the ferry authority's schedule islanders can travel between Long Harbor, on Salt Spring Island, to Galiano Island for the standard fare, but can travel free in the opposite direction.

Galiano Chamber of Commerce president Dr. Harvey Armitage called Davis and reports he was assured "at least ten times" that travel in either direction is free for islanders.

Tea and Things in Oak Bay

Schedule of Events For Weekend Fun

The tweed curtain is going up on Oak Bay's annual tea party on Saturday and Sunday.

The fun starts at 10 a.m., Saturday, when the tea party parade will leave Windsor Park en route on Willows Beach, focal point for the festivities.

Light-hearted officialdom takes over briefly for the tea pouring ceremony at 1 p.m. with the Oak Bay high school band playing at 1:15 p.m.

The Flying "Y" Gym Club will perform at 1:30 p.m., a women's nail-driving competition following 15 minutes later.

The Victoria Sky Diving Club will perform at 2 p.m. There will be a dog obedience show at 2:10 p.m., a pizza-eating contest at 2:40 p.m., a Zingari puppet show at 3 p.m. and dances by the Katherine Costain Highland Dancers at 3:15 p.m.

Sports events for children aged 11 or under will begin at 4:15 p.m. There will also be an art show by students from Willows and Monterey elementary schools.

There will be a midway with children's rides on both days.

Sunday's activities begin with a flypast by members of the Victoria Flying Club at 1:15 p.m.

Also scheduled are:

—1:20 p.m., Start of the bathtub race.

—1:25 p.m., Parasail demonstration by Al Scott.

—1:30 p.m., Flypast by armed forces' Argus aircraft.

—1:40 p.m., Flypast by Air West Twin Otter.

—1:50 p.m., Victoria Radio Modellers' radio-controlled aircraft.

— 2 p.m., Approximate fmish of bathtub race.

—2:15 p.m., Victoria Sky Diving Club.

—2:30 p.m., Victoria Motorcycle Club.

—3:10 p.m., Parasail demonstration.

—3:25 p.m., Radio-controlled model aircraft.

—4:15 p.m., Sky divers' finale.

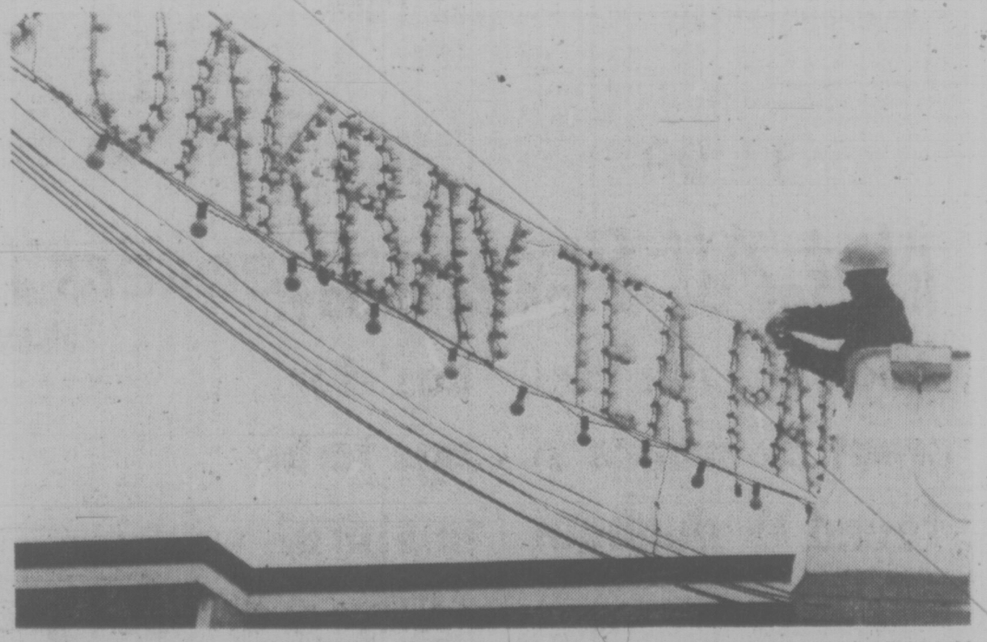
The traditional baron of beef will be served on both days and, in spite of the inflationary trend, will still cost $1.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How do nutritionists compute the vitamin content of different foods? — B.F.

A. Joyce Nordwall, chief dietician at Victoria General Hospital, refers to two major sources. One of them, Composition of Foods — Raw, Processed and Prepared, Agricultural Handbook Number 8, is prepared by the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and gives vitamin and mineral content together with water content, food energy, protein, fat and ash for specific portions of just about every known food.

The other reference work she uses is Geigy Pharmaceutical Scientific Tables, which lists trace vitamins and minerals, those found in minute quantities but known to be essential.



TEA TIME approaches and to make sure everyone knows about it Bill Wright of Oak Bay's municipal staff strings the message in lights over Oak Bay Avenue. Traditional annual "tea party" will be held Saturday and Sunday and there's something for all ages. (John McKay photo)

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Readers often ask me why it is so important for them to know the basics of good nutrition. And my answer is that once you have learned what the various essential nutrients are, what they do and where they are found, you have taken a giant step toward planning a good diet.

In all, there are some 40 essential nutrients, which can be divided into six categories. How much do you know about the basics of good nutrition?

1. Water, protein, fat, fibre, carohydrate, vitamins and minerals are all necessary in a good diet. One of them, however, is not a nutrient. Which one is it?

2. Which class of nutrients is necessary to build, repair and maintain all body tissues?

3. What class of energy-giving nutrients also serves as the carrier for vitamins A, D, E and K, and includes the essential fatty acids?

4. Two categories of nutrients provide no calories but are essential to help regulate metabolic processes. Are they (a) protein and carbohydrate, (b) vitamins and protein, (c) fat and minerals or (d) vitamins and minerals?

5. If you are looking for an excellent source of calcium, vitamin D and high-quality protein, would you choose eggs, fish, soybeans, or milk?

6. Liver is our best food source of iron. Does it also provide (a) protein, (b) vitamin A, (c) trace minerals, (d) vitamin C and (e) B vitamins?

7. True or false: To get sufficient protein, you must have one serving of meat, fish or poultry each day.

8. Vitamin A itself is a clear substance. But carotene, the provitamin with which the body can manufacture vitamin A, is clearly visible in certain foods. How do you spot it?

9. Although orange juice is one of our best sources of vitamin C, this essential nutrient is found in many other fruits and vegetables. Pick out the only one of the following that is low in vitamin C: potatoes, strawberries, apples, canteloupe, broccoli, tomatotes, kale, green peppers, rutabagas, cauliflower.

10. Trace minerals are present in many foods, and we need only "trace" amounts. Pick the luncheon menu that should supply the highest amount of trace minerals. Menu 1: egg salad sandwich on whole-wheat bread, milk, raw vegetable salad, fruit. Menu 2: hamburger on enriched roll with lettuce and tomato, soft drink, fruit pie.

And here are the answers:

1. Fibre is not a nutrient because it passes through the body without being broken down or absorbed.

2. Protein.

3. Fat is the carrier of the fat-soluble vitamins, A, D, E and K. Polyunsaturated fats supply the essential fatty acids, which cannot be manufactured by the body.

4. Vitamins and minerals.

5. Milk and milk products are our best source of calcium, fortified milk supplies vitamin D and one cup of milk supplies about nine grams of high-quality protein.

6. All of them. Liver is the body's storehouse for many nutrients, and fresh liver, quickly cooked, even provides some vitamin C.

7. False. Adults can get plenty of animal protein from dairy products and the rest of the protein they require from vegetable sources such as peas, beans, lentils and nuts. (Children, however, need another source of good animal protein such as eggs and milk to achieve optimum growth.)

8. Carotene is the red-yellow pigment in fruits and vegetables like winter squash and watermelon. It is masked by the green chlorophyll in green vegetables, but it is still present. The deeper the color, the more provitamin A.

9. Apples are low in vitamin C, providing only about six milligrams ~~in a~~ medium-sized one. One serving of any of the other fruits and vegetables listed will supply at least half the 45-milligram daily requirement.

10. Trace minerals are removed from foods in heavy milling, refining and processing, and are not returned by enrichment. Menu 1, with its whole grains, milk and fresh fruit and vegetables, will have a better supply than Menu 2, which contains more highly processed foods.

If you were right with only six out of 10 answers, chances are you should do a bit more homework on what makes up a healthy diet.

Mrs. Pribble's Buttermilk Bread

6½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, approximately 3 tablespoons sugar
2½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup water
1-3 cup margarine

In a mixing bowl combine and mix well 2 cups flour, sugar, salt, baking soda and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine buttermilk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat until warm. (Margarine doesn't need to be melted.)

Gradually add warm liquid to flour-sugar mixture mixing well after each addition. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Add 1 cup flour, enough to make a thick batter. Beat well for another 2 minutes. Gradually add and blend in just enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough that forms a ball and pulls away from the sides of the bowl.

Turn onto floured board and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl, grease top of dough, cover with a towel, and let rise until double in size. Punch down and shape into loaves.

Place in well-greased loaf pans. Cover with towel and let rise until double in size. Carefully grease tops with margarine. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 35 minutes or until done.

Note: This bread is moist and keeps well.

Makes 2 loaves.

indoor gardens

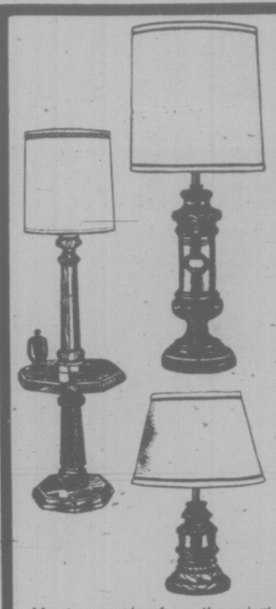
By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: A friend of mine recently returned from a visit to Florida and told me of forests simply dripping with a plant he called "Spanish Moss." He told me that this plant, which he said just hangs like gray cobwebs on the trees, can be cultured as an indoor plant. Is this true? If so, where can it be obtained? Thanks for your help.—L.T.

Dear L.T.: Spanish Moss, which is a variety of the Bromeliad, Tillandsia, can indeed be cultured as an indoor plant. Although it would prefer the outdoor atmosphere of a covered patio, this is a true "air plant," and as long as you merely drape it over a piece of wire, or a clothes hanger, and hang it in a nice bright spot, your Tillandsia will flourish by taking the necessary nutrients right out of the atmosphere.

You should spray it often, as most indoor situations don't contain enough natural humidity to support Spanish Moss, and you should probably give it a foliar feeding.

The Accent is on Natural Wood



Yes, wood, and antique brass to complement it, is the thing in this trio! The floor lamp's finished in elegant countryside pine, and the Colonial table model is Honey pine. The mini-lamp is antiqued brass (18½" high). All have three-way lighting.

dear abby

Abby Not Needed

DEAR ABBY: I am going into the hospital for four or five days to have silicone breast implants. A good friend of mine who is also my neighbor has offered to look after my two children during the day in her home.

My problem is another neighbor who is in and out of my house several times a day. She is quite a busybody, and I don't want her to know where I am and why.

I've thought of telling her I'm going to visit my mother who lives out of the state, but then she'll wonder why I wouldn't be taking my preschooler. I could also tell her I'm going to the hospital for a D and C.

Or I could just leave and not tell here anything, but she would see my husband taking my kids to my neighbor's house and back, and she'd be sure to ask him where I was.

The neibor who is caring for my children knows the facts and can be trusted not to say anything, but I don't want Mrs. Busybody to know. What should I tell her?—WANTS PRIVACY

DEAR WANTS: Tell her you're going to the hospital for minor surgery. Period. (P.S. And if she presses for more information, tell her it's a personal matter.)

DEAR ABBY: I response to DISGUSTED who complained about the service in a restaurant: NO! Walking toward the door without paying will not do it.

Last year, my husband and I waited one-half hour for the bill in a fashionable Palm Springs restaurant. In desperation, my husband finally went to get the waitress himself. She said she'd be "right over."

We waited for another 15 minutes, and he again went looking for her and saw her through the kitchen window talking to the help. Finally, after waiting for another 15 minutes, we got up and stood by the exit door for five minutes. Everyone was looking at us and knew what we had in mind, but when the waitress still didn't come, we walked out without paying our bill for $26.

It was not even a busy evening. I hope she had to pay for our bill. What would you have done?—MADELEINE

DEAR MADELEINE: I'd have located the manager, paid my bill (sans tip) and told him why he shouldn't expect to see us agin.

DEAR ABBY: A quote from your column, "Violence begets violence," calls to mind the words of the late Martin Luther King Jr. (from his book, "Stride Toward Freedom"):

"To retaliate in kind would do nothing but intensify the existence of hate in the universe. Along the way of life, someone must have sense enough and morality enough to cut off the chain of hate."

Thanks for trying, Abby.—YOUR ADMIRER

DEAR ABBY: In response to your decision to sign the Living Will, Dr. Peale asserted that there is a variety of opinions on this issue, but that the prevailing Protestant view would be that "God alone should determine life and death. The individual should be in the hands of God, who gave life and whose function is to take it."

Human beings are not puppets. God has endowed us with minds that He expects us to use wisely and responsibly. We decide when to consult a doctor and whether or not to have surgery performed.

The decision to keep patients alive by artificial means is not made by God, but by doctors. They assume they are carrying out God's will and have been supported by the courts. They become arbiters in life and death.

To declare that "God alone should determine life and death" is simplistic and naive. We must accept responsibility for our actions and be guided by what we believe is God's will and purpose.

The Psalmist did not ask that God keep him alive forever on earth, but said: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten, and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow: for it is soon cut off, and we fly away." — THE REV. ERNEST O. MARTIN.

Refrigerated flaky biscuits are truly versatile. They can be used for many nutritious main dishes as well as a host of delectable desserts.

The eight-page "Turn Simple Fare Into Simply Terrific" ("Faites un festin d'un simple plat") features an array of quick and easy recipes.

One is for a 'Hearty Stew 'n Biscuits.' This is expanded by a dozen suggestions on how to adapt this basic recipe to suit different tastes and special occasions. For instance, the meat cubes could be tenderized in wine or wine vinegar; sliced mushrooms could be added to the stew; the biscuits could be dipped in sour cream before baking or they could be steamed into dumplings.

Among other lunch or dinner dishes are recipes for a tuna - biscuits casserole, a cheesy chicken and green bean casserole and zippy ham and cheese roll-ups.

Dessert suggestions include a cheesy apple cobbler, cinnamon crisps, and light, fluffy donuts.

The booklet offers other ideas you will enjoy.

WILSON LIST DEFENDED

LONDON — Former prime minister Harold Wilson broke a week-long silence Wednesday on a controversy surrounding the peerages—knighthoods and other titles—he bestowed on leaving office, stating that he and he alone drew up his retirement honors list.

Wilson's unprecedented statement followed news insinuations that his personal secretary, Lady Falkender, had influenced the list—which was said to include members of her social circle.

Wilson said he toook full responsibility for each and every name and that he hopes the statement would bring an end to "this orchestrated vendetta."

The list was widely attacked by the news media and other poloticians who regarded it as breaking a tradition.

MONTREAL — Princes, presidents and potentates from far-away places will be in Montreal's seashell-shaped Olympic stadium when Queen Elizabeth opens the Summer Games July 17.

Problems of security make it difficult, however, for reporters to get a clear and full picture.

Former King Costantie of Greece is likely to attend as an honorary member of the International Olympic Committee.

There also are unconfirmed reports that Spain's King Juan Carlos will come.

There have been similar reports for many months regarding Monaco's Price Rainier, an ardent yachtsman who is expected to attend with his wife, Princess Grace, and their children.

Some officials feel the chances of a visit by President Ford are slim in view of the United States Bicentennial celebrations and domestic political battles leading to the presidential race.

There is speculation that Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser will come to Montreal before his scheduled visit with President Ford July 27.

Other visitors expected to attend include Prince Faisal Fahd Abdulazia of Saudi Arabia and Price Bertil of Sweden, who head the national Olympic committees in their respective coutries.

Prince Gholam Reza Pahlavi, IOC member and brother of the Shah of Iran, is scheduled to come to Montreal and there are unconfirmed reports the Shah will arrive as well.

This Record Real Snip!

PAVIA, Italy — Barber Pino Amato claimed a new world record for non-stop haircuttting Wednesday night, snipping about 200 heads in 83 hours. Then, red-eyed and aching, he briefly collapsed.

Amato said he surpassed by three hours an old mark set in 1972 by British barber Derek Applegate Rees.

"I'm happy," Amato said. "It's been a hard grind but now the record is mine."

During his performance Amato was attended by a doctor who regularly measured his blood pressure, a masseur who soothed his aching muslces and a dietician who fed him vegetables and yogurt every three hours.

New Hughes' Will Really in Orbit

LAS VEGAS — Many of the Howard Hughes "wills" have been imaginative, but the latest is out of this world.

The 28th — to date — "last will and testament" of the late billionaire arrived at the Clark County courthouse Wednesday.

It leaves $400 million to a Dwayne Clyde Byron Hughes, identifying him as the billionaire's son, "born in a flying saucer over Oklahoma in 1946."

The 28th "will" came on the heels of the 27th, which leaves the entire $2.5 billion fortune to Judge Crater, the New York jurist who vanished early in this century, creating a puzzle that has lasted to this day.

Murder Over Hidden Gold?

MANAUS, Brazil (UPI) — Police found Joseph Seregi hanging by a nylon rope. In his room they found a map. On the map they found the word "gold."

Now they are searching for Peter Gerhard Brauer, a West German karate expert who they say may have killed Sergi to protect the whereabouts of the gold.

But they say his body may be at the bottom of an Amazon tributary.

Seregi, 32, a naturalized American and Brauer, 26, who had extensive knowledge of the jungle, first appeared in the Amazon March 3, arriving at the small Brazilian town of Benjamin Constant, 2,225 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro on the Colombian border.

According to a report by the Amazonas state interior ministry, the two men stayed until late March, then slipped into the jungle to hunt. But police said they also wanted to talk with the Catuguinas Indians who reportedly know where to find gold and diamonds.

The pair, joined by a Brazilian identified as Nelson Geronel, then moved on to the small river town of Jutai, 500 west of Manaus, where they staged an expedition up the Bia River March 26.

Five days later they returned. They brought back no hunting trophies, the police report said, but they talked of finding gold.

Then the search turned ugly.

Brauer, on a second trip into the jungle, disappeared and Seregi went looking for him. Police said Seregi, visibly shaken, came back alone.

On April 23, Seregi's body was found hanging from the ceiling of his room.

Searching his personal effects, police found the map. On it, near the Bia river, was scrawled the word "gold."

Police also reported finding a sealed letter in the dead man's room addressed to a Lajos Tahacs of Somerset, N.J., which they said provided more information about the case. They declined to disclose the contents of the letter.

Manaus authorities, who were preparing to begin a five-day search of the Jutai area Friday, first learned of the pair May 6 in a letter from the chief of police in the Jutai district.

Police cleared Geronel in the case and an 11-day foray into the jungle May 7 uncovered little new information. Nevertheless, police said, they believe Brauer sneaked into Jutai and killed Seregi to keep the whereabouts of the gold to himself.

But they say Brauer also may have been killed and dumped in an Amazon tributary.

Authorities planned to exhume Seregi's body to see if he was murdered or if he committed suicide.

Because Jutai is outside the range of effective radio communication, police said they could not provide further information on the case until its patrol returned to Manaus in the middle of June.

ON THEIR WAY on 20-month walk across Canada are (left to right) Neil Livingstone, Ed Dowbyhuz, Tom Parsons, John Best and Murray Muir. Hike will take them from Prince Rupert to Gamble, Nfld. Two more hikers will join group, called Green Gamble Hackers, at Jasper, Alta.

Footloose Across the Country

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Five hikers from across Canada have left Prince Rupert, B.C., for a 20-month walk across the country.

The trip—organized by Murray Muir, 19, of Brampton—is due to wind up in Gamble, Nfld. at the end of 1977.

The hikers will be joined by two others en route and they plan to average seven or eight miles a day through the fields and woods.

As 19-year-old Andrew Forber of Brampton said: "I'm a hiking addict, and I just need a massive fix."

Andrew, along with Maggie MacMillan, 18, of Wolfville, N.S., will join the walk in Jasper, Alta.

The rest of the group left Brampton April 26 on a three-day train trip to B.C. to begin the long hike.

Murray said he had been planning the trip since 1973.

"I want to see the country, and it's a challenge," he said. "Most of the people have been on hikes and they like it a lot. Now they want to go on a long hike."

Murray was on a 20-day hike through the Rocky Mountains last year and he is a veteran of walks on Ontario's Bruce Trail. He and three friends from Brampton—Andrew, Neil Livingston, 18, and John Best, 19— advertised on the CBC Radio program As It Happens for others who wished to join them.

They recruited Ed Dowbyhuz, 24, of Montreal; Tom Parsons, 23, of St. John's Nfld., and Maggie.

Murray said 90 per cent of the walk will be through woods and fields. He said the group will make about five miles a day through the mountains, 15 through the prairies and seven or eight the rest of the way. They plan to go to populated areas only to get supplies, then light out again for the country.

The name of the walk is the Green Gamble Hackers.

"Hacking is what we do through the swamps," said Andrew. "It really improves the patience."

Joining them on the hike are three dogs, which carry supplies in specially-made backpacks.

Murray said the hikers will need about $2,000 each for the trip, not counting money spent on tents, parkas, sleeping bags, backpacks and hiking boots.

"Our parents have backed us pretty well," said Murray. "Most of them tried to discourage us; they said it was a crazy idea. But now they back us."

He said some of the walkers have less experience than others, but all have enthusiasm. They will take trains only if they get behind schedule, and they have no plans to work on the way.

Maggie was asked how she feels being the only girl in the group. She replied: "I don't see why I'd feel any different than Tom feels or Ed feels. We're all a bunch of crazy people, so we'll get along."

Games Post Mortem Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial Chamber of Commerce has called for a post-mortem inquiry on the Montreal Olympics to investigate the astronomical costs of the Games.

In its annual brief to the Quebec government Wednesday, the chamber said it "believes that, after the Games, a much greater light must be shed on the exceptional gap between the estimated and real costs."

the chamber said that the Games, "whose hallmark was supposed to be modesty, have turned into indecent ostentation."

The latest official estimates place total cost of the Games at more than $1.4 billion.

Approximately 2,000 members of the Canadian armed forces will be housed in the Olympic Village temporarily this month until they can move into school billets as originally planned, it was announced Wednesday.

A Canadian Forces spokesman told a reporter 300 to 400 military personnel are already living in the village, built for athletes and team officials participating in the Summer Olympics.

Capt. Geoff Haswell, forces information officer, said that in an arrangement between the national defence department and the Olympic organizing committee, up to 2,000 troops will stay in the village.

He said the agreement provides that the troops live in the village until June 19 but discussions are under way to extend the deadline to June 23.

Olympic organizing officials have said that the first athletes are expected to move into the village starting July 1.

MINERS RETURN FOR TIME BEING

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Steelworkers were back at their jobs Wednesday at Inco Ltd. but a sense of relief in the mining community was tempered by the realization more strike troubles could be only 15 days away unless a dispute with the Anti-Inflation Board is resolved.

Executive officers of the 2,900-member Local 6166 of the United Steelworkers of America worked their persuasion throughout the early-morning hours Wednesday to settle what they considered a wildcat strike by some members.

The men, numbering up to about 100 at one point but dwindling to a handful by Wednesday morning, believed they had been betrayed by the executive who postponed a legal strike originally scheduled for midnight Monday. They held out on the pickets at the main entrance to the mine and smelter for 30 hours.

WHITE SPOT CLOSING

The White Spot restaurant at Town and Country Shopping Centre in Saanich is closing, almost 15 years to the day it opened.

Colin Hueckendorff, White Spot vice-president of operations, said today the company will not renew its lease on the building which comes due June 26. The building is owned by the shopping centre.

The White Spot has been at the location since June 19, 1961. Hueckendorff said the decision to close was "basically a matter of economics" and had nothing to do with intermittent problems the restaurant has had with youths at the drive-in.

The restaurant will close probably three days before the lease expiry date, he said, to enable a crew to clean the building.

Clair Anderson who operates the Coffee House and Lemon Tree at Mayfair will open another restaurant at the site, sometime in July.

Hueckendorff said staff from the Town and Country White Spot is being offered jobs at the company's other Victoria outlet at Douglas and Caledonia.

He said the company hopes to re-establish a second drive-in at another location in Greater Victoria.

White Spot Ltd., with headquarters in Vancouver, operates White Spot restaurants and 55 industrial catering outfits. It also holds the Col. Saunders Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise for B.C.

The company is a subsidiary firm of General Foods.

Headless Molester Appeased

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Shrieking female employees who claimed they had been molested by a headless, 10-foot ghost led a stampede of workers out of an electrical equipment factory.

The factory shut down for three days until arrangements were made to satisfy the angry spirit.

The women said they saw the appartion last Saturday at Carter's Semiconductors factory in Ipoh. Some fainted. About 50 women started shrieking that they had been possessed and everyone fled.

Factory workers advised the plant's American manager to summon a bomoh, or witch doctor.

Bomoh Tok Ali, after some consultations, declared that the ghost would be appeased if a goat was sacrificed.

He sprinkled water and rice around the factory and the workers returned to their jobs Tuesday. The sacrifice is to be performed Saturday, followed by a feast for the workers.

Communal School Struts Its Stuff

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen teachers and students from Twin Valleys, a communal school, near London, Ont., are using Habitat Forum to show their alternative community in action.

They have built a geodesic dome, pitched tents, planted gardens and generally made the Jericho Beach site in Vancouver a miniature of their school farm where students and teachers share all work and do everything, from constructing buildings to growing their own food themselves.

"We're more than just a theory," explains the Twin Valleys' founder and director, George Bullied.

"We're an alternative community that works. We're here to say it works and it works well."

Twin Valleys was set up five years ago for young people who didn't fit into the regular school system — drug users, petty criminals and dropouts.

To date 500 students have gone through the system, 80 per cent to either a higher education or to employment within a month of leaving the school.

Bullied said Twin Valleys is successful because its students are totally accepted and responsible in the community.

He starts by making them responsible for basics such as food and shelter. The community, which now numbers 165 — 90 of them students — provides 80 per cent of its own food.

"It's much easier to teach kids how to make a living once you've taught them how to love," Bullied said.

Bullied says the lessons learned at Twin Valleys could be applied in other communities and that is why he is at Habitat.
